MEWS SUMMARY.

-As Officer Thomas Sisk was attempting to arrest James Ellenger, who, with a crowd of men, was standing at the corner of Second and Reed streets, at midnight on Saturday, where a fight had occurred but a few minutes before, he was set upon by the party and stabbed in the right side by William Ellinger, the brother of his prisoner. The officer was taken to his home, and William Ellinger was afterwards arrested by Lieutenant Errickson and officers of his distriet, they finding him secreted in his house, No. 107 Tasker street. Previous to this occurrence, on Saturday afternoon, William Ellenger was arrested and held to bail for a breach of the peace, in entering another man's house and whipping the family. The assaulted persons were afraid to make a charge of assault and battery against their assailant, and Lieu-tenant Errickson was compelled to prefer this charge himself. The wound inflicted upon Officer Sisk is not thought to be serious.

-On Saturday evening a young man who was engaged in peddling goods visited a public house on Fifth street, below Callowhill, where he offered some slik poplin for sale. One of the females of the establishment took the material from him under the pretext of showing it to some one in the upper part of the building. After waiting some time for the return of the female, the pediar inquired the cause of the delay, when, it is alleged, he was accosted by two young men, who said they were detectives and suspected him of doing business without a license. After being detained some time, the pedlar left the house and proceeded to the office of Alderman Godbon, where he took out war-rants for the arrest of the woman and the two men. After a hearing they were held in $1000 to answer at Court for the alleged offense.

—The Coroner held an inquest yesterday on the body of William E. Owens, aged fifty-four years, who was instantly killed on Saturday night, on the Norristown Railroad, at Flat Rock, Twenty-first ward. He was walking on the track at the time, intoxicated. Deceased re-sided at Roxborough, and worked at the water works The jury rendered a verdict of death from accident.

The dedication services at the Oxford Presbyterian Church, Broad and Oxford streets, took place yesterday. The opening sermon was preached by the Rev. Albert Barnes. The exercises of the afternoon consisted in addresses by Rev. George F. Wiswell, D. D., Rev. E. E. Adams, D. D., Rev. J. W. Mears, D. D., and

DEATH MOWING DOWN THE MISERS. Another "Poor" Man Dies Wealthy-Edward V. Turdy, the Fated Fool of Fortune-The Moral of a Miser's End.

The King of Terrors is after the misers with a vengeance, and is reaping the rich karvest of self-persuaded poverty he has had for many a long day. Three weeks ago Lyman Allyn left his treasure of three-quarters of a million behind him in a garret of Taylor's Hotel, Jersey City, and closed his eyes in death without a soul to see or mourn his departure. Locky Ostrom, after grubbing pennies together for half a century, accumulated a fortune and died the other day without spending any of it. The last case is that of Edward V. Tardy, who gave up the ghost on Friday night, at No. 264 Sixth avenue, after spending seventy-two years on this miserable earth making money and using none of it. Tardy had the true instinct of the miser. He Tardy had the true instituet of the miser. He not alone went grubbing formoney, but grubbed in the street garbage for bread crusts and wasted vegetables. He had a keen eye for potatoes and turnips, and left few of these healthy esculents in the path of the ragpicker. Pieces of meat he picked up and carried home with him to his wretched place of abode in a cellar on Greenwich avenue and turned them into soup. Edward V. Tardy was born in this city in the year 1797, of French and English parents. His uncle, Alexis Dechauviere, was at one time the accredited Minister of France to this country. Tardy's father was well-to-do, and along with his son took a conspicuous part in seeking the set-tlement of the French spoliation claims. Tardy, Jr., when twenty-seven years old had a ship of his own, in which he sailed to almost every port in the world, to the West and East Indies, various parts of Africa, Asia, and South America. He traded extensively with the savages of the Society, Sandwich, and Philippine Islands, and was on his way back to New York with a cargo of immense value, when he suffered complete shipwreck and lost everything but his life. Twenty years more of his life were devoted to the making of money, and in that time his luck was no better, for he lost two fortunes in daring speculation. Tired and disgusted with the fickle jade that dispenses the favors of wealth and prosperity, he decided never again to run counter to what appeared his inevitable destiny -that of failing in every speculation-and so it happened he settled slowly down to the slow, cautious, and suspicious habits of a veritable

