GOV. GEARY'S TRUE CHARACTER. GOVERNOR GEARY has come to our rescue and substantiated everything which has been published in these columns in opposition to his claims upon the position which he now holds and to which he has just been re-elected. The correspondence between him and the ex-Attorney-General, Hon. Benjamin H. Brewster, which we publish elsewhere, proves him to be a man of ungenerous instincts. who is capable of degrading the high office which he has held for three years, and to which he has just been re-elected, and whose word is quite unworthy of belief. We are not the champions of the ex-Attorney-General, having joined in the demand for his removal, because there was sufficient evidence to show that his incumbency of the office was detrimental to the Republican party, as well as in opposition to the best interests of the Commonwealth. But Mr. Brewster has been guilty of no act, either as a man or an officer, that warrants such treatment as he has received at the hands of Governor Geary. Indeed, if he had proven himself to be as ntterly unfit for the position which he has just vacated as is the Governor himself, there would have been no justification or excuse for the latter to convict himself of falsehood and duplicity before the people who have twice honored him with the highest office in their gift. If there was any just reason for desiring the removal of Mr. Brewster from his position-and we believed and still believe that there was-the removal could and should have been effected in a fair, open, honorable. and dignified manner. The correspondence, however, shows that it was brought about in a manner directly the reverse of all this. On the 30th of July last, the Hon. John

Covode, as chairman of the Republican State Central Committee, addressed a note to Mr. Brewster, in which he requested the resignation of that gentleman for the good of the party, concluding with these words: -"This position has not been taken hastily, or without the approval of the Governor, who authorizes me to write this letter." We have been assured by Mr. Covode that this assertion on his part was strictly true, and John Covode is too wise a man and too skilful a politician to permit himself to be guilty of falsehood, even if he would not scorn a resort to such an unpardonable device on high moral grounds. But no sooner had the substance, if not the exact words, of Mr. Covode's note been given to the public in changing tides of political feeling, is now these columns, than Governor Geary practically demonstrated by incidents as dishastened to assure Mr. Brewster, through a graceful as they are impressive. There is by him, coupling with this assurance the re- the new appointees do infinitely more quest that he would disregard its contents. But Governor Geary was not content with this indirect display of his proclivities, and only two weeks ago sought Mr. Brewster in person, and, in the words of the latter, "said that all of the action of Mr. Covode * * * mas unauthorized, and in severe terms condemned his conduct as brutal and meriting punishment. Here we have the true character of Governor Geary set forth in the boldest relief, and we sincerely trust that his most devoted partisans are edified and gratified by the spectacle. Previous to his renomination, as well as subsequent to it, we warned the Republican party and the people of the utter unfitness of the man for the position of Governor of a great State like Pennsylvania, and for so doing were severely taken to task by his friends and pretended admirers. But they were quite as well convinced of the truth in the matter as we were, having access to the same sources of information. The interests of designing politicians and a false and pernicious theory of party devotion prevailed. however, and Geary was renominated, to the imminent peril of the Republican cause in the State. Fortunately or unfortunately, as each man who voted for him chooses to regard it, he was again endorsed by the people, but it was a close scratch, and he barely escaped the defeat which he so well deserved on the grounds of personal unfitness. "He carned long ago the distrust of his party," says the Morning Post, a journal which defended and supported him through thick and thin during the recent canvass; "and his re-election by a majority thousands less than that of Judge Williams was due only to the necessity of defeating Packer." If the entire Republican press of the State had been as thoroughly devoted to the interests of the Republican party as THE EVENING TELEGRAPH and the Pittsburg Commercial, his renomination would have been impossible, and both the party and the State would have been saved from the crowning disgrace which has now been heaped upon them. The requisite courage was wanting, however, and the journals which gave their hearty and unflinching support to Geary have now the proud satisfaction of being compelled to swallow their own fulsome praise of him, and partaking of the responsibility for his disgraceful disregard of truth and decency. The Morning Post, for one, has acknowledged its fatal mistake, and says this morning, in addition to the words we have quoted: -"The mere change of one man for another is not The mere change of one man for another is not the question. The crime is not that Mr. Brewster is removed, for that might have been honorably effected, but that Geary accomplished his object in a coverally and deveiful manner. The crime is that he has surrendered his administration to the worst men in the party; to them he must henceforth look for the support which he has hitherto had from men of honor and ancerty. He has diagraced the office he holds not the surface of the office he had been given to be state, and hereafter he must be watched holds and the State, and hereafter he must be watched as no Governor of Permentensia has ever been before." , But the lesson which this whole disgraceful juries. The peculiar relation which police-

Evening Telegraph affair teaches is one that was imperatively men bear to the community makes it far demanded, and we trust that it will not be more important to community makes it far and the Republican managers in the State. When another like unto Geary comes before the people for endorsement, he will doubtless succeed in some proportion to his just deserts

