Demon Rum. Our citizens were yesterday spared the sickening details of another bloody murder, though the inter-vention was more accidental than otherwise. Rum, which ever since the days of Noah has proved the bane of humanice, and which has caused the com-mission of more deeds infernal than all the other measures placed together. On Kater street above Thirteenth there resides a fan ity named McCluskey. Years ago the husband, James, while yet a young man, wooed and won a woman, whom he made his wife. For a time all went well with him; but soon evil companions and corrupt company led him away from the pleasures of his own fireside, and to the seeking of sinful en of ms own include, and to the seeking of shift fra-joyment in the cup of Bacchus - For the past biree months James has been little else than a sot. Leaving the house in the morning, nothing more would be seen of him until early next morning, when he would come realing home, only to beat and torment the fond wife, who all the while labors hard to keep starvation from the threshold of the once happy home.

Yesterday the climax was reached, the brain disrestering the chinax was reached, the branched eased by the poisonous fluid called whisky gave way, and the father became nothing more, nothing less than a madman. In this condition he burst in the door of his residence, and selving a small axe, at once mule an attack upon the hie of his wife. But God in His goodness is all-merciful, as was shown in this instance. Meantime, some of the neighbors took charge of the woanded woman, and removed her to a neighboring drug store, where a physician was called in and her cuts dressed, after which she was removed to a place of safety. Several wounds had been inflicted upon her head, but although seriors, fortunately none are dangerous in their nature. The husband was this morning taken to the Moyamensing Prison to await the result of the injuries he has inflicted.

Trunks Broken Open in the Cars-The Detectives Folled. Again-A Baroness a Heavy Loser-$100.000 Stolen.

To the officials of many of the rallroads running out of this city the statements about to be given will not be news, but to the masses who patronize the railroads some information may be lerived as to what they are likely to be exposed to while travelling.

Several months ago it was ascertained that tranks containing valuable articles of clothing and jewelry were being broken along the lines of the Haritord and New Haven and the Erie and New York Contral Railroads, and a portion of the contents stoler. The officers of the roads, it is said, exerted every effort to discover the authors of the robberies and the points at which they were perpetrated. Their investigations were of no avail. Property continued to disappear in a mysterious manner, especially on the Central Road. It was discovered, however, that nearly all the robberies occurred on night trains between Albany and Suspension Bridge, and between Troy and New York.

During the last two months, it is said that travellers have lost more than #100,000 worth of property on the Central Railroad alone. Recently the working up of the case has been given to some expert New York detectives, who are now engaged in endeavoring to fathom the mystery of these peculations. It is understood that in most cases the companies throw the responsibility of the robberles on the city express companies, and assert that their emloyes are the really guilty parties, but this is by no means clear.

The last extensive robbery reported occurred on the 4th of November, between Albany and Niagara. At three o'clock in the afternoon the Baron and Baroness Olga de Maluta Fraloff, at present residing at No. 220 West Twenty-third street, in this city, took the train from Albany for the Falls, having checked their baggage through to their destination. On receiving it at the Falls from the railway company it was discovered that an immense quantity of costly laces, most of which has descended through the family to the Baroness, and is valued at a very large amount, had been stolen from one of he trunks, the locks of which had been wrenched off by some thieves who gained access to the baggage car. The company's officers have since that time devoted their energy to the recovery of the property, without effect. The articles stolen consist in part of three volants (ifounces), each ten metres long, in all thirty-three yards, for corsage (waist), similar laces, cleven yards; five and a half corsage, one-third of a metre in width: nve volants (founces), one-third metre wide, fifty-five yards: for corsage (waist), onequarter meter wide, fifty-five yards; for corsage waist), one-quarter metre wide, eleven vards; two volants (flounces), with tunique, twenty-two yards; four ditto similar laces, forty seven yards; or mantilla five and a half varies; two valants flounces), twenty-two yards: fifty-five yards of aces of various widths and designs, and other property, sweiling the total to several thousand dollars.

