THE UNFAITHFUL SHEPHERD.

The Eloping Clergyman-He Has a Wife and Children-How the Affair Was Managed. The clerical elopement in New York, alluded to in THE TELEGHAPH yesterday, has created much talk, having proved a rich morsel for the gossips. Every effort has been made to hush up the facts in the case to prevent scandal to the church and congregation. THE CHURCH, at the altar of which the reverend gentleman ministered, is a Methodist Episcopal one, and is eftuated in West Seventh street. The congrega-tion is a very fashionable one, composed of wealthy and prominent citizens.

THE CLERGYMAN.

The pastor is named Cook. He has been but a short time connected with the church, having been stationed there last spring by the Annual Conference. He is a man of pleasing address, good looking, and not more than thirty years of age. He is also a fine speaker, and has a good multit "presence." He was a general favorite pulpit "presence." He was a general favorite with his flock, very few of whom, even under the circumstances, credit his alleged elopement. THE LADY IN THE CASE.

The young lady who, as alleged, has gone off with the Rev. Mr. Cook, is young and unmar-ried. She belongs to one of the first families of New York, though her name for the present is New York, though her hande for the present is not made public. She is very pretty if face and figure. She had been a Sunday school teacher for a short time, and was also a devoted attend-ant upon the church, being punctual at not only the Sunday services, but also at the class and prayer meetings. THE INTIMACY between the clergyman and the fair lamb of his flock had been noticed by many, and some of the allusions thereto were not very flattering. The comments reached the ears of the lady herself, but she treated them with the utmost dis-dain, pronouncing them groundless slanders. Even her mother remonstrated with her at her carelessness in affording opportunity for the cir-culation of such reports.

THE BLOPEMENT.

Things continued in this way for some weeks, natil the rumors became common talk. This appears to have brought matters to a crisis. Thursday evening the clergyman complained of being unwell, and informed his family that he being unwell, and informed his family that he would repair to his study and there seek repose. He also had a sermon to prepare for Sunday, and he desired to be left uninterrupted. It is supposed that during this time he was engaged in packing a trunk, which has myste-riously disappeared along with the owner. This trunk was called for and quietly taken away without exciting any remarks. He was with his family all day on Friday. Early in the evening he put on his hat and overcoat, and telling his wife that he would soon return, took his depar-ture as she believed to pay a visit to one of his ture as she believed to pay a visit to one of his congregation. The hours passed wearily by and he came not. Fearing some accident had be-fallen him, the wife became almost distracted, and sent messengers in every direction, but could discover no traces of his whereabouts. Nothing has since been seen or heard of him.

While the above events were transpiring, hady closely veiled was seen to enter a carriage on Seventh street. The vehicle drove a block or so, when a gentleman entered, and the driver whipped up his horses and the carriage, with its occupants, was soon out of sight. By Sunday morning the fact of the elopement became known to the members of the church. When the hour for divine service arrived, the pastor was non est. An excuse was made for his absence, and a stranger took his place.

The family of the erring man are, as may well be imagined, in great distress. He leaves a wife and two beautiful children. His domestic relations had been always of the happiest

FIRST EDITION Air, as he proceeded to again envelop himself in his multitudinous wrappings, "I guess I'll win-ter the old woman after all. I'll come back again next year, and then, perhaps, them fellows will be dead."

Silently and sorrowfully the disappointed one pulled his hat over his eyes and quietly stole away.

A YOUNG CANNIBAL.

A Son Borribly Mutilates His Father-Pater-nal Affection Exemplified.

