City Affairs. -A final hearing was had yesterday at the Central Station in the case of James Atwell, Robert Hamilton, and Thomas Eagen, charged with being concerned in the assault on Revenue Detective Brooks. Dr. Wier Mitchell was called to testify to the condition of Mr. Brooks, and said that he is doing very well; can go up and down stairs, and will be able, probably, to go out in a few days. At the same time he wished to state that, for the next few weeks, he incurs all the rath. all the risks any man would with a bullet in his body. The Alderman announced that the accused should enter ball in the sum of $5000 each for their appearance at the next term of the Quarter Sessions. Mr. O'Neill, on behalf of James Atwell, asked that the witness Lewis Wood be held to bail to appear and testify. The Alderman replied that it could only be done through an affidavit made by the defendant, to the effect that he believed, from information received, Wood was about to leave the jurisdic-tion of the Court. Such an affidavit was then made, and process was issued for the witness.

VIRGINIA.

Election of Senators-Important Correspon-dence. RICHMOND, Sept. 29 .- The following is the correspondence on the Senatorial question:-HEADQUARTERS FIRST MILITARY DISTRICT, RICHMOND, Va., Sept. 24, 1869.—Hon. Secretary of War, Washington—Sir:—The question of the election of Senators in the Congress of the United States by the Legislature, which will assemble in this city on the 5th proximo, is one great present interest in the State, and many applications have been made for a decision

The subject appears to be so free from difficulty, that I have not hesitated to express the opinion, unofficially, that the election of Senators was authorized and necessary to complete the reconstruction, and was prescribed by the law of July 25, 1865; but that it was not proper for me to make a decision upon a question that addressed itself so directly to the discretion of the Legislature after it was organized.

There are many, however, who are of the opinion that this action is in some way restricted by the opinion of the Attorney-General of August 28, 1869, and I have the honor to request that the question whether the Legislature of this State is authorized to elect Senators of the United States at the session which commences on the 5th of next menth, may be submitted to the Attorney-General for his opinion.

Very respectfully, sir, your obedient servant,
E. R. S. CANBY, Brevet Major-General U. S. A., Commanding. Attorney-General's Office, Sept. 25, 1869. -The President—Sir:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of this date, referring to me, for my opinion, a letter ad-dressed to the Secretary of War by General Canby, dated Sept. 24, 1869, which asks whether the Legislature of the State of Virginia is authorized to elect Senators of the United States at the session which commences on the fifth of next month, and desires that the question may be submitted to the Attorney-General for his opinion. The general views which I entertain of the functions of the Legislature of Virginia, elected in pursuance of the act of Congress of April 10, 1869, have been already fully indicated in the opinion transmitted to the Secretary of War, under date of August 28, 1869. I came to the conclusion that the members of the Legislature were not required to take the oath referred to in section nine of the statute of July 19, 1869, in order to qualify them to act as such members; that it was competent under the law for the Legislature to meet, organize, and do whatever was required or allowed by the acts of Congress, as preliminary to the reconstruction of the State, but that it was not competent for them to enact laws or otherwise to assume any of the functions of the Government of the State, if organized, without taking the oath above referred to, or if any of its members could not or did not take that oath. Upon a careful consideration, I am now of opinion that the election of Senators, like voting on the fourteenth and fifteenth amendments to the Constitution, is a part of the action contemplated by Congress as a preliminary to its full relation to the Government of the United States as one of the States of the Union. The Senators thus elected would have no power or authority until the Senate of the United States should have passed upon the validity of their action and admitted them as members of that body. Under the act of April 10, 1869, the election of members of the House of Representatives was permitted, and has taken place, and when Congress comes to act upon the whole question of the reconstruction of the State, it would seem equally proper that the members elected to both branches of the National Legislature should present themselves and be ready for admission to seats in their respective houses.

The election of Senators does not seem to me to transcend the action which comes within limited and qualified purposes requisite to re construction, but rather to be essential to the completeness of that action, and I think the military commanders should not interfere with or prevent it.

Very respectfully, E. R. HOAR,

Critique on Recent Historians. Professor Noah Porter, the able editor of the last edition of "Webster's Dictionary," thus criticizes the leading historians of the day in the recent issue of Hours at Home:-

The fact deserves notice that, of late, professed historians have indulged somewhat freely in romancing, especially when they attempt to give elaborate and elegant protraitures of their leading personages, in which the most lavish use is made of effective epithets and of pointed antitheses. Macaulay, among the recent historians, has set the fashion very decidedly in this direction. In his efforts to make history minute, vivid, and effective, he has often described like an impassioned advocate and painted like a retained attorney, with the most unsparing expenditure of contrasts and epithets. Carlyle gives sketches alternately in chalk and charcoal, that exhibit his saints and demons now in ghastliest white and then in the most appalling blackness; and yet in these bold and grotesque outlines there are many lines of which Michael Angelo would not have been ashamed. Froude, by research, eloquence, and audacity combined, attempts to reverse the settled historic judgments of all mankind in respect to the characters that had been "damned to everlasting fame." Bancroft and Motley abound in examples of this tendency to paint historical characters so much to the life, that the impression is made that the result is only a painting to which there never was a reality. The ghost of the miserable Philip II would suffer more than the purgatorial tortures which he dreaded and deserved so long, were he made to writhe under the unsparing pertinacity of Motley's invective, from which there is no release, and to which there is no termination; while the spirit of William the Silent would be more reserved and reticent than ever were he forced to listen to the perhaps not undeserved but the certainly unqualified laudations of his admiring narrator. The elaborate portraits of Bancroft, if they do nothing more, do most effectively set forth the historian's own conceptions of what sets off a man well in description, so intense is the coloring and so abundant are the adornments which he employs.
