ITY INTELLIGENCE. THE YOUNG MEDICOS.

Opposition to Pennie Interserence—The Young Since the fiare-up (to use a vulgarism) of last saturday, the little world composed of the students saturday, the little world composed to the students at the Jefferson of the University of Pennsylvania and the Jefferson Medical College has been laboring under what might properly be styled an intense fever of excitement. Meetings have been held, committees appointed, and consultations held, which have resulted merely in the passage of resolutions, announcing that neither parties will attend any of the clinics to which females are allowed admittance. To-day a calm appears to have set in, and the young medicos talk more rationally, and their conversation carries with it much greater force than the windy outpourings of Menday and Tuesday.

The young men are not disposed to treat the ladies unfairly, neither do they desire to insuit their feelings in any way, but base their objections to their admittance to the same clinics on these grounds:—That many cases of interest to them professionally cannot be brought forward on account of the presence of females. It is true the ladies say that they do not wish to attend when there are objectionable cases; but, argue the young men, at times there is do not wish to attend when there are objectionable cases; but, argue the young men, at times there is no telling what is to be the nature of the case brought forward. They do not object to the females brought forward. They do not object to the females on account or through fear of competition, but on the contrary are willing that they shall have the same chance for advancement, and are ready to ald them as much as possible; but they do strenuously object to the mixture of the sexes.

During a short conversation with one of the University students this morning, he informed us that all of his fellows of both colleges would refrain from visiting the leges would refrain from visiting the clinics until the matter is definitely settled, and led us to believe that the faculty of Jefferson Colled us to believe that the faculty of Jenerson College was about to take some action, but a visit paid that body reveated the fact that they are not disposed to move in the matter just yet. They wish to let it develop still further. These gentlemen also state that they are not disposed to place any barriers in the way of the ladies, but they do not conscientiously think that the thing will work. They are in layer of carrying on the old system, and allowing the temales to attend clinics of their own separately. They allege that in many cases the natural modesty of the patients prevents them from presenting them-selves before Temale students; and they argue that selves before termine students; and they argue that the females are wrong is their persistency.

So far as consultations or assistance in any other form is desired, they feet sure that the young men will aid the ladies so far as in them lies the power; but the mixing of the sexes at clinics they hold is deleterious to both parties, and can never be sec-

THE EMPIRE PASSENGER RAILWAY .- Our roaders doubless remember the passage of a bill by our State Legislature last winter granting permission to a certain set of individuals to lay passenger railway a certain set of individuals to lay passenger allway tracks upon the only two remaining streets of any account then unoccupied. The affair at the time caused as little amount of talk amongs our citizens, many of whom objected to the numopolizing of the streets set forts in the bill, namely, Twelfs and Sixteenth streets. No further action, however, was taken, and the matter was allowed to lie dormant antilla day or two ago, when the depositing of they rais, w.c., along Sixteenth street led the residents thereof to believe that the work was about to commence, and in this judgment they were right.
This morning a firree of about one hundred men, arrest win picks axes, showeds, etc., commenced testing up Sixtee th street in the neighborhood of Southestreet, and from the force employed doubtless a considerable portion of the road will be held beof the winter causes a suspension a dose of medicine, it is supposed that he had swal-lowed some poisonous compound in mistake. Coroner Paylor investigated the case, and found that the deceased had been in the habit of going fato one of the wards of the Almshouse and taking fincture of ginger. Yesterday he went into the room, and, complaining of feeling unwell, took down a bottle of carbolic acid in mistake for the girger, and swallowed a dose. In ten minutes there-after he was dead. This is the first recorded case of death from carbolic acid.

A MONEY DRAWER ROBBED .- R. A. Hance is the keeper of a drug store at No. 729 Arch street. Yesterday afternoon two men came in, and, while price ing derivan articles, a third entered, who purchased some licorice. He retired, and a fourth came in and also knyested in licorice. He left, and was followed by the two first named. Last evening Mr. Hance discovered that his drawer had been emptied of about 270, the absence of which he charged to the account four men, but, unfortunately for him, they had got beyond his reach.

Non Compos Mentis.—About 120 o'clock this morning the attention of the watchman at the Market street ferries on the Delaware was attracted to an individual who was endeavoring to clamber ever the fence. The individual was discovered to be saboring under the influence of whisky, and on being questioned sincoughed out that he resided in West Philadelphia, and wanted to get on the bridge to go over the river. As he was in the wrong locality, he was taken to a Walnut street car and sent home.

INFANTICIDE.

A Preacher and his Wife Under Arrest for the Orime.