It has become quite a popular amusement re-cently among vicious children to abuse their parents and inflict upon them personal chastise ment for supposed injuries received. Rarely a day passes that some outrage of this character is not brought under the notice of the police, but, strange to say, in most cases parental love triumphs in the end, and the transgressors escape. The latest case of this kind reported occurred in New York recently, and for heartlessness and devilish malignity has and for heartlessness and devilish malignity has few parallels. It appears, from the investiga-tions of the police, that a young reprobate, aged nineteen years, named Peter Harti, who resides at No. 517 Ninth avenue, with his parents, came home in a beastly state of intoxication. His father, Martin Hart, reproved him for his dis-solute habits, and endeavored to point out to him the follies of associating with vicious young men, when Peter became highly en-raged. All the efforts of the father to quiet him were unavailing. With fearful im-precatione, he hurled himself upon the old man and pulled him down to the floor, where a deadly tussle followed for some moments. The old man finally overcame his son's muscular deadly tussle followed for some moments. The old man finally overcame his son's muscular struggles and held him in an iron grasp. Summon-ing all his latent strength, the youth, crazed with rage, pulled his parent's head down to his, seized his lower lip between his teeth, glared fiercely upon Hartt, Sr., and with a sudden and quick movement rolled him off him, still elinging to the lip. The result was that the flesh, from the mouth down to the shin was completely the mouth down to the chin, was completely the mouth down to the chin, was completely stripped to the bone, presenting a frightful ap-pearance. Officer Durie, who was called in by one of the family, arrived in time to separate the men and witness the young Hartt spit out the bleeding flesh torn from his parent's face. He arrested him and locked him up in the Twenty-fifth street station house for the night. The young cannibal offered no excuse for his brutality and seemed only to regret that he had brutality, and seemed only to regret that he had not inflicted more serious injuries on the "old man." At seven o'clock in the morning the old man declined to go to court, and forgave his brutal son, who was consequently discharged. Surgeon Smith, who attended the elder Hartt, states that he will carry the marks of his child's brutality to his grave. GENERALITIES.

The Howland Will Case.

At a term of the Probate Court held in Fall River on Saturday, Judge Bennett granted the petition of Thomas Mandell, executor of the will of the late Sylvia Ann Howland, asking authority to compromise the suit and demand of the heir-at-law, Mrs. Hetty H. Green. This of the heir-at-law, Mrs. Hetty H. Green. This compromise simply relates to the payment of the costs of the plaintiff in equity (?), which are to be paid, we presume, out of the estate, or that portion of it, to the income of which Mrs. Green is entitled. The adjustment, when com-pleted by the proper entries in the United States Supreme Court at Washington, will leave the will affirmed in every particular, and the exe-cutor free to execute it according to its wise and benevolent provisions.

A Man Marries his Stepmother. From the Bristol (Va.) News. Some days ago the community in the vicinity of Carter's Station was considerably exercised over the announcement that a Mr. Lyon, who lived in the neighborhood, had married his mother. It seems that Lyon's father had been twice married, and the children by the first wife continued to live in the family after the second narriage; Lyon, the father, died, leaving his second wife a widow, and Lyon, the son, mar-ried his fathers widow. The clerk issued the icense without a knowledge of the facts, and the minister requested to solemnize the marriage declined; a magistrate likewise refused, and the pair crossed over to Stony Creck, where they were unknown, and were married.

AN APPALLING DESCENT.

A Sallor Falls One Hundred Feet. A salier Fails One Hundred Feet. About 10 o'clock yesterday, says the San Fran-cisco Bulletin of the Sist ult., as a reporter for this paper was rambling along the wharves, viewing the shipping, man-traps, and other ob-jects of interest, his attention was called to a barque lying at India Dock. A salier belonging to the barque Anne Main was esgaged in reevto the barque Anne Main was emgaged in reev-ing a yard-rope at the main top-gallant mast-head, and as he appeared to experience some difficulty in performing the work, a number of longshoremen and others were watching his manœuvres with considerable interest. The ac-tion of the waves caused the vessel to rock a little, not enough to startle any sea-faring man, however, or cause any hesitation on his part to go aloft, and it was noticed that the man moved go aloft, and it was noticed that the man moved around very cautiously. He had nearly suc-ceeded in accomplishing his task, when the ves-sel gave an extra severe larch; he lost his foot-ing and hold, and fell from the giddy height. Immediately on leaving the head of the mast, his body assumed a horizontal position, and, striking the mainyard below, he turned a com-plete summersault in the air, and terminated his terrible fall on a pile of dunnage near the main hatch. The spectators in the vicinity, who had hatch. The spectators in the vicinity, who had watched his course with bated breath, now rushed to his rescue, and found him still alive, though suffering the most intense agony. His right side, from shoulder to knee, was badly bruised, the thigh broken, and he gave evidence of severe internal injuries. It is barely possible that he will recover, but those who witnessed his frightful fall, who saw him clutch for the ropes while going through the air, finally receiving such a terrible check, would deem such a result such a terrible check, would deem such a result miraculous. Upon subsequent inquiry we ascer-tained that the man bore the name of Tiercy, was thirty years of age, and he came on board the vessel Anne Main, and shipped as a seaman this morning. He was removed to the City and County Hospital by order of the captain of the bark, who did everything in his power to alle-viate his sufferinge viate his sufferings.

