MEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Nov. 25, 1969.

The Way of the Transgressor. Many years ago a bright and beautiful young woman, bearing the floricultural name of Dahlia, arrived in this city, which was destined to be the scene of her greatest failures and successes. In the course of a year or two she married a man named Leese, who subsequently became a notorious thief, and finally abandoned her. Thrown upon her own resources, she opened a hotel, and proved her ability to keep it. She kept it so well that she made no less one hundred thousand dollars. She was too beautiful and bright, though, either to remain the hostess of a first-class hotel or to live quietly and comfortably on the means she had d. Her first husband had been a thief. So far from learning wisdom from this mistake, she married again-and a politician! The consequences were that she sank lower and lower, and after a few years became one of the most dazzling pickpockets in the annals of metropolitan crime. Her pickpocketing career has been a long one. Yesterday it came to an abrupt termination, for the present at any rate. Reduced to her last penny, she was arrested for attempting to steal forty cents from the pocket of a passenger in a city railway car. Her sentence was a severe one-three years in the State Prison. Even with such a long career at her heels, she is only thirty-five, with sufficient remains of beauty about her to argue that she must have been extremely handsome once. Her manners are just as "taking" as her propensities, and, coupled with Mr. Charles S. Spencer's eloquent appeal to the jury in her behalf, were all but sufficient to counterbalance the District Attorney's address and the Judge's charge.

The Fattles. A panic has seized on the members of the Fat Men's Association, and displayed itself at the meeting vesterday at the Revere House. Hitherto their proceedings have been characterized by as much smoothness as though their own bodies had furnished the necessary oil. But the question that now perplexes them is, where are the fat women to come from? To give artistic completeness to the ball which is to take place in December, fat females are indispensable. It was fondly trusted that the necessities of the hour would develop them, just as a crisis in a nation's history inevitably brings to the surface the hitherto submerged hero who has been so long invisible yet so anxiously awaited. That any quantity of ladies will be present is nothing more than the plain fact; but ethereality of form, that quality so indispensable to the average ball-room, is the very thing not wanted there. The belle of the room will not be the handsomest woman but the heftiest; and she who can make three hundred-weight kick the beam will be the champion bouri of the hour. Photographing the Elephants.

These distinguished residents of Central Park were yesterday interviewed by a photographer for the purpose of having their pictures taken and placed in the gallery along with other zoological swells. As might have been expected, the aged elephants who were first placed in "posish" conducted themselves with perfect decorum, and from the points of their tails to the tip of their proboscises never stirred a muscle. The operation was witnessed by a large assembly of park visitors, including occupants of the invalid chairs and of the little goat carriages. When it came to be the infant elephants' turn, however, then commenced the trouble With less correct intuitions respecting the nature and uses of the camera, one young one in particular obstinately persisted in turning his back and tail towards it, to the astonishment of the photographer and the indignation of the keeper. In vain keeper turned the animal round, staked him, fed him, coaxed him, and beat him; the cloth was so sooner removed and the process of photographing commenced than the animal wheeled round, and presented for contemplation a portion of his body which, however useful to himself, scarcely eminent as an object beauty and certainly not calculated to elevate and refine the feelings as a picture. After repeating this playfulness several times, and invariably winding it up by making off at full speed, pursued by small dogs and the curses and cudgellings of his keeper, he was at length brought to bay quite out of breath, allowed himself to be taken first by the atten dant and then by the photographer.

At Home on December 2. The Christian young men who belong to the association of that name. Their new building will be opened next Thursday. It is nearly finished, and the books, pictures, and other appointments which decorated the old building are being taken there this week. The lecture-room on the second floor will comfortably seat one thousand. The chairman of the music committee has made the association a present of a very handsome organ. The library and reading-room are on the third floor, and occupy two of the finest rooms in all New York. The library is two stories in height, with extremely large windows fronting on Fourth avenue, the bookcases being built into the walls all around, and reached by iron staircases similar to those in the Astor Library. All the appointments of the new building are calculated to make Christianity seem not incompatible with the luxuries of life. Cold comfort is occasionally the only sort of comfort realized by the furniture of churches and other religious edifices; and the new mansion inhabited by the Y. M. C. A. is in pleasant contrast to these.

