HOMICIDAL.

Death of Colonel James Seybert-Another Shootles Case.

At a late hour on Saturday night Colonel James Seybert, residing at No. 705 Sansom street, in company with a friend named M. B. Hoon, were returning to their homes along Thirteenth street. On passing Wood street they were assalled by a crowd of roughs, against whose treatment both the Colonel and his friend remonstrated. The crowd then set upon them and beat them with blackjacks. Colonel Seybert was knocked senseless to the pavement, and Mr. Hoon, after receiving one or two severe blows, managed to escape. The injured man was conveyed to the house of his friend, at No. 1314 Callowhill street, where he laid in an insensible state until this morning, when he died from the effects of the injuries received. Coroner Daniels will hold an inquest to-morrow.

The deceased was unmarried, and twenty-eight

The deceased was unmarried, and twenty-eight years of age. He was a native of Schuylkill county, where he resided until the termination of the war, when he settled in this city and resumed the practice of the law. He had served throughout the war with considerable distinction. He first entered the service as Lieutenant-Colonel of the 6th Pennsylvania Regiment (three months). On returning to the city, he was elected Major of the 7th Pennsylvania Cavalry, and was promoted to the Lieutenant-Colonelcy for meritorious service. He was mustered out in

About so clock last evening a disturbance took place on a passenger car on Sixth street, below Arch, between Bernard Hagan and Dennis Quinn. both of whom had been on a visit to Engel & Wolf's farm. On the car arriving opposite North street, Quinn jumped into the street, and, drawing a revolver, fired, the ball taking effect in the left breast of Hagan. Quinn then ran through North street to Fifth, and was there lost sight of. Hagan was taken into a neighboring beer saloon, where a was taken into a neighboring beer saloon, where a physician was summoned. Mayor Fox happened to be in the vicinity at the time, and on being informed of the occurrence, repaired to the saloon and took the affidavit of the injured man. The police were quickly on the ground, and every effort was made to capture Quinn. Hagan was conveyed to the Hospital where he now lies in a critical condition. The capture Quinn. Hagan was critical condition. The injured man resided at No. 722 Baker street, where he leaves a family, and Quinn was a tavern-keeper in Bedford street. The house of the latter was searched several times during the night, but he had searched several times during the night, but he had not returned up to this morning.

This morning a four-barrelled pistol, with one empty barrel, was found lying in Filbert street, west of Sixth. This is supposed to have been the weapon used by Quinn, which he threw away after discharging it at Hagan. The injured man was lying very low at the Hospital this morning.

A UNION LADY IN NECESSITOUS CIRCUMSTANCES. Several days since was mentioned the case of Mrs. C. S. Wilson, a Union widowed lady who resided in C. S. Wilson, a thind wholever any was resident in Savannah, Ga., during the war, where her property consisted of eight or ten domestic servants, bank stock of some eighty thousand dollars, and a house m Savanuah, all of which was lost. She is now entirely destitute. From the commencement of the war until its close, Mrs. Wilson devoted the most of her time to the alleviation of the sufferings of the Union prisoners, and for that purpose made long and expensive journeys to Richmond, Andersonville, and other prison-pens through the Southern States and often suffering the most terrible hardships. It consequence of such hardships and exposure, he health became seriously and permanently impaired and she is unable to pursue any active occupation. She bears letters of endorsement from Senator John Sherman, the late Governor John A. Andrew, A. C. Barstow, Mayor of Providence, R. I., General Q. A. Gilmore, and General Grant.

