THE "WILD MAN."

Mark Twain "Interviews" Him with Remark-able Success Some Startling Developments and Curious Reminiscences.

Mark Twain has been "interviewing" the selebrated "Wild Man," and contributes the results of his talk with the monstrosity to the Buffalo Express :---

There has been so much talk about the mysterious "wild man" out there in the West for some time, that I finally felt that it was ny duty to go out and "interview" him. There was something peculiarly and touch-ingly romantic about the creature and his strange actions, according to the newspaper reports. He was represented as being hairy, long-armed, and of great strength and stature; ngly and enmbrous; avoiding men, but ap-pearing suddenly and unexpectedly to women and children; going armed with a club, but never molesting any creature, except sheep or other prey; fond of eating and drinking, and not particular about the quality, quantity, or character of the beverages and edibles; living in the woods like a wild beast; seeming eppressed and melancholy, but never angry; moaning, and semetimes howling, but never nttering articulate sounds. Such was "Old Shep" as the papers painted him. I felt that the story of his life must be a sad one-a story of suffering, disappointment, exile-a story of man's inhumanity to man in some shape or other-and I longed to persuade the secret from him.

"Since you say you are a member of the press," said the wild man, "I am willing to tell you all you wish to know. By-and-by you will comprehend why it is that I am so ready to unbosom myself to a newspaper man when I have so studiously avoided conversation with other people. I will now unfold my strange story. I was born with the my strange story. I was born with the world we live upon, almost. I am the son of Cain.

"What !" "I was present when the flood was announced. "Which !"

"I am the father of the Wandering Jew." "Sir!

I moved out of reach of his club, and went on taking notes, but keeping a wary eye on him the while. He smiled a melancholy smile, and resumed: -

"When I glance back over the dreary waste of ages, I see many a glimmering landmark that is familiar to my memory. And oh, the leagues I have travelled! the things I have seen! the events I have helped to emphasize! I was at the assassination of Cresar. I marched upon Mecca with Mshomet. I was in the Crusades, and stood with Godfrey when he planted the banner of the cross upon the battlements of Jerusalem. I----

"One moment, please-have you given these items to any other journal? Can I-

"Silence! I was in the Pinta's shrowds with Columbus when America burst upon his vision. I saw Charles I beheaded. I was in London when the Gunpowder Plot was discovered. I was present at the trial of Warren Hastings. I was on American soil when Lexington was fought-when the Declaration was promulgated-when Cornwallis surrenderedwhen Washington died. I entered Paris with Napoleon after Elba. I was present when you mounted your guns and manned your fleets for your War of 1812-when the South fired upon Sumter-when Richmond fellwhen the President's life was taken. In all the ages, I have helped to celebrate the of genius, the achievements of triumph arms, the havoc of storm, fire, pestilence, and famine.

"Your career has been a stirring one. Might I ask how you came to locate in these dull Kansas woods, when you have been so accustomed to excitement during what I may If there is any power in Europe, or on God's term such a protracted period, not to put fine a point upon it?" "Listen. Once I was the honored servitor of the noble and the illustrious" (here he heaved a sigh and passed his hairy hand across his eyes), "but in these degenerate days I am become the slave of quack doctors and newspapers. I am driven from pillar to post and hurried up and down, sometimes with stencil-plate and paste brush to defile the fences with cabalistic legends, and some-times in grotesque and extravagant char-acter for the behest of some driving journal. I attended to that Ocean Bank robbery some weeks ago, when I was hardly rested from finishing up the pow-wow about the completion of the Pacific Railroad; immediately I was spirited off to do an atrocious murder for the New York papers; next to attend the wedding of a patriarchal millionaire; next to raise a hurrah about the great boat-race; and then, when I had just begun to hope that my old bones were to have a rest, I am bundled off to this howling wilderness to strip, and jibber, and be ugly and hairy, and pull down fences, and waylay sheep, and scare women and children, and waltz around with a club, and play 'Wild Man' generally—and all to gratify the whim of a bedlam of crazy newspaper scribblers ! From one end of this continent to the other, I am described as a gorilla, with a sort of human seeming about me-and all to gratify this quill-driving scum of the earth ! "Poor old carpet-bagger !" "I have been served infamously, often, in modern and semi-modern times. I have been compelled by base men to create fraudulent history and personate all sorts of impossible humbugs. I wrote those crazy Junius Let-ters; I moped in a French dungeon for tifteen years, and wore a ridiculous Iron Mask; I poked around your Northern forests, among your vagabond Indians, a solemn French idiot, personating the ghost of a dead Dau-phin, that the gaping world might wonder if we had a 'Bourbon among us:' I have played sea-scrpent off Nahant, and Woolly-Horse and What-is-It for the museum; I have 'interviewed' politicians for the Sun, worked all manner of miracles for the Herald; ciphered up election returns for the World, and thunip election returns for the World, and thun-dered political economy through the Tribune. I have done all the extravagent things that the wildest invention could contrive, and done them well, and this is my reward—play-ing Wild Man in Kansas without a shirt!" "Mysterious being, a light dawns vaguely

All of which is in strict accordance with the facts. Attest, MARK TWAIN. [L. S.]

BADEN-BADEN.

