

FIRST EDITION LORD AINSLEY.

He Turns Out to be a Common Blackleg Where all the Fine Clothes, the Revenue, and Presents Came From—The Horror of His Fiancée, the Victim of a Confidence-Not-bleman.

New York is again all agog with wonder and amazement. One of its sweetest dreams has been again dispelled. It fondly believed that a genuine lord was vegetating within its limits.

The short and mysterious career of the individual calling himself Lord Ainsley, who has been so conspicuously agitated our Newport fashionables, and since his sudden and unexpected departure, many inquiries have been made regarding his position, parage, title, and means.

His death at Newport. We first made the acquaintance of "Lord" Ainsley in July last, at Newport, where he was at that time quite prominent, but, strange to say, was registered in the hotel books as "Mr. L. Le Roy, London, England."

While we were at Newport, he was introduced to the beautiful Miss Martin, of Staten Island, with whom he had fallen desperately in love.

From the Springs he came to New York, and at once commenced to entertain in such an unusual style of elegance and liberality as to excite the attention of the fashionable world.

Soon after this entertainment, Lord Ainsley suddenly left for his country, and was supposed to have gone to visit his "old friend Prince Arthur."

It was learned on the boat and most trustworthy authority that the lady was no longer at all. There was a gambler, a frequenter of low places, and, in a word, an adventurer.

In my opinion, if the capital is changed from Washington to the West, a new place will be chosen on the Mississippi river several hundred miles above St. Louis, and the parties to be immediately benefited will be willing to make use of our St. Louis inducements to get the idea started.

FOREIGN NEWS.

ITEMS FROM OUR EUROPEAN EXCHANGES. We make the following excerpts from our latest foreign files:—

On its Losses. The London Morning Post says it is understood that the Morning Star, a daily paper started by the late Mr. Brewster, is to be discontinued.

Posthumous Honors. Although the man Edward Martin, who died in King's College Hospital, was declared by the coroner's jury not to be the same person as the one who died among the Brotherhood, and his funeral, on October 10, was made the occasion of one of the largest public demonstrations that has taken place in London since the death of the Princess.

The Latest English Tragedy. The village of Whitton, situated about midway between London and Liverpool, was, on October 15, the scene of a tragic occurrence.

The Miners' Strike in France. The following particulars are given in the Journal Officiel. For several days the miners at St. Etienne have been on a strike, but an arrangement has been made.

Incidents About Him, and Their Result. Meanwhile the mother of the novice had hastily despatched to London an intimate friend to ascertain all that she could of the mysterious disappearance.

Consequences of the Discovery. Upon gaining this intelligence, which she had anticipated, Mrs. Ainsley was seized with a violent attack.

A Few Developments in that Syracuse Giant Case. The reporter of the Auburn News has visited the gypsies figure recently dug up in Onondaga county.

SHERMAN. His Views on the Removal of the Capital. HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE UNITED STATES, Washington, D. C., Oct. 18, 1869.
