PENDLETON'SSPEECH AT CLIFTON. The repudiationists of the United States have been so terribly defeated in their efforts to imbue the American people with the spirit of dishonesty, that their leaders are deeply impressed with the necessity of concealing or disguising their ultra views. A remarkable instance of this feeling is afforded by the late speech of George H. Pendleton, the Democratic candidate for Governor of Ohio, at Clifton. He is the ostensible head of the repudiation ring of the Democratic party. His supporters at the Tammany Convention, in 1868, gloried in calling him "young greenbacks," and in urging his claims to Presidential honors on the ground that he would wipe away the debt by an unlimited issue of legaltenders. He was zealously eulogized by Brick Pomeroy in the same columns which teemed with denunciations of bondholders and avowals of a determination to make the initional bonds as worthless as autumn leaves. ven now his leading Ohio organ, the Cininnati Enquirer, openly advocates repudiation, if the Pendleton plan of paying the debt does not prevail. And yet gentleman George, in addressing a party of his friends at his own residence, in a speech which was evidently intended as a campaign document, carefully abstains from giving prominence to the theories with which he is so thoroughly identified. While he bids his irresponsible journals to win votes from those who are lost to all sense of honor by vain promises of relief from the burdens of taxation, he addresses himself to the more difficult task of making a favorable impression upon the representatives of the business interests of the country. It is astonishing how deeply he sympathizes with them; how sorry he is that the bonds are not made to bear their proportionate share of taxation; how much he is grieved by contraction and commercial failures; how deeply he regrets the decline in prices which men of all parties have been praying for, and how jesuitically in the full tide of his after-dinner revelries, he suggests the sham remedy which he is afraid and ashamed to prescribe to a business audience. With all his fine-spun theories Mr. Pendleton forgets that the only way to pay a debt is to pay it. It is much easier to either in the United States or Great Britain. discharge an old obligation by giving a new dreamed of regarding this repudiation as a one than by planking down the hard cash; and the sum and substance of the philosophy of the Ohio statesman is founded on this profound observation. But a succession of promises to pay redeemable with nothing of King Christian for $10,000,000, that it more substantial than new promises, is but was suddenly discovered that the power to another name for repudiation. And when negotiate a treaty with a foreign State was Mr. Pendleton promises this remedy, even reposed exclusively is the President and his in a disguised shape, to a business audience, Secretary of State. they well ask whether the nation can afford it? Grievous as the burdens of the debt may be, the loss entailed by the total destruction of confidence, the annihilation of public and private credit, and the downfall of the existing financial system, would be ten times more grievous. All past panies in the United States would be periods of prosperity compared with the terrific crash which Pendleton invites. The candidate whose place on the Democratic ticket he assumed, Gen. Rosecrans, justly declared that the true way to diminish the burdens of the debt was to improve the national credit. The agitations of the repudiators have already cost the nation many millions of dollars of additional interest. and if their candidates are not defeated many millions more will be necessarily added to the burdens of taxation. Financiers of the Pendleton school are, in fact, only one degree less expensive and injurious to the national interests than the secessionists with whom they sympathized during the war. They are the chief obstacles to a negotiation of new loans bearing one-third less interest than those now in existence, and requiring one-third less taxation to defray their annual burden. And while their mere clamors work this mischief, the official establishment of their theories would be scarcely less mischievous than the success of the Rebellion. The loss suffered by the bondholders would form but a tithe of the misery and suffering they would inflict upon all the toilers of the land by the protracted derangement of every form of business, the cessation of many important pursuits, the enforced idleness of millions of workmen, and the pressure of want and starvation upon myriads of helpless families.

degree cruel and murderous to wantonly intensify the perils of the miners. The obligation to provide proper means of ventilation, etc., rests principally with the mineowners, but experience having fully demonstrated their disposition to shamefully neglect this duty, the people of the State, through their Government, should long since have guarded against wholesale butchery in the mining regions.