AN INDIANA WHOPPER.

A Shower of Metcoric Stones and a Lunar Citizen-The Cardiff Glant Outlied. The Crawfordsville (Ind.) Journal is respon-

We are informed that on New Year's day there was a Gravel Road meeting at the old Gilkey Saw Mill in this county. At about 2 o'clock P. M. the meeting was broken up by sharp, deto-nating noises like cannon, on the bluff south of the mill. Proceeding to the spot, the crowd found many holes in the ground, which emitted smoke and steam. On investigation, it was found that each hole was the receptacle of a stone ranging from a nound in to ten pounds in stone ranging from a pound to ten pounds in weight. They were very hot, of volcanic formation, and were evidently meteoric, and had just descended to the earth.

While expressing their astonishment, the men assembled were terror-stricken by a strange, un-earthly noise, like the ricocheting of a shell, and with a tremendous "thug" some heavy body struck the ground not twenty yards distant; and from the hole just made was emitted smoke and steam equal to that of a steam engine. The hole was some six feet in length, by two in breadth, was some six feet in fength, by two in oreadth, and the falling body had penetrated the earth some four or five feet to the solid rock. But now comes the strangest part of the story, and but for the reliability of our many inform-ants, would be looked upon by us as the inven-tion of some modern Baron Munchausen. The stone, on being excavated, was found to have the human form divine. It resembles common meteoric stones in its formation, but has the perfect form of a full-grown man. The fea-tures, finger-nails, and hair, all are perfect. The legs-are straight, and arms folded on the breast. It measures 5 feet 1014 inches in length. Seve-ral scientific men have already examined it, but what puzzles the most astute of them is its having the human form.

SWILL MILK.

Mr. Bergh and the Milk-Malds-A Visit to the Stables-Abominations in Williamsbarg-Six Hundred Dead Animals Rotting at the Ferry. Yesterday as the clocks of Williamsburg were striking one, a party of six gentlemen stepped from a Grand street ferry-boat and proceeded hastily in the direction of North First street. The leader was Henry C. Bergh, the well-known philanthropist, and President of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals.

A HOUSE OF DEATH.

After walking only three blocks from the main thoroughfare, the party entered the stable on the corner of North Fifth and First sts. The stench was sickening, and the first impulse was to withdraw from the premises. A group of Hibernian "milkmaids" stood near the main entrance, and when the tall figure of Mr. Bergh appeared, they looked at each other in a most inouirin manner. One of the "unwashed" ventured to remark that the weather looked like snow. The good looking pastor from Twenty-third street walked among the cattle with boldness, and Mr. Bergh and his detectives picked their way through the gloom cautiously, but be-fore proceeding far they had to return and open the wooden shutters before they could see with any satisfaction.

On trial. Nisl Prins-Juege Williams. J. A. Owens vs. Jacob Speelman, This is an ac-tion of slander brought by Mr. Owens, a member of the bar, against Speelman, for defamation of charse-ter, it being alleged that he circulated among the Germans of the city the report that Mr. Owens, as coursel for the Commonwealth in a criminal prose-cution sgainst a German for bigamy, sold out the cause, abandoned it, and neglected it, being moven by bribe. The truth of the matter was that the cause masses was prosecuted with the most marked ability and unceasing industry, and resulted in conviction of the accused; then a motion for new trial and in arrest of judgment, which added greatly to the habor of the cause, were all faithfully argued by Mr. Owens and decided in his favor. Then the injured wife of the convict instituted proceedings against his paramour, and Speelman here took occasion sedulously and with zeal to ply his slanderous re-port, and urge that other counsel should be em-ployed for the conduct of this case. Such action did great injury to Mr. Owens, who derived a very con-siderable portion of his practice from Germans, for the repair of which and the vindication of his repu-tation this suit was brought. FINANCE AND COMMERCE, OFFICE OF THE EVENING TELEGRAPH, Tuesday, Jan. 11, 1970. 3 The weekly statement of our banks is favorable to the future of the Money market, though the ex-tent of the improvement is rather limited, owing, no doubt, to the heavy investments in railroad and other stocks during the past week. There is an increase in the specie reserve of 668,828; in legal-tenders of $22,614; and in deposits of $16,621. It is rather singular that with these new additions to the supply of loanable funds the leans should have diminished $300,092. The same thing occurred last week and can only be accounted for by a failing off in the demand for loans. The business done was unprece-milions in excess of last week. MYSTERY.