As announced for woods, with a loud flourish of trumpets, the grand national exhibition of the fruits, flowers, and vegetables of America opened to-day at Horticultural Hall, on South Broad street. Once inside the doorway, and the scene is magnificent. Everything beautiful and edible of soily product is somewhere to be found—upon the stage, the tables, or hanging in festoons around the galleries. As to the stage, it is charming—more, ravishing—a very plot transplanted from the Bibled Eden, the hanging gardens of the Orient, or some other place. A Jersey cabbage patch is n shakes beside it. They hanging gardens of the Orient, or some other place. A Jersey cabbage patch is no shakes beside it. They who had its arrangement have executed their task with artistic skill and constrained taste. A beautiful canyas seene backs it, to pleal flowers, bushes and trees flank it, rising in verduer and odor to the flies; while a veritable seat of roses cover its shoor. But one thing is wanting to complete it, and make the fairy illusion almost real. A fountain is there. the fairy illusion almost real. A fountain is there, why not have a dozen or so ittle mermen or maids dressed a la danseuse it with nothing on, dis dressed a la denseuse—i, c with nothing on, disparting in the scented wa ers, and tossing rose leaves about in sport? We heard at least a score of visitors make the suggestion. The articles—the bables—could be gestion. The articles—the bables—could be procured cheap, and their display would pay. All the benches have, of course, been removed from the bedy of the hall. Occupring these places, and stretching away down the room in long lines, are numberless tables, robed in white paper and piled with apples, pears, peaches, watermelons, squashes, potatoes, cantelopes, grapes, canliflowers, artichokes, beans, bananas, pineapples, plums, oranges, lemons, persimmons, cranberries, tomatoes, ochres, corn, numpkins, egg plants, rye, outs, and so on, ad institute. But they don't come it, always, though. We noticed one chap slide out of the door with about a bushel of releged potatoes in his pockets, and a lady also small off carrying a huge melon. We likewise, as we walked down Broad street, after our visit, municiped into an apple as big as our head, which ain't very large, to be sure, but rather more sound than the transfer. rather more sound than the apple proved to be, for it was as rotten as a Democratic convention. But notwithstanding these things, the gruffness of the guardians and the light ingeredness of the visitors, the display is immensed. rather more sound than the the display is immonse—a very elephant of its kind. The oldest inhabitant in this city never saw anything to equal it. Enough in the vegetable line is on exhibition to supply the eaters of our Common Council for a full twenty-four hours. That is saying a good deal; but a visit to Horticultural Hall will prove our words correct. Several floral pillars built in open work, old style, according to the rules laid down in the fourth chapter, third verse of the society's publications, stand about the hall. THE DEMOCRACY—THEIR LITTLE FIGHT—ANOTHER TICKET FRAMED.—The light in the Democratic ranks still goes on, with a fair probability of continuing until the day of the October election, without any measure having been adopted by which the election of their ticket can in their estimation) be insured. The better portion of the party demand an entire change in the men to be presented for their suf-frages, while some of those who secured the nomi-nations are loth to yield to this almost universal re-

As we stated yesterday, some of the candidates are in favor of withdrawing provided that the late conventions be reconvened for the purpose of replacing them with better men; while the others want to withdraw and allow the Executive Committee to name their successors. Upon this the great question of a rew ticket hinges; and until that is settled, the Democracy will continue to have the present list of names to vote for in October.

The ticket we named yesterday has all been knocked to pieces, as it is said that some of the present candidates had chosen their successors, so that after the election they would virtually hold the position. Another ticket has been placed in the position. Another ticket has been placed in the field, and rumor has it that the following is the one:-City Treasurer, John Hulme; City Commissioner, John C. James: Recorder of Deeds, George R. Berrell; Clerk of Quarter Sessions, Edward Olmstead; Prothonotary of District Court, James J. Doran, Coroner. -

Our readers need not be surprised to find another ticket to-morrow, as the Executive Committee meets this evening, and, in fact, it is believed that new tickets will appear daily until the great and mo nen-tous question is settled.