THE ST. THOMAS SWINDLE. THE New York Times. which still hangs on to the ghost of Seward's former self, and therefore deems it necessary to come to his defense on all possible occasions, argues that "it would be a pity" to have the treaty for the purchase of the submarine volcano of St. Thomas fail, "without a debate and a solemn enunciation of the true limits of Executive power in its negotiations with foreign States, that the latter may know just what importance to attach to any engagement of our Executive, so long as it lacks the Senatorial approval." This is a special plea of the most puerile sort. The Constitution of the United States, Art. II, section II, clause 2, says:-"He (the President) shall have power, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate, to make treaties, provided two-thirds of the Senators present concur." If the Senate were to devote an entire year to debating the question, and were then to enunciate, in the most elaborate style, "the true limits of Executive power, in its negotiations with foreign States," it could do nothing more than proclaim the fact that no treaty negotiated by the Executive is binding and valid until it has received the assent of two-thirds of the members of the Senate present when the final vote is taken, and that the Executive has under the Constitution no power or authority to pledge the ratification of the Senate.

The Times says that "the policy of our Government upon the subject ought to be defined, both for our own sakes and to prevent any future misunderstandings with foreign sovereigns." But the policy of our Government is defined, and that clearly, by the clause from the Constitution quoted above; and ever since the present form of government has been in existence, its practice has coincided with the policy laid down in the clause in question. When Minister Bancroft negotiated his great treaty with the North German Union which settles the vexed allegiance question, it was formally ratified by the Senate, and nobody at home or abroad regarded the ceremony of ratification as superfluous. And when Minister Johnson, stipulated that the American people should make an out-and-out surrender to Great Britain on the Alabama claims question, the Senate repudiated his action, and no one, casus belli. It was not until Mr. Seward, elated by the acquisition of the Alaska icebergs, turned his covetous eyes upon St. Thomas, and agreed to take it off the hands By the express terms of the Danish treaty. if ratifications were not exchanged on or before February 24, 1868, its provisions were to become void. Why was this ridiculous clause inserted in the treaty, if there were any doubts about "the true limits of Executive power in its negotiations with foreign States?" And why, the limit having passed without any affirmative action on the part of the Senate. did Mr. Seward unite with the Danish Minister to extend the time for ratification to October 15, 1869? The Danish authorities clearly understood at the time the treaty was negotiated, and they understand full well at present, that without the ratification of the Senate the contract for the purchase of St. Thomas is null and void, and that the Senate is under no obligations whatever to ratify the treaty if two-thirds of its members do not believe that the best interests of the United States demand such action. If Denmark chooses to tender St. Thomas to us as a free gift, we may possibly accept it; but in our present financial straits we have more pressing uses for the $10,000,000. The true secret of this incessant agitation of the St. Thomas question lies undoubtedly in the fact that, if the treaty fails, as it has failed and is bound to fail with every possible extension, somebody other than the King of Denmark will lose an opportunity to pocket a good round

SHIRKING THE RESPONSIBILIT Oun Democratic morning contemporary co tinues as dumb as the traditional oyster the subject of Mr. Fry's desertion of the con pany of such men as Johnny Abern at Jimmy Stewart. One of the press hand however, has been employed to write a squi which appears over the signature of "A Wor ing Democrat," in the "Public Opinion column. The press hand, reflecting the se timents of the editors, "was extremely sorr to discover that Mr. Fry was ashamed of t company he had been keeping, and, more over, had "little inclination, under existin circumstances, to enter into the canvass vigorously as its importance demanded." Th press hand, like the editors, relied upon M Fry's name as upon "a tower of strength and thinks that "his personal popularity an high standing in the community ought to ho been sufficient to have carried the weaker po tion of the ticket through!" Hence these tear However strong the faith of the exempla press hand, Mr. Fry doubted his ability 'carry the weaker portion of the tick through," and was unwilling to risk "his pe sonal popularity and high standing in th community" by making the attempt.

"WHISEY," laments the New York Wor 'is advancing." The World is grieve thereat, for cheap whisky is one of the indi pensable requisites to Democratic success the polls, and the raising of the price of th liquid just on the eve of the October election is a precursor of forthcoming 'defeat. " old Democratic times," continues the lame tation of the World, "whisky was often so as low as fourteen cents, and rarely exceeded twenty-two cents per gallon." The difference between 22 cents and $1'30 is quite pe ceptible to Democratic executive committe and Democratic aspirants for office. It quite natural, therefore, that the Wor should wax indignant at the rumor of a pr position to kill off the entire Democrat party by cutting down the income tax to or half its present rate, and doubling the bu den on whisky.

