Prison cases were resumed to-day.

Joseph Smith, a little, ugly, old-time thief, pleaded guilty to a charge of larceny. One Saturday morning, about six weeks ago, he went to a erccery store No. 712 S. Second street, and quiet's sat down upon the door-steps, just beside a cellar door, on which was a lot of codish; the propider of the store saw him, and concluded to watch his movements. Considering that everything was opporting for his project, he took a everything was opportune for his project, he took a bag from under his coat, and began coolly to put the fish into it, one by one, until he had appropriated the whole, and then started off. The storekeeper, becoming satisfied that the fellow was in earnest about it, thought best to stop him, and acted accordingly. Smith is a hard, knotty, desperate looking little man, and on every occasion he has been here, which has been frequent, the has never had more to say than "Not guilty," which, this time, he curtailed of the "not," it always having proved a surplusage in his cases.

James McFadden plead guilty to a charge of burglary. About 2 o'clock in the morning of Friday last he entered a house in Farson place, and stole a clock and coat; he had operated so quietly that sone of the inmates of the house were awakened, and was congratulating himself upon his fortunate escape, when an officer overhauled him at Beach and Noble streets, with the stolen articles in his possession, and took him into custody.

Wilson Harris pleaded guilty to a charge of the larcehy of a gold watch and chain valued at $275, belonging to Dr. William H. Bunn, and Edward Hawk, who was indicted with him but pleaded not guilty, was put upon trial for participating in the offense. The testimony was to the effect, that shortly after the fire at Patterson's warehous, the prisoners, with a man known to the descrives as "Carly Fank," went to the office of Dr. Bunn, No. 1943 Vinc Street, while he was engaged with a lady patient; he asked them what their business there was, but receiving no reply, he concluded they wished to see him privately, and therefore showed the lady into another anactpatient; he asked them what their business there was, but receiving no reply, he concluded they wished to see him privately, and therefore showed the lady into another apartment, leaving his vest, with his watch in it, in the office. Upon his return to the office they told him they were commissioned by the Hope Hose Company to solicit contributions for the relief of a fire man who had been injured at Patterson's fire. He told them he had no change at that time, but if they would tell him where to send the money he would make a contribution in a day or so. They insisted make a contribution in a day or so. They insisted upon receiving the money themselves, but as he was determined not to give it to them, they at length gave him a number in Utah street, and took their leave. Shortly afterwards the Doctor discovered his watch and chain had been stolen, and at once put the matter into the hands of Detective Miller, who issued circulars to all the paymbrokers, describing the watch and chain, and demanded their return should they come into the hands of any of the brokers, and learned that the watch had been pledged with Mr. Kass.

The broker at once sent the watch to Mr. Miller, and Doctor Bunn identified it as his property, though it had been somewhat altered since it had been out of his possession.

description of the men as given by Dr. Bunn fully answered that of the prisoners, and Harris upon his arrest owned up to his guilt, "Curly Frank" fled the jurisdiction and has not been arrested.

Their representation of authority to raise alms for suffering fremen was false, and it was learned that the signature of the president of the Hope Hose Company had been forged and used by them. The conviction of Hawk was urged by the District Attorney upon the ground that, though there was no direct proof that he had stoien the property, yet he was in company with two men, one said to be a profession and both out upon a base swindling tour. admission, and both out upon a base swindling tour, and was present at the commission of the crime, and all the circumstances warranted the presumption that he went there with the intention of doing this thing, and aided and abetted him in it. On behalf of the prisoner, it was argued that if he went there, though in company with dishonest men who perpetrated a thefs, yet without an intention to steal, his bare presence could not convict him, and unless there was the most positive proof of his com-plicity in the larceny, the jury could not force and strain inferences and presumptions upon which to base a verdict of guilty. The jury after an hour's deliberation rendered a verdict of guilty.

Hawk was again put upon trial for the larceny of a hat valued at $5, belonging to Dr. Mitchell, No. 1104 Pine st. It was testified that one night he and another man went to Dr. Mitchell's office and scated that there was an urgent case at a false number in Spruce street, which they wished him to attend. He refused to do so, and they went away, passing through an entry where the Doctor's hat was hanging, and when they had gone the hat was missed But nothing further was proved, and the jury