Letter from General Jordan. Captain J. W. Morton, of Nashville, ex-Chief of Artillery under General Forrest, has received an in-vitation to join General Jordan, with the rank of Colonel. Jordan writes:—"My friend, Mr. Cisneros, goes expressly to the United States to get as many of the Forrest men as can be found, and will send of the Forrest men as can be found, and will send of the state of the send of the s his to you, with authority to collect as many of the old artillery which you commanded as you can collect within thirty days. Don't fear the climate. It is more pleasant, actually, here in the interior of Cuba, at this time, than in Tenressee. All that is requisite is care not to indulge freely at first in fruit."

The roads, especially near the coast, are bad for artillery; hence, lighter guns are more necessary than at home. The mountain howitzer does not suit, for the carriage is too narrow. What is wanted is the boat howitzer, with a light carriage, which may have to be made for it. Possibly the Wiard smooth gun (12-pounders) may do, with plenty of spherical case and canister. Whatever you may wish, General Cisneros will provide. I think you will not regret coming. The country is the noblest I ever saw, and worth tighting for. A Letter to General Cavada. The following is an extract from a letter of Gen. Cavada, dated at camp, near Cienfuegos, Ang. 29;—
"This is a terrible sort of warfare. We have carried on the struggle conformably to all the principles of civilized warfare; respected our prisoners of war, paid for what we took from Spaniards, and have done all in our power to avert from our country the forrors of a merciless conflict. But the Spanfards in their blind rage, have set aside every impulse or sentiment of humanity; they have not only put to death those of our comrades whom they have captured, but butchered in cold blood decreptd old men; insuited and, in many instances, murdered our worzen; burned, destroyed ray is had controlled and and described and set of the second and se stroyed, ravished and laid waste everything in their way. After they have recoiled from our fire, they have rushed on defenseless old men and children, and shot them down, and then unblushingly published in their newspapers that the cowardly rebels ran away and left so many dead on the field; their dead are the old men, women, and children. The entire civilized world must look with horror on such things transpiring in the mineteenth century, prompted and perpetrated by a nation that strives to gain a place among the civilized. The Spanish Government, brutal and impolitic to the last, will see the extinction of its power in Cuba, and hear the eternal curses of her sons. Meanwhile, we hear the cheering voices of friends far away promising aid and civing us exampathy and we feet that was and giving us sympathy, and we feel doing a noble work, and that all the world must applied our efforts. Belge August 29, thus refers to the official accounts of the Emperor's health:—
"The Emperor is undoubtedly better, but there would be more confidence in such reassuring news if the Jeurnal Official used more freedom in its state ments, and did not omit facts which are perfectly correct, or at least have never been denied. It has created surprise that the special organ of the Covernment speaks only of the Emperor's rheumatism, when every one knows that it is not that share of his maladies which provokes inquietude. All the journals have spoken of another malady which is of greater gravity, which may not shorten the life of the sovereign, but its presence is incontestably proved by the impossibility the Emperor finds of either riding or driving. If this malady does not exist, the statements should be plainly contradicted; otherwise the general impression of the gravity of the Emperor's illness will be increased, by appearing to wish to conceal its existence, and by publishing applications strengther homography hypotenses to which to wish to conceal its existence, and by publishing bulletins signed by honorable physicians, to which no more confidence will be given than to unsigned communications. Besides, it is remarked that the Journal Official of this morning, as well as the Petit Journal of yesterday evening, have not felt themselves bound to say that the Emperor presided at the Cabinet Council yesterday. The omission of the cofficial journals might, however, permit its being left—but as I am informed, his Majesty came only for a few moments into the hall where the Ministers were deliberating, and signed some docuonly for a few moments into the hall where the Ministers were deliberating, and signed some documents. But considering the improved condition of the Emperor as indisputable, there is nothing to dispute about but that there was too much desire to misrepresent its temporary gravity. I am assured, also, that contrary to all that has been said of the Emperor walking in the park, that during the ifferen days of his illness he has been only removed from his bed to an arm-chair which may have been rolled to the terrace, which is on a level with his from his bed to an arm-chair which may have been rolled to the terrace, which is on a level with his apartment. It is also possible that the Emperor regards his condition with more firmness than those around him. The journeys in which the Empress presents the heir to the throne to the people would prove it, and it was remarked that during his last visit to Chalons, the Emperor was constantly accompanied by his son, thus seeming to say that he designed him to be the next object of the army's devotion.

