The Philadelphia Library. No. 3.

To the Editor of the Evening Telegraph.

Living institutions are best managed by living

State debt has been reduced. In the light of men; but there is a strong propensity in old men, especially those who are childless, to attempt, in their last wills, to regulate the march of events long after they have bidden farewell to earth. It is one of the weaknesses of age, and Dr. James Rush's will exhibits strong marks of it. He lays down a number of "conditions, restrictions, and directions" relating to the new combined library, cemetery, and publication office. One of them is the following:-

"Fifth. I do not wish that any work should be excluded from the library on account of its difference from the ordinary or conventional opinions on the subjects of science, government, theology, morals, or medicine, provided it contains neither ribaldry nor indecency."

In carrying this condition or direction into effect, the directors of the library should be obliged to place upon their shelves the writings of atheists, denying the existence of a God, for a belief in His existence is an ordinary opinion; works advocating polygamy and free-love, for a preference for lawful matrimony is an ordinary opinion-provided only that these atheistical and licencious books contain neither ribaldry or indecency, which may easily be managed. Who would like to send a young person to a library conducted on such a plan as this? It would become a very cesspool of literature.

The committee appointed at or after the meeting in June has published its report. It is a compromise report, proposing to accept the legacy in words, and to get rid, in great part, of the condition as to the location of the library prescribed by Dr. James Rush, and which his most estimable executor proposes, very properly, to carry out. The Philadelphia Library is to be, like Sir Boyle Roche's bird, "in two places at once." This, I think, neither satisfies the directions of the will nor the wishes of the shareholders. Suppose one of us calls at the present building for a book, he may be told that the library owns such a work, but that it is a mile and a half off at the cemetery and publication house. By the aid of the street cars he can reach that point in about half an hour, if he can spare

The usefulness of the library would be greatly impaired by any such arrangement. Let us squarely come up to the point to be decided, and either reject or accept the legacy, clogged with the removal of all our books to so inconvenient a location as Broad and Christian streets. This is what Dr. James Rush expected us to do, and this is what we are bound to do.

NEWS SUMMARY.

-At the session of the Philadelphia Library Company, held yesterday afternoon, with reference to the acceptance of the Rush bequest, Mr. Fraley offered the following resolution:-Resolved, That a vote of the stockholders be taken upon each of the resolutions offered in the committee's report and upon the amendment offered by Mr. Phillips, separately, on this day two weeks, between the hours of 10 A. M. and 4 P. M., the vote to be recorded by two tellers ap-pointed by the chair, and that due notice of the vote be given in all the newspapers. Carried. "Blacksmith Dan," has been arrested in St. Louis. Information to this effect was received by the Mayor yesterday. "Blacksmith Dan," it will be remembered, was captured in this city some months since, for the attemptedlarceny of silk from a store in Market street, and was committed for trial. He was not long incarcerated within the walls of Moyamensing, for a kind friend appeared before the magistrate who had heard the case, and was accepted as bail for Dan's presence in Court when desired. The prisoner, on gaining his freedom, at once left the city. He will be brought to this city.

A Mass Meeting of Republicans.

An immense meeting of Republicans was held last evening in front of the Union League

House. The building was illuminated, and a fine display of fireworks was made during the evening. Mr. Gibbons, who called the meeting to order, nominated Hon. William Strong as the President. Before introducing Mr. Strong, Mr. Gibbons stated that Hon, George S. Boutwell was unable to be present on this occasion, but would be in the city and address the people on Saturday evening next, if it was deemed ad-

Nothing can be more secure than a well-spent life. If a man has been true to the honor of his country and true to the union of the country in the past, we may expect him to be true in the future. Such a man is presented for your suffrages on Tuesday next. Whatever may be said of his competitor, we know that Governor Geary has been true to the country, and has bared his breast to the enemies of his country. (Cheers.) The officers and men of the old West Gulf Squadron, under Admiral Farragut's command at the capture of New Orleans in 1862, will be glad to learn that there is a prospect of their ob-taining at last their shares of prize money for the destruction of the Rebel fleet and the capture of Rebel vessels in the Mississippi river, during the assault upon New Orleans. Yesterday morning, in the Washington District Court, the various counsel representing the naval officers engaged in that enterprise appeared by appointment to discuss the cases heretofore brought in that court involving the right of the navy to head-money for the destruction of the Rebel ficet, and also to prize-money for the captures made at New Orleans.

General B. F. Butler, counsel for Admiral Farragut and the interests he represents; J. Hubley Ashton, counsel for Admiral Porter representing the mortar flotilla and the vessel below Forts St. Philip and Jackson; Mr. Wilson, for Admiral Bailey; and Mr. Mills, for Commodore Boggs, argued the questions whether the whole fleet are entitled to share in the headmoney, or the vessels separately destroying the Rebel vessels, and whether the Rebel land batteries should be computed in determining the relative strength of the Rebel vessels. The Court referred the case of head-money to a commisioner to take testimony and report. If the Rebel naval force should be held to be greater than the Federal force, by means of the land and other defenses near the forts, the navy will receive two hundred dollars for every man on the Rebel flect. Otherwise, one hundred dollars