He became wholly altered in mind and manner, talked no more of grand enterprises in com-merce, and turned tacitum and misanthropical. He descended from his high position as a speculator, bold and brave, and grovelled in the gutters for a paltry pile of pennies. He never married, but lived with a sister whose eccentricity of habit was about equal to his own. Both lived in the basement of a house in Greenwich avenue, where they had three rooms, and where they passed a life of unparalleled penury. They were worth at this time perhaps $50,000. but they never bought a meal if they could contrive to glean from the garbage of the mar-ket places enough to sustain life. Finally the sister grew sick, and the brother, deem-ing the expense of a doctor's attendance entirely too great, had her removed to Bellevue Hospital, where she died. She left him $3000, out of which he was reluctantly compelled to pay $50 for her burial expenses. After this event he was left all alone in the world, passing, amid crawling vermin and heaps of filth, a life of semi-starvation. His stovepipe hat was built and bought twenty-five years ago, and his shoes came into existence at the time of the Mexican war. He followed no particular business, and never wholly surrendered his passion for speculation. He confined it, however, to limited investments in railway stocks and national securities, of which he left the full of two old trunks. Among his papers were discovered a number of shares in the scheme to recover the Captain Kidd treasure. The old man ultimately fell sick, and was in an almost dying condition in his miserable hovel on Greenwich avenue, when a kind-hearted, half-grazy old fellow named Dr. William Scott Downey, a character much like Dr. Riccabocco in Bulwer's 'My Novel," found him out and carried him to his place at No. 274 Sixth avenue, laid him in bed and attended faithfully to him night and day for two weeks, but in vain. Edward V. Tardy gave up the ghost Friday evening, leaving bonds, securities, cash, etc., worth, at a hurried calculation, $50,000, and bequeathing, in a will of about ten lines, the whole to the children of a nephew who died some time ago, and whose widow is now married to a Mr. Houghton, of this city. He had a niece married to a Colonel Stewart, of Philadelphia, but he left her nothing. John Cochran, sexton of Dr. Gallaudet's Church, Eighteenth street, will take his remains to Greenwood at 10 o'clock to-morrow.—N. Y. Herald yesterday.

THE SCHOEPPE CASE.

Letter to Governor Geary from Baron Gerolt —Another Plea for Mercy. Baron Gerolt, Minister to Washington from the North German Confederation, has addressed

Governor Geary the following letter:LEGATION OF THE NORTH GERMAN UNION, WASHINGTON, Dec. 8, 1869.—Dear Governor:— After my interview with your Excellency in Harrisburg, on the 4th inst., I returned to Washington deeply impressed with the conviction that the judicial proceedings in the case of Dr. Schoeppe, who had been accused of having caused the death off his patient, Miss Stennecke, by administering to her prussic acid, were conducted with impartiality according to the laws of Pennsylvania, and that the statements in the public papers, and in private letters addressed to your Excellency, against the integrity of the jurors and the Criminal Court who gave their verdict of guilty, are without foundation and

I am happy to say to your Excellency that the great excitement of the German population in this country against the sentence of death of Dr. Schoeppe was caused by the opinion, publicly expressed, by medical authorities in Philadel-phia, New York, Baltimore, Washington, and in other cities, by whom Dr. Aiken's chemical analysis of the contents of Miss Stennecke's stomach had been examined, that the evidence of poison (prussic acid) presented to the jurors and to the Criminal Court was insufficient and doubtful.

This uncertainty of the symptoms of the prussic acid in the aforesaid analysis, has since been strengthened by all medical authorities in this country who have been consulted on the subject. On my return to Washington, I took pains myself in examining the numerous petitions and opinions addressed to me from various parts of the country, and they all agree that the evidence of prussic acid or any other poison having been the cause of Miss Steinneck's death is insufficient.

From the testimonies of distinguished medical authorities whom I consulted, I beg leave to present to your Excellency the inclosed opinion of the Medical Society in Washington.

Upon so many respectable authorities, and in consideration of the existing friendly relations and feelings between the United States and Ger-many, I had taken the liberty of addressing your Excellency personally at your residence on behalf of Dr. Schoeppe, with the consent and the kind introduction of the honorable Secretary State of the United States. Having been kindly requested by your Excellency to address you in writing, I have now the honor to comply with that request, and, together with so many thousands of my countrymen in this country, I beg your Excellency to take into kind consideration their petitions on behalf of Dr. Schoeppe, and their appeal to your Excellency, to the exercise of which privilege you are entitled by the constitution and laws of Pennsylvania as Governor of that State.