The Political Culoron—Riots in Anne Arundel County—The City Hall Commission.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. BAITIMORE, Sept. 14 .- Political excit very great. The primary election for delegates to nominate a sheriff is now progressing. The contest is entirely between Colonel Kane and Augustus Albert to-day. The result is the same as settling who will be sheriff. Kane's chances now seem the best. The Republicans are taking advantage of the Democratic distraction, and are rapidly uniting.

A vote in the first branch of the City Councils last night indicates that the resolutions of a special committee recommending the removal or resignation of the City Hall Building Commission will not pass.

Charles Cannon, well known as a steamboat agent, dled on Saturday. He formerly lived at Seaford, Del. A serious political riot occurred on Saturday at the Eighth district, Anne Arundel county, where several persons were wounded by pistol shots and clubs.

FROM THE STATE. President Grant at Altoona.

ALTOONA, Sept. 14.-President Grant and amily, accompanied by General Foster, J. D. Cameron, Esq., and Hon. John Scott, arrived here last evening and remained over night at the Logan House. During the evening the party was serenaded by the City Band, and a large number of our citizens paid their respects to the President. This morning, after viewing the extensive shops of the Pennsylvania Railroad Conpany, the party left for Pittsburg on a special train tendered by the General Superintendent. E. H. Williams, Esq.

The storm was more severe than has taken place for a number of years. So far as heard from none of the Execution of Americans in Cuba.

The report of Admiral Hoff, concerning the exe cution of American citizens in Cuba, is now under-going consideration at the State Department, and it is thought the result will give a new turn to the policy of the Government relations to Cuba.

Secretary Fish had received intimations by private letters previous to the reception of Admiral Hoff's report of outrages committed on American citizens in Cuba, but he had nothing official on the subject. Hoff's report more than confirms all the stories which have come to the State Department, and it is the purpose of Secretary Fish to write a note to the Spanish Minister, demanding a cessation of these outrages, as well as an explanation of what has already occurred.

They arrived at the upper quarantine this morning at 5 o'clock, and were received there by Mr. Kenneth Reed, Deputy Health Officer, Mr. Isaac Smith, one of the Emigration officers, and Henry Ovatt, of the Boston Dailu Times. After the customary inspection by the Health Officer, the members of the crew and their friends were passed into the Collector's tug and steamed up to the company's wharf, the ship itself having steamed up as far as Castle Garden. Their baggage was subjected to no examination, through the courtesy of the Collector, and they were on their way to the Astor House before many of the passengers had landed.

Mr. Timothy Shea, President of the Gullok Boat Club, and Mr. W. L. Ogden, of the Aleyone Clus, met them on landing, and on behalf of the boat clubs of New York tendered them a formal reception in the shape of a dinner at Delmonico's, this P. By Anglo-American Cable, LONDON, Sept. 14.—An immense meeting was held yester day at Dundalk, Ireland, of those favorable to the release of the Fenian prisoners. It is estimated that 20,000 people were present. The meeting was addressed by prominent speakers. Washburn and Lopez.

Mr. Washburn, formerly United States Minister te Peragusy, has written a communication to one of the London journals in regard to Lopez. He says that his opinions have undergone no change. He recites the barbarities of Lopez, and says that there are but few foreigners sow in Paraguay, and they are only permitted to live because useful to the Dictator. If they succeed in making their escape, they will have to thank their fortune only, and not the protection of their own governments.

THE LATE BLOW.

Further Accounts of its Violence in Rhode Island.