The Pottsville Miners' Journal says:—On Friday last, upon the arrival of a passenger train at Ringtown station, on the Catawissa Radiroad, in this county, a man and woman, well dressed and of respectable appearance, got off, the woman carrying in her arms an infant. They went successively to several houses, and he introduced himself as a Methodist minister, and the woman with him as his wife and a school teacher anxious to get employment. The infant with them, he said, he wanted some one to adopt, and asked the inmates to take the child for two days. No one consenting to take it, the man and woman left the place, taking with them the child, and disappeared in a piece of woods about three miles from the town. Shortly after they were observed by a man who saw them enter the woods, without the shall, and his suspicious being aroused, the woods were searched, and the dead body of the infant found under a failen tree. From the appearance of the infant found under a failen tree. infant found under a fallen tree. From the appearance of the infant, it would seem that the skull of the child had been knocked in: also, that the child had been placed in a contiguous stream, and then put under the fallen tree, where it was found as

On Saturday the man and woman were arrested at Centralia, taken before Squire Stanffer at Ringtown, and after a hearing they were committed to prison to answer a charge of murder. They were brought down on Saturday night, and put in jall.

The murdered child was a fine-looking boy, about two weeks old.

The French Empress Visits Abdul Aziz in His Famous Harem-Six Hundred Circassian Beauties, who Live for the Sultan Alone-What Eugente Saw, and How She was Im-

A correspondent writing from Constantinople "elaive to the visit of the French Empress to the h'arem.

In the afternoon the Empress paid a visit to the Sultan at the palace of Dolmanaktcha, 2nd dined there in company with some of the Ottoman Ministere in company with some of the Ottoman Ministere in company with some of the Ottoman Ministere in company at the course of the Ottoman Ministere in company at the Course of the Ottoman Ministere in Course of the Ottoman ters and the French Embassy. As she recurred at night to her own palace the ships of war in the Bos-phorus were brillantly litting, many of the summer residences of the functionaries were illeminated. and rockets were sent up from floating stages on the water.

Wednesesy, the day after her arrival, the Empress paid a visit to the mother of the sultan, the Bandah Sultana, who resides withher son is his paiace of Dolmabaktcha. This must have been one of the most interesting of her sights in Stamboul. The immost interesting of her sights in Stamboul. The imperial harem is said to contain some 600 or 800 of the choicest beauties of the capital, all Of-cassians. What must the chaste Engenie have thought of such a crowd of lovely faces, dressed in the mest exquisite-criental style, bedecked with costly jewelry and embroidery, all submissive to the will of their one lord and master? What it she were to tell this to the Emperor? Or, as in the language of a past period, "il est trop facil," for him to introduce into Paris, the civilization of the East! The Sultan's mother is a lady now well advanced in years; a Circassian slave of his father, Sultan Mahmoud II, a present of a purchase, and, apparently, one of his favorites; no doubt, also, in her time, a beauty, but now only a "fat old lady," much respected for her great schevolence and generosity to the poor. As is always the case in the East, where mothers, under all circumstances, possess a strong mothers, under all circumstances, possess a strong hold on the affections of their children, and espe-cially on the minds of their sons, the Saltan is much devoted to his mother, and she exercises great influence over him, both in official and private life. She has her favorites among her son's Ministers, and her personal innuence maintains them in office. No functionary of the Government would venture to disregard a request or recommendation of the mother of the Sultan; and yet it is not known that she ever has made an improper one, She has out of her own purse built and endowed a hospital for all classes of the poor, irrespective of religion, and the Christian or Jew is as freely ad-mitted to it as the Mussulman. Lately she has succeeded in geeting up a school for the education of teachers or governesses among the Mussulmans, and it is well known that she fully advocates the necessity of educating the rising generation of her When the Empress made her a visit she was accompanied by the Sultan and an American lady as interpretress. The Sultan, on approaching her, re-spectfully based her hand, and then, patting it into spectfully assed her hand, and then, putting it into that of the Empress, paid the latter a compliment, which caused the oid lady to embrace her as a daughter. The curiosity of the maidens of the Imperial harem to see the Empress of France was so great that, notwithstanding all the violent reproaches of the sable "fasiledeens" in charge of them, they docked to the windows, threw them up, and, perfectly disregardfol of their unveiled faces, thrust out their heads, to the no small amusement, and perhaps dismay of the passing edd-jees, who must have "laid on their oars" to behold the captivating speciacle. After remaining some time in the harem, the Empress retired with the Sulfan to the dining-room, and by his side partook of a dinner composed of both Oriental and Occidental dishes of the choicest kinds. It is said that, perhaps of the choicest kinds. It is said that, perhaps out of respect for the religious prejudices of the Empress, the Sultan only presented to her in the harem one of his wives—the mother of his cless son—and two daughters. This son, named Iz Eddeen, is a line boy of some twelve years of age, much resembling his father, and is just now an eless of the military academy, where he makes good-progress in his studies and the French language. At duner lie Empress sat at the right hand of the Sultan, with the Grand Vizier on her right, to serve as interpreter. To the left of the Sultan sat Prince Joachim Murat, grandson of the ex-King of Naples. He is a tail, handsome man, of some thirty-five or forty years of age, dressed in a hussar uniform. Paris life is visible in his features.