The whole affair is surrounded with the deepest mystery. To avoid bringing scandal on the church, those who are known to be familiar with the facts deny all knowledge concerning them. Many are disposed to believe that no such thing as an elopement has taken place, but that the disappearance of the preacher and the lady is a more coincidence which will be satisfactorily explained.

ILLINOIS DIVORCES.

Wintering the Old Woman-A Romance h Chicago Real Life.

An elderly, serious-looking individual, wel protected from the inclemency of the weather recently entered the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court in Chicago in a methodical mansupreme court in chicago in a methodical man-ner, and after spending about ten minutes in unwrapping himself to a sufficient degree to be able to articulate, expended about the same period of time in slowly looking around him. After carefully investigating the surrounding, of the highly ornamented office, the old gentle man's eye rested upon the bland features of one of the most gentlemanly and benevelent of living deputy clerks.

Leaning towards him, he seriously enunciated the important monosyllable, "Cap !" The personage thus addressed inquired for further particulars. "Cap." repeated the stranger, "are you given to unhitching folks here? Do you divorce a little?

The reply to this interrogatory was of a some-what affirmatory character, whereupon the questioner stated his grievance, after reluctantly admitting that his wife had not deserted him_ neither had she been guilty of adultery, cruelty, drunkenness, or any of the other little eccen-tricities for which the law allows a dissolution of the marital bonds.

"The old woman, Cap," quoth he, "don't get along well with me. She jaws me fearful, and along well with me. She jaws me fearful, and if any man can stand jawing, his name is not mine. We don't get along well together, and haven't for the last thirty years. I there-fore want to be unhitched, and I don't want her to know anything about it until it's all over. I want it done now, because its getting cold weather, and It will take a good deal to winter her. Can I get divorced here without anybody finding it out for a spell?" "My friend," responded the official, suavely and kindly, "see ye yonder desk?" The stranger responded in the affirmative. "If you come here in about one hour, you will see three young men whose natural ferodity will see three young men whose natural ferocity is depicted on their countenance sitting there is depicted on their countenance sitting there together. In a moment they will hear that a suit for divorce has been commenced. They will rush for the papers, will brutally assault each other for the first chance to scan their con-tents, and then they will write for four hours apiece. They are newspaper men, and will write you up for publication. They are proba-bly now in the next room, doing the same thing for somehody else. They will write an article about you with thirteen head lines. They will print all you know about yourself, and all that any one else knows, and a great deal that no one knows. It may, of course, do you good hat of that you will have to judge yourself. You can't get rid of them, for they are affluent and incorruptible, and it won't be of any use to kill them, for at their offices they keep men a great deal worse than they are." "Cap," slowly and sadly asked the suitor, "is that all true?"

"It is true, all of it, and less than the truth." "Then," said the old man with a melancholy

Insecure Ice-A Little Boy Drowned. A little fellow, four years old, broke through the ice of a pond on Fifth avenue, New York, yesterday, and was drowned. The Heraldsays:-As soon as it became known in the neighborhood that a boy had been drowned a large crowd commenced gathering, and in less than half an hour fully 2000 people of both sexes were at the scene of the occurrence. Several gentlemen commenced the immediate construction of a huge raft, upon which they purposed to push themselves out to the break so as to obtain the body of the unfortunate boy. Some parties arrived with a small boat, and with it they succeeded, by dint of considerable exertion, in breaking the ice away before them and getting out to the place where the boy had gone through. They soon found the body, which they brought ashore and conveyed to the Nineteenth precinct station house, where the father (who resides at No, 361 Third avenue) and two brothers arrived soon after. The scene after their arrival was truly heartrending. The father threw himself upon the corpse of the unfortunate boy and wept most pitcously, while the two brothers gave vent to their feelings in the most affecting manner.