It is understood that the Baron, desponding of over recovering the property, has applied to the company to reimburse him for his loss, with no success, and, consequently, he has just offered a reward of $4000 for its return. It is likely that this large reward will result in the detection of some of the baggage smashers who travel on the railroads for the express purpose of robbing passengers and their confinement at the Central Senators and Members not Satisfied with the Samana Bay Affair-The President Called on for Information.

The Long-asked-for Correspondence on the Alabama Claims-The Circuit Judges.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Samana Business.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 .- Several Senators and members have expressed surprise at the lease of Samana Bay and the proposed purchase of the Island of San Domingo, without consultation with Congress on the part of the President. The amount which it is proposed to pay for the lease of the bay is larger in proportion than it is believed we can get the whole island for.

There are various stories about arrangements having been made by parties who were in the secret of negotiations to purchase largely in the immediate neighborhood of Samnaa Bay, in the hope of an advance in property. In many respects the thing is regarded, as a job, and it is probable a resolution will be introduced calling upon the President for all information on the subject, together with the authority under which he acted.

The Alabama Correspondence.

The President yesterday communicated to the senate the correspondence called for by the resolutions on the Alabama claims negotiations, together with the instructions to Mr. Motley. The correspondence was received in executive session, and was referred to the Committee on Foreign Relations. Senators who have examined it state that there is a remarkable similarity between the instructions of Motley and the speech of Mr. Sumner on the Alabama claims treaty. The statement that future negotiations are likely to take place here, gives great satisfaction to all concerned.

The Circuit Judges.

The Senate Judiciary Committee had a long session to-day, when correspondence and recommendations relative to Circuit Judges and their appointment, which was received from the Presidentyesterday, were examined. Long discussions ensued. Efforts are being made to get the committee to act to-day, both in the case of the Circuit Judges and of Mr. Hoar, but the committee is not disposed to act.

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Alabama Claims.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. WASHINGTON, Dec. 22 .- The correspondence between the United States and Great Britain concerning the questions pending between the two countries since the rejection of the Alabama claims treaty, which has just been sent to the Senate, covers over one hundred pages of manuscript, and contains letters from Motley to Fish and from Clarendon to Thornton. Secretary Fish, under date of September 25, 1869. addresses Motley, stating that when he left here on his mission the moment was thought not to be most hopeful to enter upon renewed discussion or negotiation with the Government of Great Britain.

The President is now inclined to believe that sufficient time has elapsed to allow the subsidence of the emotions of excitement and irritation. Mr. Fish then proceeds to give a history of the acts and events which have so much disturbed the otherwise amicable relations of the two Governments, and says .--- "Although the United States are auxious for a settlement on a liberal and comprehensive basis of all the onestions which now interfere with the entirely cordial relations which are desirable between the two Governments, they do not now propose or desire to set any time for settlement; on the contrary, they prefer to have that question, and also the more important question of means and method of removing causes of complaint, of restoring much-desired relations of perfect cordiality, and preventing a possibility of the presentation of such questions in future to the consideration of her Majesty's Government.

"They will, however, be ready, whenever her Majesty's government shall think the proper time has come for a renewal of negotiations, to entertain any propositions which that government shall think proper to present, and to apply to such propositions their earnest and sincere wishes and endeavors for a solution honorable and satisfactory to both countries." Under date of June 28 Secretary Fish writes Mr. Motley that "the President wishes, whenever negotiations on the subject of the Alabama claims are renewed, they shall be conducted in the United States. and he desires at the proper time you should convey this wish to the Minister of Foreign Affairs. It is impossible to say at present when that time will arrive, but it will certainly have arrived whenever the British Government shall propose a discussion or shall intimate a desire to open negotiations." In another letter to Mr. Motley Secretary Fish says .---

"The President is not yet prepared to pronounce on the question of indemnities which he thinks due by Great Britain to individual citizens of the United States for destruction of their property by Rebel cruisers fitted out in ports of Great. Britain, nor is he now prepared to speak of the reparation which he thinks due by the British Government for the larger account of vast national injuries it has inflicted on the United States, nor does he attempt now to measure the relative effect of various causes of injury, whether by untimely recognition of belligerency, by suffering the fitting out of Robel cruisers, or by the supplying of ships with arms and munitions of war to Confederates or otherwise, in whatsoever manner. At the present stage of controversy the sole object of the President is to state the position and maintain the attitude of the United in the various relations and aspects of this great controversy with Great Britain. Much other correspondence has already been made public in various ways.