THE COMMERCIAL CONVENTION which is to held in Louisville, Kentucky, on the 12th October, promises to be an event of unusu importance, and if these expectations are fu filled, its results can not but prove benefic to the country at large. It is understood th the subject of selecting delegates to represe this city will be brought before Councils their meeting to-morrow. It is to be hope that the very best and most influential m who can be persuaded to represent Philad phia will be chosen, whether the delegation selected by our municipal authorities, in a cordance with the request of the Mempl Convention, or by our commercial assoc tions, as would appear to be the most appr priate course.

You will recollect, gentlemen, there was several in the dire at sixth and Commerce streets, the next May, five works afterwards, all of which upon being opened proved they were dire-proof indeed, for 1 witnessed the opening of the most of them, and in every case the contents were preserved, while Safes of other makers were partially or entirely destroyed. I at once concluded to have something that 1 could depend upon, and purchased one of your Safes. The safe 1 purchased of you at that time was subjected to a white heat (which was witnessed by several gentlemen that reside in the neighborhood) at the destruction of my Marble Paper factory, early wallace street, on the afternoon and evening of the 24th inst. After digging the safe from the ruins, and opening it this morning, I was much pleased to find everything, consisting of books, papers, money and silverware, all right 1 shall want another of your safes as soon as 1 can get a place to continue involutions for the runne. THE CAUSES OF THE AVONDALE TRAGEDY.

MANY rumors have been circulated in regard to the cause of the late tragedy at the Avondale mine. An active effort was made at one time to create the impression that the fire was the work of an incendiary, and that some infuriated and desperate miner, who was opposed to an infringement of "the basis," sought terrible revenge by destroying the lives of the Avondale workmen. Then the theory was started that fire was accidentally communicated to a bundle of hay at the bottom of the mine by a spark from the pipe of a careless miner. But the Coroner's jury, after hearing all the evidence, have censured the mining and railroad company for its defective and dangerous arrangements; and we are told that "the verdict is generally considered as adverse to the corporation, and is hailed as the opening of a new era in the operation of mines." -It is a disgrace to our civilization and the authorities of the State that precautions for the protection of the miners have not heretofore been dents are unavoidable, and it is to the last natural termination.

OUR Democratic morning contemporary grows jubilant over Maine, despite the utter cleaning out which the Democracy sustained in that State on Monday. "Last year," it exclaims, "Grant's majority was over 28,000; this year the radical majority is less than 8000." But last year the total vote was 112,000, while this year it was only 88,000; and as the organs of the Democracy have persisted all along that the temperance candidate could not count on a single Democratic vote, the true Republican majority is 18,000. In 1867 the Republican majority fell to 11,614, but the fall did not prevent a rise to 28,000 in the following year. On the same basis, the Republican majority next year will reach 45,000, which will be quite sufficient for all practical purposes.

THE discontent of the Canadians with their present government, and their desire for annexation, daily and hourly increase; and some of the English statesmen seem to be anxious to sever the present connection with their troublesome colonists. As the British possessions in North America contain about as many square miles as our own, we could afford to settle the Alabama claims in consideration of a transfer of a tract which would double our territorial area, despite the worthlessness of a large portion of it, and if the adjustment of the controversy is postadopted. With the best care occasional ac- poned a few years, this will be the most COMMERCIAL PROSPERITY OF FRANCE. THERE are peculiar social causes leavening Fran society which corrupt the purity of family life, a tend greatly to overcome the natural increase population. Infanticide and the studied neglect children kill off a large proportion prematurel in the Department of the Loire Inferieure at the r of 90 per cent. of the children under one year of ag while in the late wars the Crimea kiiled $0,000 m China and Mexico 65,000, Italy, 60,000, making 205, in all. Yet despite these untoward influences, commerce of France was never more prosperous a self-sustaining.