Some time after dinner the Sultan accompanied the Empress to the water's edge, when, by steamer, she returned to the Palace of Beglerbeg with her

BROWNLOW.

The Old Senator Respectfully Declines to Die A Palpable Hit at Ex-President Andrew. A Knoxville correspondent of The Cheinvali-grante tells the following anecdote of Senator

Brownlow:Many are the anecdetes, comical, tragic, and interesting, authentic and fabricated, that have been told of Parson-Governor-Senator Brownlow, Seldom, however, have I heard of a more characteristic utterance than one to which he yesterday gave year. I had called in with some "Bosting" men who had wandered thus far from the Hub and were looking around with a view to investing $200,000 or $300,000 in the business of converting the oak bark of our almost boundless mountain and ridge forests into greenbacks and tannin. A portion of their number had heard Brownlow during his memorable tour in following Andy round the circle, and all were anxious to make him a call before leaving the city.

Ushered unceremoniously into the little bedroom and study, where the Senator receives alike special and political visitors, we found him reclining, with that trembling of the hands and husky half-whispered voice which persuades a stranger that he cannot possibly live much longer, but which others know is now, as in the past, consistent with a large stock of remaining vitality. Naturally enough, the conversation turned on Johnson's recent defeat in the Senatorial contest, and the prospect of his ever again getting a start upward in the political race. This of course, suggested the often-repeated idea that his only chance lay in a Senatorial vacancy to be caused by Browniow's death. Here the old gentleman's face lit up with an expression of half-playful determination as he remarked in an carnest half whisper:—"Yes, Johnson and Etheridge have administered on my political estate, and cast loss for my tered on my political estate, and cast lots for my garment, but," he added with a grim smile, "I ain't going to die! Andy may rest assured that, so far as the will and intentions of the present incumbent ar concerned, he will wait in vain for a vacancy. I commenced dying slowly in 1805 (the year of his birth), and have been dving ever since,"

Tennessee politicians will remember the Brown-low-Etheridge race of two years ago, when Brownlow-Etheridge race of two years ago, when Brownlow's lil-health was so constantly exaggerated by his political foes, that Republican orators found it necessary to warn their hearers to pay no attention to reports of his death which might be circulated on the eve of election. Senator Brownlow took evident pride in referring to his prediction of some weeks ago, of which mention was made at the time, as to the defeat of Johnson. He at the time predicted the election of Edmund Cooper, the brother of the successful aspirant. In this he was certainly nearer the truth than most politicians of either party. He has, however, missed it widely as to his prediction of the ratification of the fifteenth amendment, as it is now conceded that our present legisnent, as it is now conceded that our present legis lators will reject the amendment by a very large vote. The Senator thinks Andy will seek to be a delegate to the proposed Constitutional Convention, but regards it by no means certain that he can secure his election. Indeed, he said he did not think he could be again elected as Alderman of Green-

FROM HARRISBURG.

The Case of Dr. Schoeppe-An Appeal to Governor Genry-Testimonials and Statements Showing that Miss Stennecke was not Polsoned.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. HAURISBURG, Nov. 11 .- The Governor this merning at 10 o'clock had a hearing of the arguments of the friends of Dr. Schoeppe, in the Executive Chamber, which continued until after 1 o'clock. Frederick Dittman, Esq., of Philadelphia, as the solicitor of the Philadelphia Society for the Relief of Distressed Germans, appeared on behalf of the various petitioners.

He presented a pamphlet of the trial, an opinion of a committee of German physicians of Philadelphia. The opinion of the College of Physicians of Philadelphia, the opinion of Ptofessor Rees, of the University of Pennsylvania the opinion of the medical faculty of Yale College, the opinion of the Medico-Legal Society of New York, the resolution of the Baltimore Medical Society, memorials from physiciaus of New York, Chicago, Washington, Baltimore and St. Lonis, and the medical societies of Luzerne, Allegheny, and Cumberland counties, all against the probabilities of prussic acid having been administered to Miss Stennecke. He also presented a letter from David Paul Brown, Esq., of Philadelphia, in behalf of the prisoner. He then proceeded in a lengthy written argument, covering nearly a hundred page of closely-written sheets, attempting to the impossibility of poison having been admin-istered by Dr. Schoeppe. The symptoms were not such as to indicate it, and the post-mortem examination was not conducted on true scientifie principles. He urged that the jurors and citizens of Cumberland county were biassed agains the prisoner because of his nationality. He said there was no conclusive evidence that the will was forged. If it had been, Dr. Schoeppe would never have been indicted for murder. Schoeppe were hung it would be clearly a judicial murder, and so regarded by nearly every physician in the land at all familiar with the case. The medical profession of the whole of Europe would be excited at this cruel violation of justice and scientific principle. He was authorized by Dr. Schoeppe to say that he was not here on the part of the prisoner to ask for any respite. The prisoner was conscious of entire innocence, and desired nothing but jus-