A Museum of Art. We are to have a museum of art in this city. It is not very long ago since American citizens in Europe forwarded to the Art Committee of the Union League Club in New York a memorial suggesting the importance of early measures for the establishment of a Metropolitan Art Museum. In response to a call made by that committee, a meeting has been held at the Union League Theatre, and Mr. Bryant was appointed chairman. Several ideas bearing upon the subject of an art museum were thrown out by various speakers. It was proposed, for instance, to have the museum erected in Central Park, and thevery laudable belief was expressed that in a few years we could line the art galleries of such a building with as choice copies from original paintings and as exquisite casts from antique sculpture as any that adorned the many costly and celebrated museums of European continental cities. A set of resolutions was also adopted to the effect that a committee of citizens, properly representing the various organizations and individuals directly or indirectly interested in the erection of an art museum, should at once be appointed, and that to them the whole subject should be referred. Fifty gentlemen were then appointed on the committee-gentlemen who, if I may judge by the names, have abundant ources for pushing on such an enterprise either by the expenditure of their wealth or their judgment in art, or both together

Making Another Man's Will. A rather singular will case is before one of the Brooklyn courts. Last August, a farmer named Boine, who lived near Cypress Hills Cemetery, died intestate. He was a widower, had a grown-up daughter, and left ten thousand dollars. Upon learning this fact, one Bergerman, who had been an intimate friend of the dead man's, drew up a false will by the ald of three other villaius. By it Miss Boine was bequeathed the sum of one dollar; one hundred dollars was left as a tombstone for Mr. Boine, and the nainder, $9899, went to Mrs. Hildebrand, the wife of a relative of Bergerman. Afterwards the will was presented for probate, and contested by Miss Boine general grounds. This struck terror to the soul of one of Bergerman's confederates, who went to the District Attorney of Brooklyn and made a full confession. Bergerman and one of his accomplices were arrested. The remainder of his coadjutors and Hildebrand, the husband of the woman in whose favor the false will was made, fied. The hearing is adjourned this to-morrow afternoon.

An Appent for Selling Out. The following communication has been sent us by the senior member of one of the most prominent banking firms in this city, a gentleman who writes from personal knowledge:-

To the Editor of The Esening Telegraph.

I am giad to see that attention has at last been called to the financial management of this read; Managed in its early stages by a party with Fiskits proclivities, it passed the ordeal of their diluting process into the hands of the present cormorants. In spite, however, of their depressing influences, it has exhibited a vitality and endurance not intended by those who hold the lever, and who have pressed it with so much success on other doomed roads in their

I understand the Pennsylvania Railroad Company now hold the majority of srock, bought up, no doubt, under the influence so adroitly managed.

It may be interesting, at the next annual meeting, to learn how much the present officers have increased their interest in the road the past two years, "buying in" at a time when facts were perverted or withhold.

A friend of the writer had occasion a few days since to call at the office to gather information as a stockholder, and on remonstrating against the selfish power now guiding its counsels, the amiable President coolly advised him, if not satisfied, to "self out!" To this end the whole management seems to have been directed. Perhaps this worthy officer has interested himself of late by "buying in," thereby to increase the great feed which has been quietly preparing for the privileged few, earned from many an unfortunate stockholder whose patience had been taxed, and who decided to act on the President's recommendation to "self out." commendation to "sell out.

