Steamer Sunk on the Mississippi-Temperance Movements-Railway Accident-The Ten Hour Question.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Contraction vs. Inflation. Contraction vs. Inflation.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

Washington, Dec. 11.—Ingersoll's bill to inflate legal-tenders to the extent of forty-four millions has been referred to the Committee on Banking, instead of Ways and Means. This is regarded as favorable to contraction and against inflation, and settles the question whether the Ways and Means or the Banking and Currency is to be the financia committee of the House. A Correction-Justice Grier. The statement that Judge Grier has sent his letter of resignation to the President is incorrect. I learn from Judge Grier that he has not written any letter resigning his place on the Supreme bench, and has not decided when he will resign.

NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Dec. 11, 1869.

Mr. McFariand's Trial.

The approaching trial of Mr. Daniel McFarland will of course be of extraordinary interest, so much so indeed that the by-no-means small bunch of correspondents settled in New York are making arrangements with all the principal newspapers in the Union for the writing of letters and the transmission of special telegrams. To his friends one of the first questions that naturally occurred was, how were the expenses to be defrayed. They will amount to probably more than $5000. Many witnesses have to be brought from a distance. Mr. McFarland himself is quite without means. Mr. Amos R. Eno has subscribed $100 toward this amount, and Mr. Seth B. Hunt has subscribed $50. During the trial a good many distinguished people will loom up, and the evidence elicited will be of a very curious and interesting kind. That may depended upon to a certainty. We may feel sure that Mr. Beecher will deliver himself of paradoxical lucidities, and that Mr. Frothingham will get off several examples of rhetorical contradiction. Besides these, all the constant and most of the occasional writers for the Tribune will contribute their quota, and Horace Greeley will figure mistily. If in this early stage of the proceedings so much that would be amusing, if it were not deeply tragic, has come to the surface, there is no knowing what mysteries are yet lying concealed beneath the surf of the scandal. From the editor in-chief of the Tribune down to the printer's devil, every man in the establishment will have a show in the witnessbox. The foreign editor will break ground through broken English, nor will the attestations of the night editor, Mr. Kane O'Donnell, be wholly without interest, even though they be tinged with phantom-like obscurity. "Johnny," the office-boy (and a very nice boy he is, too), cannot be expected to maintain a total silence after having been early disciplined in the teachings of free-loveism, and the Milesian gentleman who used to flourish there will perhaps be called upon to settle any mooted points.

Marrying and Moralizing. Wicked cynics have a proverb among themselves to the effect that when you do a naughty thing you ought not to go and moralize over it. It is edifying to see a man acting barefacedly, according to one set of theories, and writing barefacedly according to another, without any endeavor to make the two extremes of alls conduct meet. It is precisely this that Mr.

FIFTH EDITION Beecher has been doing. Both in the chapter against adultery which he read last Sunday, and in the leader which appeared in a late number of the Christian Union, is evident an apparent effort to secure notoriety to his conduct in the Richardson business, by the very audacity of its antithesis. Fut that plece of reading and that place of writing in juxtaposition to his floundering explanation, and you have the most extraordinary bit of patchwork that ever became the subject of public gossip.

"Hamlet" and the Hydraulic Ram. Hamlet was to have been produced at Booth's Theatre next Monday evening week, I re-open my letter to whisper (in a calligraphic hair stroke) into your ear that it will be pestponed for some nights, in consequence of the impossibility of having the hydraulic ram, which is used in it, in proper working condition at the date contemplated. "Hamlet" and the hydraulie ram ! Think of it. That is the true reason of the delay, glossed over as the postponement may be in the generalities of the street placards. In seriousness, however, the new Hamlet, so far as scenery and the accessories go, will be very exquisite indeed, and Mr. Fechter will arrive just in time to add piquancy to Mr. Booth's season. ALI BABA.

-Two highway robberies were committed in Detroit last week, and the local papers complain that that city and Windsor are now haunted by a gang of desperadoes, who have fled from other localities to escape the just penalties of their crimes.