An Albany Divine Pays a Visit to the Great Gambling Palace. His Views and Impressions of Its Allurements.

The Rev. R. W. Clark, D. D., of Albany, N. Y., publishes the following letter from Baden-Baden in the New York Observer :---

Last evening I went to the famous gam-bling rooms here. Everything in and around them is made as attractive and enticing as possible. In all the world there is probably no gateway to hell so magnificently and beau-tifully decorated. The grounds, walks, trees, and flowers are arranged in the most artistic and tasteful manner.

A most elegant pavilion, brilliantly lighted, holds a large musical band, that fills the air with the sweetest strains. Seats are provided for the thousands of the fashionable from all lands who resort to the grounds. On the exterior of the edifice there are three signs. At the left 'Restauration:" in the centre, "Con-versation:" at the right, "Libraire." Certainly, very innocent words ! At the door, under the first, one may obtain refreshment if weary and hungry. Here his physical nature may receive "restauration." At the middle door he is invited to the benefits and pleasures of "conversation," He can converse with princes or blacklegs, with virtuous or vicious women, as he chooses.

In this hall are the gambling tables. At these there is no "conversation." Nothing is said: deeds only.

The wheel turns, and the little white ball that decides fortunes and destinies flies rapidly around. The victims place their silver and gold upon the numbers and squares on the table, and wait with the deepest anxiety for the ball to lodge in a particular cell. Grey-headed men and fashionable ladies, as well as young men, crowd around the tables to try their fortunes.

Of the amount successively placed upon the tables, I should judge from two-thirds to three-quarters were swept into the vortex of the bank. A few dollars would be here and there thrown to the outsiders, and occasionally a gold piece, but the lion's share went into the pocket of the proprietor. If this is the result of mere chance I should like to see the proof.

This institution is rented by the Government to a company for $5000 a year and a stipulation to expend in addition 250,000 florins on the walks and buildings. Everything in and around them indicates a profusion of wealth. If the gambling were fairly conducted upon the doctrine of chance, it is reasonable to suppose that in the long run the proprietor would lose as much as he gained. Whence, then, come his immense profits? The only inference that we can draw from the facts in the case, and from the course which other gamblers pursue, is that the company pay the Government more than $100,000 annually for the privilege of swindling the people of Europe, and, with the swindling, poisoning minds and blasting the hopes of young men, hardening grey-haired sinners, and adding to the profligacy of profli-gate women. And what shall we say of a Government that fills its treasury and fattens upon this villany?

We have been accustomed to regard a government as established to make and execute just laws to promote the interests and protect the rights of the people. But here is a government in the midst of enlightened Europe, in the middle of the nineteenth century, kept, in a measure, alive and vigorous by the spoils gathered, night after night, at this splendid gateway, through which men and women are allured to win, through which souls bearing God's image go down to everlasting perdition. earth, to sweep this gambling hell out of existence, that power ought to be exercised. Those false words, those enticing lies, "Restauration," "Conversation," "Libraire," ought to be instantly obliterated. These frescoed and gilded walls should be levelled to the dust and ground to powder. The musical band ought to be forced to play their last dirge over the ruins of this palace of the "King of Darkness." Or, if the edifice is permitted to remain, the signs on it ought to be changed for "Destruction," "Death in Silence," and "Intellectual Ruin," that the throngs at this watering place may know whither they are going when they pass the threshold of these fatal doors. Little are parents in America aware to what their sons are exposed who come here to make the usual European tour, which includes Baden-Baden. As I stood at one of the tables last evening. was startled to see a young man well known to me rapidly taking napoleons from his pocket, placing them upon the table, and as rapidly losing them. Disappointed at his want of success, he got a gold piece changed into silver and then placed these singly upon the table. the table. He won one piece about the value of a dollar, but lost I know not how many napoleons (a napoleon being four dollars of our money). I left my position to go to him and warn him of his danger; but before I reached him he withdrew and was lost to my sight in the crowd. I sought to find him, but in vain. This young man belongs to a wealthy family in the highest social rank in one of our cities, and could his father, mother and sisters have stood at the point which I occupied, and seen one upon whom they had lavished every advantage and the warmest affections thus caught in the snare of this sumptuous temptation, they would unite with every friend of virtue and humanity in the desire for its destruction. In the case of this young man his motive for gambling could not have been the desire for money, for he has in abundance all that he desires; and had this vice been presented to him in its naked and hideous features, he never could have yielded to it. But the splendor and fascinations around him had taken captive his whole being, and there he stood bartering away every good principle for gold that he did not need; selling his splendid birth-right, his grand opportunities in life for use-fulness, honor, and happiness for that which to him was loss than a mass of putage. to him was less than a mess of potage.

"Hence, horrible shape !"

It spoke again:--"Oh, pitiless fate, my destiny hounds me once more. I am called. I go. Alas! is there no rest for me?"

In a moment the Wild Man's features began to soften and refine, and his form to assume a more human grace and symmetry. His club changed to a spade, and he shouldered it and started away, sighing profoundly and shedding tears.

"Whither, poor shade?"

"To dig up the Byron family !"

Such was the response that floated back npon the wind as the sad spirit shook its ringlets to the breeze, flourished its shovel aloft, and disappeared beyond the brow of the hill.