A Hell Gate Death Blast.

On Saturday afternoon, during the sinking of a shaft at Hell Gate, a blasting accident oc-curred, attended with fatal results. Whenever a blast fuse is lighted, a horn is sounded to warn all persons to move out of danger. At 3 o'clock on Saturday the usual signal was heard, and the customary stampede followed. An immense piece of rock, weighing 142 pounds, was by the force of the explosion hurled into the air a distance of 180 feet. On its descent it fell into the roof of the engine-house, crushing through and dropping on the head of the engineer, Mr. David Shine, fracturing his skull. Both Mr. Locy and Mr. Shing thought themselves perfectly safe in the engine house, as they had often sheltered themselves, within it during blasting operations. Mr. Shine was the last of a family of three sons, all of whom died suddenly.

Princely Gift by a German Baron

The German Hospital of New York has re-ceived from Germany an unexpected gift of $50,000 in 5-20s. The giver was the Baron von Diergardt, a young man who has just inherited a large fortune, and begins by making use of it in this manner. He has never been in the United States, and was doubless prompted to this great act of charity by finding a large quantity of United States bonds among his inheritance. The hospital, which is at the corner of Fourth avenueland Seventy-seventh street, N. Y., will be greatly benefited by this acquisition.

A Jew Murders his Son for Marrying a Christian. Five Jews, named Moses Schneider, Mayor

Brecher, Abraham Moses Schneider, Joseph Landau, and Moses Teldmann have just been tried for the murder of Abraham Teldmann, son of the latter, at Tarnapol, in Galicia. It ap-pears that the deceased had made an offer of marriage to a Christian girl, and that she had accepted him on his promising to become a Christian also. Having heard of this promise the accused men assembled in the house of Moses Teldmann, and warmly upraided young Teld-mann for his apostacy. The latter, however, remained obstinate, and during the altercation the father threw a sling rope around his neck and pulled at it, assisted by the other men, until his son was strangled. The case was clearly proved against the defendants. Moses Teld-mann and Mayer Brecher were sentenced to be hanged, and the other three to ten years' impricopment with hard labor.

The husband and father is employed in Cypress Hills Cemetery, and his family resided in the vicinity. On Sunday morning Mrs. Miller, while making a fire, took a can of kerosene and poured it upon the coals, to make them burn more quickly. The fire communicated to the can, which instantly exploded, scattering the burn-ing eil over the woman's garments. The child, seeing her mother in flames, ran to help her and took hold of her clothing, when her dress also caught fire, and before assistance could reach them they were so badly burned that nothing could be done to save them After lingering through the night in great agony they died yesterday morning.

THE NEW YORK MONEY MARKET.

From the N. Y. Herald.

"The week opened on an animated state of affairs in Wall street, general attention being again directed to the gold market, where dealings were of an ex-cited and feverish character. The clique programme to the gold market, where dealings were of an ex-cited and feverish character. The clique programme for an advance being seriously interfered with by the extra sale of Government gold, an ingenious plan was devised to do away with its injurious influ-ence upon the 'bull' movement. When the bids for the $1,670,000 at the Sub-Treasury came to be opened, it was found that there were as many as forty-seven proposals for a total of nearly seven and a half millions of dollars. The prices, however, were in most instances so far below the market that the cliques who were the instigators of the orders to the different brokers knew they would not be accepted, or, if accepted, that the gold would be obtained at a very cheap rate as compared with the price in the Gold Room. The amount bid for.-$7,319,000-is the largest recorded under similar circumstances. The effect upon the market was magical. Gold, which had opened at 125% and declined to 121% before the sale, now ran up to 123¼ amid great excitement. As the after-noom progressed it became evident that the cliques were taking advantage of the opportunity to sell, and as at this time a telegram from Washington amounced the intro duction of Senator Sumner's bill for a return to specie payments, the price gradually declined to 1324%. It is not to be inferred, however, that the "bull' tactics have been abandoned. The combina-tions who are manipulating the market are san-guine of putting rold to 1800 which is an advance Dull' tactics have been abandoned. The combina-tions who are manipulating the market are san-guine of putting gold to 180, which is an advance as much beyond its real value as its recent price— 1193,—was a fall below. The clear rise would, however, be only ten per cent. But, by these intermediate fluctuations, selling at a small advance and buying back at a small decline, they intend to net thirty, forty, or perhaps even lifty per cent. in the advance from 120 to 150. Such, therefore, is the situation of the gold market at present, and it pro-mises to develop in interest each day. The specu-lative spirit so long dormant has been aroused, and the victims of the great gold sinash are among the most cager to retrieve their losses.

