THE BEILIES CASE.

An Effort to Habeas Corpus McLanghlin, the Hack-driver - He Declines the Professed Favor, and Refuses to he Interviewed by

In the case of the attempted assassination of in the case of the attempted assassination of United States Detective Brooks, it appears that the relatives and friends of Neil McLaughlin, the hack-driver, who is in custody, retained John Cochran, Rsq., as coursel for his defense, and when that gentleman called at the Sixth district Station-house, where the prisoner was confined, Lieutenant Killacky, the officer in charge, refused to allow him to communicate with the prisoner, because the latter had expressed no desire to see counsel. A writ of habeas corpus was then taken out for the production of the prisoner in Court, in order to obtain a judicial order for the allowance of an interview with the prisoner by the attorney. The writ was returnable this morning before Judge writ was returnable this morning before Judge Ludlow, in the Court of Quarter Sessions, and in proper time the efficer was in attendance, with the Cechran explained, in answer to this, that the relatives and friends of this young man had called upon him to appear for his defense, and as they could not communicate with him, he, of course, could not have signed the petition, or known of its having been signed, or have given any instructions at all to counsel; and under these circumstances he thought the subscription of the prisoner's next friend was sufficient. Judge Ludlow said he would hold the motion to

Mr. Cochran wished to know what he was to do in the meantime. If he was to appear as the prisoner's consel, he thought he should certainly be allowed to consult with him; if he was not granted this privilege, he would withdraw from the case. ludge Ludlow-But the prisoner says you are not

The Assassins in New York-Efforts to Free them-Prospects of their Detention. As has been previously stated, a habeas corpus was sued out before Judge McCunn, or New York, a judge of shaky fame, who has the reputation of doing any kind of illegal legal business for lucre, to secure the release from custody of James Dougherty and Hugh Marra, charged with shooting Revenue Officer Brooks. This same judge issued writs of rous and certiorari, returns de vesterday

On the hearing it was contended on behalf of the prisoners that there was not sufficient evidence to detain or remand them to the custody of the Penn detain or remand them to the custody of the Fenn-sylvania authorities. In opposition it was contended by the District Autorney that the evidence was suf-ficient to establish their gulli, and at his request an adjournment of the case was had until 10 o'clock to-

Fears are entertained in this city that the application before McCann may prove successful, but even if it does, we are at liberty to state that other and outside measures have been taken to secure their immediate rearrest, which can hardly be thwarted. The public is yet to learn of the difficulties impeding the officers of justice in working up the case, getting on the trail of the assassins, and enveloping them in the meshes of the law by proper a fidavits and writs. Even the elements seemed to conspire to ald the escape of the dastards. The late flood, by preventing the running of railway trains, and delaying the sau-ing of boats, has obstructed the officers in their pas-sage from point to point to such a degree as to rensage from point to point to such a degree as to render it probable that they may not be on hand at the proper time before the New York authorities with the needful papers. But the williams cannot altogether escape. Of this fact the public may be assured.

BLACK AND WHITE .- A few weeks since William O. George, a prominent citizen of Richmond, Va., died there, leaving an estate valued at about $250,000. As soon as his death was made known, preparations were made by some colored people in this city to secure possession of his estate. Their claim is based upon an alleged marriage between Mr. George, who was a white man and an "F.F. V." of the old school, and a colored woman named Caroline Jackson. The marriage took place in this city on the 21st of April last, and a certificate to this effect has just been forwarded to Richmond, to be used as evidence in the suit now pending in the Hustings Court at that place. It appears that Caroline was formerly a slave of Mr. George, and that he esteemed her so highly that the twain became the parents of a numerous family. Before the abolition of the peculiar institution, Mr. George manumitted his favorite servant, and sent her to this city, where she has since resided. Last April, as already stated. claim is based upon an alleged marriage between she has since resided. Last April, as already stated, that marriage ceremony was gone through with for the purpose of legitimations the children, and they and the widow are now attempting to esta blish their right to his estate, with what prospects of success time alone will show. This case of practical miscepenation cannot, unfortunately for the Demo-eratic party, be evedified to the teachings of the Wicked radicals of these inter-days, but is directly chargeable to an old and tun-shooned Democratic custom-prevailing in the Southern States before the war. We need not, therefore, expect to find it taxes up and commented upon in savage terms by the Democratic press.

SPAIN.

The "Thunderer" on the Trouble with America. From the Landon Times, Sept. 25.

He must be a clever man who can tell what are at the present moment, the intentions of the United States Government with respect to Cuba. There is a party in the Union, as we all know, which favors non-intervention in the affairs of that island; there is another which approves the course taken by General Sickles with respect to the Cuban question; and there, finally, is a government, or, at least, a man at its hearl, named General Grant, who vibrates between these two conflicting tendencies as a pendu-lum, and who may either resolve upon recalling his diplomatic agent or instruct him to demand an answer to the note about Cuba. There can-not, in the meantime, be two opinions as to the blundering of that gallant General whom the Cabinet at Washington have chosen to do duty for them as a diplomatist in Madrid. He has evidently at the outset assumed a tone which the Spaniard could not brook, and he has been "frightened"—no other word could thoroughly convey our meaning— at the result of his demands; he has been too surthat the Spanish Cabinet declines to consider any American proposition, and also that they could, in any event, rely on the support of Austria and France. There is no doubt that the prospect of the France. There is no doubt that the prospect of the sale or loss of Cuba had given rise to a very general and violent commotion in Madrid, and that Serrane's Government must, in any transaction leading to that result, be extremely careful not to wound the national susceptibilities. There is no question as to the readiness of the Spanish people to fight against all odds or to undergo all hardships whenever they conceive that their honor is at stake.