POSTMASTER HINGHAMS LAST

In these days of political jobbery it is such a rare thing to get a thoroughly competent man in the most important official positions, that the public can well congratulate themselves in having the Post Office of this city administered by such a man as General Henry H. Bingham. There is no denving that this gentleman is the best Postmaster that we have ever had in Philadelphia. He has given his whole attention to the improvement of the workings of the office, and he has labored with the utmost enthusiasm to make it the model Post Office of the country. The carrier system he has brought to a high degree of perfection, and with the almost military discipline that he has introduced he has rendered the delivery of letters prompt, certain, and in every way satisfactory to the business community and the citizens at large. On our third page we publish a letter addressed by General Bingham to the Postmaster-General, in which he asks permission to introduce another improvement by doing away with the five sub-post offices that now exist within the city limits. He demonstrates clearly the utility of this movement, on the grounds that these stations are not necessary for the convenience of the public, that they are costly, that they cause frequently an unnecessary circumlocution in the delivery of letters, and that they prevent him from having the whole carrier force under his immediate control and supervision. General Bingham states that he is well assured that the change will involve no inconvenience to the public, or increase of force or of expenditure, but, on the contrary, that it will benefit both the public and the department. The reasoning of the Postmaster appears to be conclusive on all the points that he advances, and we hope that the Postmaster-General will splace the matter entirely in his hands and allow him to make such arrangements as he may see fit. General Bingham, during the whole time that he has been at the head of the Philadelphia Post Office, has proved himself to be emphatically the right man in the right place. He has shown an administrative ability that is rare, and if President Grant should ever have occasion for a new chief of the Post Office Department, he will not have to look further than Philadelphia to find him.

THE POLICE-HOW CAN IT BE PRO-PERLY CONSTITUTED?

It is a matter of vital importance to the people of Philadelphia that the police force of this city should be reorganized and purified at the earliest possible moment. All that has ever been said of the evils of injurious partisan changes, and of the necessity of placing the police force above the reach of the everpecial messenger, that it was unauthorized no doubt that a considerable portion of harm than good, and that this unhappy city is therefore doomed to support a standing army which, in no inconsiderable portion of its ramifications, wars against the society it is sworn to defend. There can be no malappropriation of the public money at once more useless and more dangerous than the payment of salaries to men who are the serviceable allies of rowdies, scoundrels, thieves, and assassins, and who, while playing the part of spies and traitors to the cause of good order, evince superhuman zeal and resolute daring in their efforts to baffle justice. Each day adds to the melancholy array of proofs that the city has fallen into the hands of the Philistines, and that the guardians on whom we should be able to rely confidently for protection constitute one the worst sources of danger, have passed beyond the era in which these evils were made apparent by the frequency of crime into the still more dangerous stage in which the complicity and delinquencies of a portion of the police force are patent to every intelligent citizen. And no better evidence that we are still going from bad to worse is needed than the fact that the few remaining monuments of Mayor Fox's mercy-the men who had gained a reputation for efficiency and good conduct which commanded the respect of all parties-are discharged at the very moment that the necessity for leavening the mass of inexperienced, incompetent, and faithless officers is most clearly and painfully apparent.

The remedy for these evils is indicated by the example of all other leading cities. It is the height of folly to expect a faithful and efficient police force if all its members are subject to dismissal by every new Mayor. The law or custom which permits this is the most fatal defect in our municipal system, and it continually places order, property, and life in unnecessary jeopardy. In the present state of parties in Philadelphia no body of policemen should be constituted wholly of either Democrats or Republicans. An abundance of men could be found in the ranks of either of the leading political organizations whose fidelity, fitness, and capacity have been demonstrated since consolidation; and with a force once fairly organized out of the best material of all the old forces and new applicants, there should in future be no dismissals, except for cause, and no new appointments prompted by purely partisan motives. The interests of all good citizens would be promoted by such an arrangement. and the day cannot be far distant when it will become absolutely necessary for municipal protection. The principle on which it is based is sustained not only by the action of other large cities, but by the comparatively new legislation of this Commonwealth to evert the evil of the selection of partisan prompted Mayor Fox to disorganize and derange the entire force, than it was to prevent the exclusive selection of Democratic jurymen in Democratic counties, or in national affairs to prevent the army from being constituted exclusively of either Republicans or Democrats.

We understand that the establishment of a new police system will again attract the attention of the State Legislature at the coming session. If it is possible to consider the subject in a candid and impartial spirit, we hope that a practicable mode will be devised for organizing a permanent force fairly composed of the best policemen that can be found in both parties. But if this is not possible, the Legislature should at least relieve Philadelphia of the dangers to which she is now daily and hourly exposed by the bad or inefficient members of the present force. All the motives which prompted a consideration of this subject last winter have been intensified by subsequent experience, and there can be no excuse now, on the part of Republican Senators and Representatives, for further hesitation. It is no longer a question of party domination, but one of protection for property and life. If treated in this spirit, there is no conceivable reason why our citizens should appeal in vain for legislative interposition.