It has been hinted that the accumulation of the stockholders from the thirty per cent. guarantee is to be used to build a branch road to feed the cor-morants, but the minority, I presame, have some rights. We shall see. A STOCKHOLDER, Philadelphia, November 24, 1869.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

"La Julve" by the German Troupe. Halevy's opera of La Juive was given last night according to promise, but the disappointment of last week had a very decided effect in reducing the size of the audience. The performance was, in many respects, very creditable, but unequal; and although some of the scenes excited considerable enthusiasm, the general effect was rather crude and unsatis ac tory. This could scarcely be avoided in a single representation, for the opera is one that requires much elaborate preparation and scenic appliances to produce it in a popular manner. The plot of La Juies is one of much merit for an opera; it tells a very simple but highly dramatic story in a straightforward manner, and, at the same time, it offers ample opportunities for first-rate spectacular effects. The subject treats of the barbarous persecution of the Jews in the fifteenth century, and the music throughont is of a high grade of excellence, and admirably adapted to the theme. The opera is one that makes large demands on the artists, and it is to the credit of Mr. Himmer, Madame Frederici, and Madame Rotter that they achieved even a measurable success in the voles of "Eliezar." "Rachel," and the "Princess Endonia," The burden of the work fell upon the two first named, and they sang and acted with a fervor and dramatic expression that excited the heartiest applause. Several of the scenes were very finely sung, and the curtain was twice rung up in response to the demands of the audience. Mr. Armand was not equal to the part of "Leopold," and Mr. Weinlich scarcely came up to the standard of the highest excellence in the "Cardinal Brogni," although this was put down in the bills as "his great role." The choruses were tolerably well given, but the orchestra was uneven, owing, we understand, to some of the scores not having been transcribed properly. The procession in the second act was only a moderate success, the intervals between the detachments being too lengthy, and one of the horses introduced being so restive that he became a decided nuisance, and seriously marred the effect of the scene by the noise he made in stamping about the stage.

CATCH-WORD LEDGER INDEX .-- In every large business establishment "time is," most emphatically, "money," and many hours are needlessly spent in searching for names through a voluminous index. To remedy this evil Messrs. Jas. B. Smith & Co., No 27 South Seventh street, have prepared a book so convenient in its arrangement as to render the ready finding of a single name in a list of two thousand a mathematical certainty. It is based upon the principle now used in all large banks, offices, and stores; but where these are confined to single letters, the system of Messrs. Smith & Co. extends through the various rami fications of consonants, combined with the leading vowels. Mure than the price of this book can be saved in a singl week by the general introduction of it into offices and WILHOR'S COMPOUND OF PURE COD LIVER OIL AND LIME .- The advantage of this compound over the plain oil is that the nauscating taste of the oil is entirely removed, and the whole rendered entirely palatable. The ffensive taste of the oil has long acted as a prominent ob section to its use; but in this form the trouble is entirely bylated. A host of certificates might be given here to testify to the excellance and success of Wilber's Cod Live Oil and Lime. Troops to be Sent to Georgia to Aid Officers in Collecting the Revenue -Lively Times Among the Expressmen-The Massachusetts Temperance Alliance.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Short Work to Be Made with ex-Rebeis. ecial Despatch to The Evening Telegraph

WASHINGTON, Nov. 25,-The Secretary of War, at the request of Secretary Boutwell, has ordered a force of troops to proceed to Georgia to aid United States officers in the collecting of the revenue. For some time past the Commissloner of Internal Revenue has been in receipt of letters from revenue officers of that State, declaring that they cannot collect the revenue, owing to threats and intimidations on the part of ex-Rebels. Mr. Delano's recent visit to Georgia has convinced him that nothing short of troops will do. Short work will be made of all parties interfering with officers in the performance of their duties.

FROM NEW YORK.

The American Express Company-A Lively Despatch to the Keening Telegraph.

NEW YORK, Nov. 25 .- A meeting of the stockholders of the American Express Company was held to-day, resulting in a very stirring session. Mr. Eugene Kelly, who issued the circular to the stockholders some time since, made a savage onslaught upon the Directors, as did Smith Cliffe, who charged that the company seemed to have been instituted to keep respectable gentlemen in fat offices at fat salaries. He charged that the capital had been reduced from $10,000,000 to $800,000. Many stockholders present who had bought stock at from 65 to 122 sustained the attack. Nothing definite has yet been done.