* * As for the solution of the Caban question,

As for the solution of the Caban question, justice will help Spain much better than force, Before they waste men and money from a mere point of honor, the Spani gras should consider they really have a valid cause in the Antilles. How-ever anxious Europe might be to recognize the validity of their rights, she would still have to in-quire into the use that is made of those rights, Europe has shrunk in America from what she deemed a just and generous cause. It is not impos sible that Austria and France might feel tempted sible that Austria and France might feel tempted to recover in Cuba that prestige which they lost in Mexico. But they must have it in their power to refute American assertions that the war in Cuba is carried on "in a manner contrary to all the principles of humanity." They must incur no risk of complicity with deeds of bloodshed and violence which modern civilization disavows; they must not seem bent on bearing out Spain in pretensions which should clash with the equal rights and with the reasonable demands of her colonies. Ansieus usque ad aram ought to be a rule in public as well as in private transactions. Principles of rightconsness ought to prevail over more considerations of political ought to prevail over mere considerations of political interest or expediency. The Spaniards may certainly have a right to treat their colonists as they please; but the world's sympathics will be with them in proportion as their treatment of those colonies is proved to be just and merciful.

What is it, and what will care it? It is a fact that will not be controverted that Dyspepsia is a national disease, to be found from the Presidential mansion to the humble cottage along the marshes of the Atlantic. Symptoms.—There are scareely two cases of Dyspepsia alike. The symptoms vary. In one case they may be cold hands and feet, oppressive soreness and pain in the pit of the stomach, drowsiness after meals. In another, costiveness, heartburn (so called), tormenting feelings, both mental and physical. In a third, nervousness, the spirits depressed, a foreboding of evil, the mind so depressed that in some cases there is extreme melancholy, and the sufferer is led to commit suicide. In another, harassing belchings, saliva or a watery substance profusely running from the mouth, throat irritated with a dry cough, skin dry, then cold, the stools clay colored, restlessness at night, sleep easily disturbed, frightful dreams, at one time bowels constipated, then diarrhosa or dysentery, caused by foul matter in the stomach, causing apoplexy and other diseases beyond the power of human skill to control. What will cure it? By indigestion the food lies in the stomach and is decomposed by heat, etc., into a mucus; this mucus adheres to the walls of the stomach until a false membrane is formed, which paralyzes the functions of the digestive organs. To perform a cure this false membrane must be detached, and the stomach healed and brought back to natural tone; without effecting this, it is impossible to effect a cure, and in this mode of treatment lies Dr. L. Q. C. WISHARP'S wonderful. cures of the Dyspepsia. The Dyspepsia Pills remove the false lining, and the Pine Tree Tar Cordial heals, making a perfect cure of this dreadful disease.

THE VIRTUES OF TAR.

A very ingenious "sell" upon the Royal Soclety of Great Britain was perpetrated by Sir Charles Hanbury Williams, a wicked wag of the age, during the furore caused by the discovery of the wonderful healing powers of TAR. WATER Sir Charles sent a communication to the President relating the circumstances of a sailor's breaking his leg on board of the guardship at Chatham, and its perfect union and cure by an application of spun oakum soaked in tar. After the communication had been read and printed in the Royal Transactions, he sent a second letter, stating that he had forgotten to state in the former correspondence that the leg was a wooden one! Although this joke was a sore one for the society, it did not injure the reputation of Tar as a remedy, for its legitimate cures were so wonderful that odes were written in its praise, and the celebrated Bishop Berkely published two voluminous works describing, endorsing, and registering its virtues. From the failure of scientific men, at that period, to extract and concentrate the curative principle from the crude tar, its nauseousness caused it to fall into disuse, and its great healing powers were lost to mankind until Dr. L. Q. C. Wishart succeeded in depriving the specific of its unpleasant and eruder particles, and in his PINE TREE TAR CORDIAL offering to the afflicted all that was valuable, while the other parts were eliminated by its careful preparation. As soon as this was accomplished the remedy was again endorsed by the faculty, and the cures were such as to convert its enemies and firmly establish it as one of the greatest blessings to suffering humanity. Its success was immediate and wide-spread, and its manufacture became of great importance and a source of wealth to its reviver. A long life was spent for the welfare of mankind by Dr. Wishart in perfecting his discovery and promulgating its usefulness, and at his decease (which took place but recently) the method of preparation an the extension of its usefulness devolved upon his

It cures colds and coughs with marvellous celerity, and is the only preparation which approaches to a specific. It does not cover and patch up, but cradicates disease by removing the cause, and for obstinate, long-continued catarrhs, and consequently of the incipient stages of consumption, is the only certain remedy in the pharmacopola. It would be a waste of the reader's time to enumerate cases, for the remedy is so well known, its virtues have been so thoroughly tested, that eulogy is superfluous and reference not requisite. Not only as an internal remedy is it valuable, but externally it heals sores and irritations, and as a pleasant famigator in the sick room stands above all