A SINGULAR CASE.

Robbery of a Young Kentuckian in a New York Carriage-A Swindling Hack Driver.

On Monday night a young man named Richard E. Kelly arrived in New York from New Concord, Ky. He was en route to Poughkeepsle to attend Eastman College. He came via the Pan Handle route. On reaching Jersey City he took from his boot leg the sum of $230 and placed it in his pantaloons pocket. The money was in a wallet.

After getting on board of the ferry boat, he inquired about his baggage, and was told it would reach the opposite shore as soon as he did. After reaching New York he inquired how he was to reach Thirtleth Street Hudson River Railroad Depot. A man stepped up to him and said, "I am going around there and will take you." This man had a coach. He said, "Give me your check and get into the coach. I will you. bring your baggage in a few moments," and left He returned in a short time and said, "Your baggage will be on the next train." This was after dark. Some one then called the man away, and he got upon the box and drove a short distance and stopped.

Then another man came to the coach and said to the student, "Come, I'm going to the Hudson River Depot." The student got out and entered the second coach. After being in it a momen the driver went off and got another man, and when the two reached the coach the driver said, "Here's another man going to the same place you are: just remain here till I get your values." The stranger entered the coach and scated himSAFETY OF THE GUNBOATS.

Failure of the Cuban Expedition-Want of Co-operation Among the Lenders-Return of the Fillbusters.

The Cuban expedition, which started from this city on last Friday night for the month of the Potomac, where an armed vessel was in waiting to embark the men who had sworn to sink or capture the Spanish flotilla, now on its way to the "ever faithful isle," has proved a failure.

We learn from Cubans well informed on the plans laid down to govern the movements of the destroyers, that Messrs. George Abbott and Albert Lang had arranged to co-operate with a certain leader of a former unsuccessful expedi-tion, and he assured them that he had made such preparations for the enterprise that success was certain. He promised to meet Mr. Abbott at a certain house in Broadway, near Bleecker street, on Monday night, at 10:30 o'clock, when he would accompany him to a tugboat filled with armed men awaiting them in the East river. This boat was to have gone to sea in pursuit of the gunboats, which they expected to overhaul off Hatteras, where the armed steamer Republica, from the Potomac river, was to join them.

Tegether the two steamers were to attack, nd, if possible, board some of the gunboats and and. sink the others. But this leader failed to keep his appointment, and knowing that the Repub lica was provisioned only for three days, two of which had already expired without any movement on the part of the New York portion of the expedition. Lang gave up the matter in dis-gust. He could do nothing without money, which the Cubans refused to advance him, and the lack of energy displayed by the above-mentioned Cuban leader, on whom all had implicitly relied, disheartened him, and he withdrew from the affair. The fifty men who left this city on Wednesday night to join the Republica have returned.

The abandonment of this enterprise, says our informant, renders the arrival of the flotilla at Havana a certainty. He assures us that the Atlanta, or Triumph, as some call her, has nothing whatever to do with this or any other Cuban movement, and that no possible danger now lies between the gunboats and their destination. It is possible, however, that this statement may not be allogether correct, as vague hints are thrown out by Cubans in this eity concerning the Triumph. They pretend to expect news of disaster to the gunboats ere long, and kindly ask all interrogators to "walt and see." Thus far nothing has been heard of a startling nature by the well-wishers of the flotilla .- N Y. Times, to-day,