The Independent Ticket in the Fifteenth Ward -Mass Meetings, Conventions, Etc. -Last evening there was a very large meeting of the Republican citizens of the Fifteenth ward, who were favorable to running an independent ward ticket, held in the Mission House on Brandywine street, above Fifteenth. Dr. James M. Harris pre-sided, and Mr. John R. Semor acted as Secretary. sided, and Mr. John R. Semor acted as Secretary, After the objects for which the meeting was called had been stated by Thomas W. Price, Esq., a motion was made by Thomas Carson, Esq., that it was expedient to nominate an independent citizen's ward and Assembly ticket. This was debated at length, and several interesting statements were made by the gentlemen present. Mr. Price gave a long history of the career of Dr. Burnell, the candidate for Select Council, from which he drew the deduction that Barnell had not joined the Republican party from Burnell had not joined the Republican party from any patriotic motives, as during the Rebellion his Copperheadism was remarkable. The objection to Thomas R. Glenn, the candidate for Common Coun-Thomas R. Glenn, the candidate for Common Council, was that he was not in a condition, pecuniarily, to be able to devete the time that would be actually necessary to the duties that would be required. As to Colonel Davis, the sneaker did not believe he could be elected, and had prior to the nomination advised Colonel Davis to withdraw from the canvass. At this point a gentleman arose, and said that he was opposed to both Messrs. Burnell and Glenn, yet from a canvass he had made of three precincts, he did not deem it advisable to of three precincts, he did not deem it advisable to run an independent candidate for the Legislature. Being called on for the facts, the speaker said that ne had found that in the First precinct but 4 Repub licans objected to Colonel Davis, while 17 opposed Dr. Burnell. In the Second precinct 7 were opposed to Davis and 39 to Burnell, and in the Third precinct 12 opposed Davis and 49 Burnell. Mr. McAllister said he came from Twentieth and Parrish streets, where Mr. Davis was decidedly unpopular. Several of the citizens then stated that they could vote for Colonel Davis, but that they could nor would not support either Dr. Burnell or Mr. Glenn. Some other speakers believed that Colonel Davis would not stand in the way of the success of the party, and others asserted that he would not withdraw under any consideration. Finally, a motion was carried to proceed to nominate candidates for Select and Common Councils and for the Assembly. For the first position Benjamin F. Glenn, Esq., was selected, and for the second Chas D. Supplee, Esq., was named. When the subject of the Assembly candidate was taken up, Mr. Price said he hoped that some of the gentlemen who had so violently opposed Colonel Davis would name a good substitute. After waiting a few minutes a gentleman moved to postpone that nomination indefinitely.
Mr. Price said that it was not necessary to include the word indefinitely, whereupon a gentleman remarked, "Until November." The motion to postpone was carried by a clever majority.

The gushing sorrow of her bereavement had given place to a quiet pen-siveness and a susceptibility that won the hearts of numerous clerks, barkeepers, and boarders of the highly respectable hotel where this fair lady waited to meet her relatives, and look after business mat-ters. She halled from Grenada. The husband for whom she mourned had been, she said, a gallant soldier. After his death she had sought to drown her sorrows by participation in the gay life of Memphis, but wearying of this she came to Paducah. One of our hotels was a little too gay for her, or the young men liked her too much—she wasn't sure which—so she moved to another hotel, where she won the

she moved to another hotel, where she won the good will of everybody, and especially of a susceptible steamboat man. The widow had a slight attack of slokness, and the steamboat man was most attentive and kind. His good will deepened into love. He found that he could not live without the widow, so he offered her his hand; she had his heart already. The hand she accepted, and within a fortnight the happy pair were married. There were the customary cakes and wine and joility and general felicitations. Many envied the lucky steamboatman. On the very day after the wedding, the steamboatman was obliged to start on a trip. He wanted his bride to accompany him on the bridal tour on the boat, but she declared that it was impossible, as she had business matters that must be attended to, and hoped to meet the guardian of her infancy. So the fond husband confided his wife to the special care of the hotel folks, gave his wife to the special care of the hotel folks, gave her his money and bade her good by. The next day the widow's ousiness compelled her to go to May-neid. At the hotel had been a young ohioan, who seemed a little fast, but had not attracted much attention. He had been somewhat smitten with the widow, and she had given him some reason to be lieve that his feelings were reciprocated. Soon after the widow went out to Mayfield, it was discovered that the Ohioan was also missing, and it was not long until some one reported that the Mississipp widow and the young Ohioan had been seen together n the cars going towards Memphis. She had found her real affinity. He had carried off the steamboat-man's wife. Nothing has since been heard of them and it don't clearly appear how the bereaved hus band is to make an Enoch Arden of himself.—Pain

Despatch to The Econing Telegraph.

New York, Sept. 30.—A meeting of the Regular Board was held at noon, when the course of the Gold Board in suspending its rules was severely commented on. During the discussion a question arose as to whether the Board had a legal right to attach the securities of Lockwood & Co. It was decided by the President, Mr. Neilson, that where stock belonged to a firm which had failed, it was good for delivery, but must have the endorsement of a sitting member of the Board. This would necessarily bar any attachment on Lockwood & Co.'s securities. After some remarks from members, the President sold $250,000 gold on account of William Heath & Co., at 130%, cash. TRAIN.

