Approved belonging to the Philadelphia and Reading Realroad, which was stationed at the time on a siding in front of the round house at the upper depot, Port Richmond, exploded with terrible force, killing the engineer, and seriously injuring several officers.

The Annapolis was one of the heaviest and largest engines in use on the road, but was old and considerably worm, and had been put to the use of shifting, or making up trains at the coal wharves. It was engaged in this service at the time of the accident.

The engine was completely shattered, and the ground for some distance around is covered with pieces of the wreck. One of the main shafts of the engine was broken into three pieces, and the dome, engine was broken into three pieces, and the dome, weighing some three tons, was carried bodily through the air for a distance of about a square.

through the air for a distance of about a square.

The boiler and other parts were blown into the smallest fragments. Two of the heavy doors belonging to the round-house, which were about seventy feet distant, were broken from their hinges and thrown inward. Nearly every pane of glass in that building which faced towards the scene of the accident was broken. The telegraph wires along the line of the road were all broken. down, and the conline of the road were all broken down, and the con-actions impaired.

Joseph Nagle, the engineer of the Annapolis, was thrown a distance of about a hundred yards, and instantly killed. His body is much bruised and mutilated. He was about thirty years of age, and leaves a wife and two or three small children. The firemen of the Annapolis Jemes Ready, was seriously man of the Annapolis, James Brady, was seriously

The annual exhibition or great poultry show, under the anspices of the officers of the Pennsylvania Poultry Society, commences this evening at Horticultural Hall, Broad street, below Lecust. This exhibition promises to be one of the finest, if not the very best, display of the domestic feathered tribe and other domestic animals which has ever been witnessed in the State of Pennsylvania. The preparations have been very extensive and elaborate, and Horticultural Hall will present a rare and attractive appearance during the continuance of the display. It will require all of one day's work to get the exhibition in working order. A great number of rare bition in working order. A great number of rare specimens of poultry will be exhibited, and a number of very valuable prizes have been prepared, which will be conferred upon the exhibitors of the best specimens. It will be something of a job to award them, as the number of competitors is very great. As this will be the finest opportunity eyer presented of inspecting the productions of our poultry-raising community, the exhibition will be well worth a visit. It will continue every day this week. ber of very valuable prizes have been prepa

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Circuit Judges. Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. Washington, Dec. 20—It is expected when the Senate goes into Executive esseion to "as, a resolution will be passed calling upon the President to communicate the recommendations upon which the Circuit Judges were appointed. Also the names of parties who asked for appointment. The President has already refused to Jurish this information to the Judiciary Committee, and it is said will decline to give it to the Senate.

The Georgia Bill in the House. It is feared there are not enough Republicans in their seats to-day to suspend the rules for the pur-pose of taking up the Georgia bill. In this case it will have to be formally referred to the Reconstruction Committee and reported to-morrow for passage.

The Naval Board. The Secretary of the Navy does not propose to send to the flows the proceedings of the board appointed to settle the difficulty between line and staff of the navy, on the ground that the labors of the board are not yet unished.

Newspapers in the Mails. A resolution was offered to any instructing the Postal Committee to report a bill providing for the free transmission of daily and weekly newspapers through the mails to bend ade subscribers. This is in accordance with a recommendation of the Postmaster-General in his late report, Cuban Adales. Mr. Fitch, of Nevada, will move a suspension of the rules to get a special committee of five members appointed to take charge of all matters relating to Cuban anaira. It will be opposed by the Committee Cubs n anairs. It won Foreign Affairs.

He allieded to the difficulty of determining the proper site for a public building in that city, on account of the liability of the ground being shaken by cartiquakes, though New England had experienced more violent earthquakes than Sau Francisco. The real question was whether the Secretary of the Treasury had any right to lease this land.

Mr. Ramsey remerked that the alleged affinity of earthquakes for New England territory might furnish a good reason for the Government dispension with the improvaments of certain public buildings, the Custom House among others.

Mr. Patterson replied that the people of Boston were not very greatly exercised about the Custom House tumbling down, and were willing, as New England people generally are, to assume all legitimate risks.

Mr. Cole explained the facts connected with the lease, believing it to be the best that the Government could obtain. He vindicated his course in the matter, remarking that it had been in harmony with the wishes of the Congressional representation from California. He was willing that the pending bill should pass, but gave notice that he would ask at the hands of Congress some profits bid disposition of the preparty in question.

Remarks were also made by Messes. Casserly, Corbett and Williams, the latter remarking that the Secretary of the Treasury had been actuated by the wisset course in protecting the interests of the Government to disapprove the lease.

The joint resolution was then passed.