From the Frovidence Journal, Sept. 13

A ride around the suburbs of Bristol seta forth the effects of the late gale to an alarming extent. On the ferry road a large building near the residence of Mr. Bogart was taken up by the force of the wind and blown over a high wall on the land of Mr. Simmons adjoining, without injury to the wall. The farm house adjoining the farm of John R. Gardner was uprofed and other buildings blown over the way up to the wall. was unrooted and other buildings blown down. Both these gentlemen sustain great loss in the destruction of trees and shrubbery. At Bristoi ferry the wharf is demolished, and the boat formerly used at that place destroyed. The lighthouse was in imminent perii during the gale; the tide came into the secret's apartment and his family was convenient. keeper's apartment and his family was compelled to vacate. The building however, sustained no serious damage. Nearly all those stately willow trees around the Ferry farm were blown down or stripped of their branches. On the farm of Mr. a. Sidney DeWolf barns and other buildings were blown down and trees uprooted. On the grounds of the late Hon. James DeWolf, now occupied by the family of the late William Bradford DeWolf, the destruction is terrible. A great portion of those beautiful locust terrible. A great portion of those beautiful locust and other trees surrounding that residence, many of them of nearly a century's growth, are uprooted and lie about the premises in wild confusion. Three stacks of chimneys are blown from the house, which was otherwise damaged. Barns were unroofed; sheds, stables, and other buildings completely prostrated. On Mount Hope nearly every barn is blown down, and the damage to the orchards is immense. In Locust Grove, which has been for many years a place of resort for plants and placeare parties. place of resort for picnics and pleasure parties, nearly all the trees are blown down and destroyed. There is scarcely a farm on Back road but what has suffered loss in buildings and trees, and the same can with truth be said of all the farms on the main road. The vanes or street buildings on the main road. The vanes or arms on the grist mill on Fort Hill are blown away.

In Poppasquash the effects of the gale are equally visible. The residence of the late Mark Anthony De Wolf, now owned by Governor Burnside and occupied by the family of the late Francis L. B. DeWolf, was unroofed and otherwise injured. Buildings, sheds, and trees were blown down. The farms of Robert Rogers, Charles Chase, the Herreshoff farm, and the South Point farm suffered severely by the destruction of trees and buildings. A part of the roof of the residence of Oliver H. Perry was blown of the residence of Oliver H. Perry was blown The farms of Stephen F. Church and Samuel off. The farms of Stephen F. Church and Samuel W. Church suffered equally with the others in the destruction of buildings. At the latter place many of the trees on each side of the walk leading from the house to the road were blown down and the orchard nearly destroyed. Many of the trees in this orchard were blown over during the gale of 1815, but we wighted an and have borne fruit to the present were righted up and have borne fruit to the present time. Vessels Wrecked and Lives Lost.
The violent storm which passed along the coast of

New England last week also swept along the eastern coast of Long Island. The three-masted schooner Mary Milnes, from Philadelphia for Boston, loaded Mary Milnes, from Philadelphia for Boston, loaded with coal, went ashore seven miles to the westward of Montauk Point. She broke in two and went to pieces in less than one hour afterwards. The crew consisted of nine men, seven of whom succeeded with great difficulty in reaching the shore. A brother of the captain and one of the crew were drowned.

On Napeague beach fourteen fishing boats came ashore. One yacht is high and dry. Several others were blown out to sea, three of them having a man each on board. The sloop Fanny Brewer, of Sag Harbor, went ashore at Watch Hill, and several purse boats were driven out to sea, three of them

Harbor, went ashore at Watch Hill, and several purse boats were driven out to sea, three of them with six men each on board. The lightkeeper's house at Montauk suffered severely, the chimney having been blown down and the stoop carried away. A barn and other outhouses were also destroyed.

At East Hampton large trees were blown down, carrying away leagraph, wires and represent years. carrying away telegraph-wires and rendering roads impassable. Several dwellings were also much damaged. The corn is flat all through the Hamptons. The storm was the most severe that has visited that