William H. Miller, Esq., the counsel of Schoeppe, spoke at length, avowing before God the innocence of his client, who at all times had resisted all appeals to escape, asserting that if he were guilty of this horrible thing he deserved no mercy. He followed with a very close review of the trial and evidence, alleging that nearly every prominent citizen of Cumberland county with whom he had conversed was doubtfut of the justice of the verdict.
Dr. Scitzer, of Carlisle, followed in a scientific argument of some length, which could not be wing to his impure English, he being a German physician. He was convinced that there was no evidence of prussic acid, which would certainly have killed the vic tim in from five to thirty minutes, whereas she lived over twenty-four hours after being taken ill. He was convinced that it was apoplexy that had caused death. Professor Himes, of Dickinson College, followed in a written appeal, in which he declared that he saw no evidence in the trial sufficient to convict Dr. Schoeppe of poisoning. Rev. Mr. Smith, of Carlisle, a Lutheran minister, then closed the appeal. He was con-vinced of the innocence of the prisoner, whom he visited in his cell, being a member of his

York money market yesterday:-From the Herald.

"The changeable character of Wall street was selom better illustrated than in the last few days. esterday ousiness closed upon a very threatening, not gloomy, state of affairs, owing to the diffculties attending the negotiation of mercantile paper. The embarrassments likely to arise from stringency in discounts were vividly magnified. and all sorts of commercial distress were pictured in the winter. To-day, however, there was a hopeful if not a buoyant feeling, and while no further suspensions were reported, there was more currency for prime games at ten to twelve per cent. At the same time the banks began to ship currency westward, as if the crop movement had been renewed and merchants were more sanguine of collections. The local money market was more active, and the stock houses had o pay seven per cent, as a general thing, although the fransactions at six were quite numerous. The Government dealers were abundantly supplied at five and six per cent. Foreign exchange was steady at 108-50 109 for prime sixty day and 109550 1095, for sight sterling. The gold market was steady at 128 (@126) —the extreme range of the day. The special committee of the Gold Board have been in consultation with the officeers of the Gold Bank, consultation with the officeers of the Gold Bank, and will, within a day or two, report in favor of the restoration of the clearances to their former agency, the present practice of making deliveries of gold by messengers being a source of constant anxiety to the gold dealers. Messrs. T. H. Honors to the Illustrious Dead-Change in Western Freight Tariffs.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Secretary Boutwell has decided to close the Treasury Department on Saturday next, the day of the funeral of the late Robert J. Walker, he having been at one time Secretary of the Treasury. time Secretary of the Treasury.

Honors to General Wool.

The following order has been issued by Gene-

The following order has been issued by General Sherman:—

Headquarters of the Army, Adjutant-General's Office, Washington, D. C., Nov. 10, 1869.—
The General of the Army, with profeund regret, has to announce the decease of one of the very few remaining veterans of the war of 1812, Major-General John E. Wool, United States Army, which occurred at an early hour this morning. It cannot be necessary to recount the achievements of one whose name is familiar to even the youngest officer. From his entry upon his military career, in April, 1812, until his honorable retirement in ripe old age, in 1863, his services are matter of the records of history.

Taking conspicuous rank for military capacity and daring bravery within the first six months of his service at Queenstown, where he was severely wounded, he has been no less distinguished by his activity, efficiency and bravery in every succeeding war against the United States, than by continuous devotion to responsible duty in peace, as Inspector-General, and as a general officer, for a longer period than usually falls to the lot of man.

On the day of his funeral thirteen guns will be fired at intervals of half an hour, commencing when the procession moves at Watervilet Arsenal, near Troy, N. Y., and the flag will be displayed at half-mast at the garrisons and posts within the Department of the East, over which he so long exercised command.

By command of General Sherman.

DISASTER.

Terrible Boiler Explosion at Covington, Ky.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. COVINGTON, Ky., Nov. 11 .- At a few minutes past 7 o'clock this morning the whole city was startled by a tremendous shock resembling an earthquake. It was soon ascertained that the shock was caused by the explosion of a large boiler at Henderson & Long's planing mill.

Fourteen or fifteen men in the building had just commenced work for the day. The building, which was of brick, was entirely demol-ished, not a wall left standing.

In about a quarter of an hour all the men but one were taken out; all of them alive, but injured very badly.

The boiler has been considered unsafe for The loss is estimated at $25,000.