He Sheds Light on the Financial Situation. This irrepressible genius must let himself out on all important occasions. The gold panic has given him a new hobby, and upon it he will exhaust all that wonderful store of logic, a sight of which he occasionally affords the people. This is the way in which he relieved his oppressed mind yesterday on Wall street:—

You say that the panic is over. It is not commenced. (Sensation.) Is your country richer than before the war? Does the killing of one million of your youth, the destruction of five thousand millions worth of property, add to the nation's wealth? (Sensation.) You call me insane. Were I as insane as you are, like Speyers, I would ask some one to shoot me. (Loud laughter.) Read my gold speech of four years ago. Read my speech delivered two years ago in the Stock Exchange. Did I not foretell plainly what was to come to pass? And so will I do again. years ago. Read my speech delivered two years ago in the Stock Exchange. Did I not foretell plainly what was to come to pass? And so will I do again. The panic, I repeat, is not yet begun. You lay all the blame on the gold gambiers. What ignorance! The Government is the chief gambler. It is the Government, I say, which cries stiaking lish on its own credit, by paying the soldiers' widows in greenbacks, and the foreigners who supplied the bullets to shoot those soldiers in gold. (Sensation.) You are selling bitch pups and stuffed and paper dogs for gold pointers and greyhounds. (Loud laughter.) On Friday last you bought and sold $500,000,000 in gold, and there are not more than $150,000,000 in specie in the entire country. Allow me to give to you a brief view of your financial condition and prespects. In 1800-61 gold to the amount of $500,000,000 was transferred from this country to the vaults of English bankers. Now, in arranging exchange, New Orleans draws on New York at sixty days, New York on London at sixty, which, counting twenty-five days more taken up in crossing the ocean, gives one hundred and forty-five days before the cash comes back into the hands of the American, while it only takes forty-five days to go to London, sell, and remit, so that the English bankers have the clear use of the money for one hundred days.

Let Grant demand instant payment of the Alabama claims, or offer the alternative—war. (Excitement among the Finglish brokers.) Otherwise let them drive out the British Minister, and tear down the British Consulate. (More excitement among the Englishmen.) You will find that it is as I tell you. This Wall street panic came from London. The name was fanned by Peter B. Sweeny and other enemies of the country, in order to affect the comming election, and get possession of the United States Treasury. Again, I say that the Government is the great gold gambler, and that fact answers for all.

I challenge any one to condute my statements, and I wish it distinctly understood that my ideas are not ne

Policy of England Towards Canada. Right Hon. Edward Cardwell, Secretary of State for the War Department, delivered a speech to his constituents at Oxford last even ing, on the subject of the policy of the Government towards Canada. He said the general policy of governing the colonies from the Home Government was a total failure, and there had consequently been substituted for it the policy to encourage them to develop their own power and resources, and stimulate them to a spirit of self-reliance. He showed how successful this policy had been in the case of Canada, and briefly reviewed the progress recently made by that colony. She already had an army of her own, and such a merchant navy that, if her people chose to adopt an act passed for the purpose, she might become one of the first maritime powers of the world,

The Great Gold Imbroudo-The Game of In-function Still in Play. Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. New York, Sept. 30.—One million of gold has been sold at the Regular Board on account of A. Speyer, at 132, cash. It was suggested that the gold business be transferred to the Open Board room, which would kill the Gold Board.

An injunction has been served on Townsend Cox, President of the Gold Board, forbidding him to carry out any outstanding contracts made by them on behalf of Smith, Gould, Martin & Co., or others, unless in strict conformity with the rules of the board as they existed prior to the making of said contracts. This knocks the suspension of rules decided on this morning, and renders the action of the board nugatory.

The feeling in the stock market is better, and prices have improved all round. At the Government sale of one million in gold, awards were made at prices ranging from 130-13 to 131-05. Central, 1641/4; Erie, 311/4; Reading, 931/4; Northwestern, 6814; preferred, 82%; Harlem, 125;

NEW YORK, Sept. 30 .- Several suits and injunctions resulting from the great gold battle were commenced and served to-day. Smith, Gould, Martin & Co. represent that they made transactions to the extent of forty millions of dollars, and enjoin a score of members of the Gold Exchange from calling for delivery, as con-trary to the rules of the Gold Exchange and Clearing House, it being the custom to settle balances and not for full transactions.

Nine fire alarms were sounded in twelve hours yesterday. The loss by the various fires amounted to $40,000. Fifteen buildings were destroyed on Archer avenue, throwing many poor families out of homes. A barn on Illinois street, which contained twenty-two horses, was also consumed. The horses having become unmanageable, could not be rescued, and all perished.