In expressing again to your Excellency my sincere gratitude for the kindness with which you have received my visit and my verbal representation on behalf of Dr. Schoeppe, I beg to add that the information which I have re-ceived, since my return to Washington, of the respectability of his family and of his professional education at the principal universities in Germany, seem to justify the sympathies mani-fested under the circumstances by his countrymen and many American citizens.

I have the honor to be, with the highest consideration, your Excellency's most obedient servant, HR. V. GEROLT. To His Excellency John W. Geary, Governor of Pennsylvania, Harrisburg.

P. S. If your Excellency should deem it convenient to make any use of this communica-sion, I should have no objection to it. Hr. V. Gerolt.

PARIS FASHIONS.

Costumes and Style for January. From Le Fellet.

It is no longer a question of mixed costumes, as winter has set in with its fogs, cold, and snow, and wadded and warm dresses are becoming indispensable. Heavy and warm ma-terials are much in demand. For full dress, satiz pekins, with double face—for example, violet on one side and lilac on the other—and gros grains with broad stripss of velvet, of the same color and shade, are used in our best houses. Belgian cloth, veloutine, serge, and plain or plaid cachemire are appreciated in the rainy season. Velveteen will be much worn this winter, and makes pretty and seasonable costumes. It will also be used for sashes and trimmings. The colors most in vogue for poplins, as well as cloths, silk, woollens, and fou lard are the faded leaf, myrtle green, Florentine bronze, and theep violet. Black is still very Full dress is neither eccentric nor exaggerated. The manteau de cour, which at present composes the robe de grande tollette, is a most meful combination, as it forms two dresses out of one. The under or first skirt is short in front and slightly trained behind, over which is worn the manteau of the same material, being attached to the waist under the arms. Ribbons are placed onder the train to draw it up slightly and sustain the basque, which accompanies the dress and appears to belong to the body, but is separate, and can be worn either with the short and walking dress or evening costume. There is but little doubt that trained dresses will be discontinuously for hell dress and the helf-long adopted carded for ball dress, and the half-long adopted instead-a fashion more graceful and convenient for dancing. The loose train, however, may be worn and carried over the arm, and is suitable when the skirt is of a light texture and train of satin. Open bedies, cut square, are worn for dinner dress. High chemisettes of lace and muslin and tucked fichus, a la paysanne, are much in vegue; frills of lace are also worn round the edge of the body. Robes de chambre play an important part in ladles tollette, and should be chosen with great care, both as to form and color. They should be warm and well cut, but, above all, of a becoming shade—blue, mauve, and pearl gray for blondes; white, red, or violet for brunettes. Flannel, Scotch plaids, molleton, wadded cachemire and poplin are the materials employed for robes de chambre. Walking dresses are always round, just touching the ground. The bodies are high and closed at the throat, but revers, pelerines, and round or square berthes are simulated by trimmings. The sleeves are generally tight, trimmed with revers, biases, or frills. A second tunique skirt, grace-fully draped and trimmed, is usually worn with the short dress. Sashes are still in favor, tied simply behind in a knot, if worn with the tunique, but over a plain skirt the sash is fuller and forms the pouff.

NOTICE TO MARINERS.

The Trinity House, London, has given notice that the following alterations have been made in Caldy Island Light, Bristol Channel:—
The illuminating apparatus has been changed from reflectors to lenses, and of the first order. The light to seaward, as heretofore, is a fixed white light, between the bearings SW. by W. round by north to E. by S. % S. but red from the Woolhouse Shoal and Higheliff Sank, or from SW by W. to S. by W. 's W., and westward towards Old Castle bead from E. by S. % S. to SE. by E. Over the remainder of the circle, including Caldyroad, the light will be visible, except where obscured by the land.

Also, that early in December, 1868, a lightvessel will be placed between Bardsey Island and South Stack, Carparven Bay. The light will be a revolving light with white and red flashes at intervals of twenty seconds, in the order of two white and one red. The lightvessel will be moored in thirty fathoms at low water springs, S.SW. 3, W., 173, miles from the South Stack Lighthouse. The light is intended to facilitate the mavigation of St. George's Channel, and to indicate to vessels their position when they may be influenced by the indraught of Carparvon Eay. Also, that further particulars will be published in due course.

All bearings are magnetic. Variation 23 deg. westerly in 1869. By order, W. B. SHUBRICK, Chairman, reasury Department, Office Lighthouse Board, Washing