The vicinity of the great gold single and an are among the most cager to retrieve their losses. "The money market was easy at six to seven per cent, as the rate on call loans, with pledge of Gov-ernment and miscellaneous collaterals. While the greater number of transactions took place at 7 per cent, there were more at the lower rate than on saturday when money was loaned at sit per cent.

cent., there were more at the lower rate than on Saturday, when money was loaned at six per cent. for the first time since the initiation of the fail activity. Commercial paper was more current at previously quoted rates, the rate on call not as yet operating for a decline in discounts. m "A buoyant market for Governments ensoled upon the advance in gold, and the prominent dealers re-port a scarcity in bonds which embarrasses them in the fulfilment of orders. A private telegram from the Treasury Department, received to-day in answer to a request for information, states that the funded debt consists of $800,000,000 registered bonds and $1,500,000,000 of the latter is held in Europe, and as the balance is largely in the possession of banks, corthe balance is largely in the possession of banks, or porations, and private investors, the poarcity of the speculative issues in Wall street is readily accounted for. The market at the close was a fraction below the highest prices of the day."

FROM WASHINGTON.

The National Intelligencer. Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. WASHINGTON, Jan. 11.—The National Intelligencer newspaper will probably be rejuvenated. as there is quite a lively competition for the purchase of it from Mr. Delmar. The principal parties offering to purchase are New Yorkers. Commander Selfridge.

It is understood that the Committee on Naval Affairs have taken umbrage at the nomination of Lieutenant-Commander Selfridge, U.[S. N., to be commander while charges are pending against him for cruelty. His nomination will probably be suspended.

General Fremont.

General Fremont has taken an elegant suit of rooms at Arlington, and will arrive to-morrow, accompanied by his family. The General's visit here is for the purpose of watching the interests of the Memphis and El Pass Railroad during the present session of Congress.

FROM NEW ENGLAND.

Lock in the Massachusetts Legislature. Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

Boston, Jan. 11,-There is a lock between the Senate and House of Representatives in regard to the time to be allowed for petitions for private legislation to be presented.

The Senate has fixed the limit at fifty days and the House at thirty. The reasons urged for the short period is a short session, but the public have no hopes in that direction.

The Telegraph Strike. The headquarters of the telegraph strikers at the Sherman House is the scene of lively times. The men are still confident of success, and have the sympathy of the public here.

Violations of the Excise Law. The State Constabulary are active, and are making seizures of liquors every day, but they somehow do not aim very high in pursuit of the violators of the law.

FROM THE WEST.

The Iowa General Assembly.

Despatch to The Evening Telegraph. DES MOINES, Jan. 11.—The Thirteenth Gene ral Assembly met yesterday afternoon. The roll was called, and an adjournment was had until to-day. The Senatorial contest is the great topic.

The Utah Central Railroad. Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

OGDEN, Utah, Jan. 11 .- The Utah Central Railroad is completed, and trains commence running to-day. The railroads connects Salt Lake City with the Union Pacific Railroad. The Utah Legislature meets to-day. An exciting session is expected.

THE VENTILATION.

The ventilation was so bad that one could hardly draw in a full breath. The few shutters on the front side of the table did some good, but they were closed when the party arrived, but they were closed when the party arrived. So dark was the interior, that a person could scarcely recognize an intimate friend at ten feet distance. The cows were covered with filth, and most of them were bloated and diseased. The feeding-troughs were slimed with swill, and every timber throughout the stable was sticky with the norious vapors that were con-stantly rising from this prison-house of death. The floor was completely saturated with filth, and the very walls were suggestive of discase. Scores of animals were lying down, and not a few of them appeared almost helpless. It took some time for one to walk through the passagevays, and altogether there could not have been less than 200 cows confined in the building. The 'milkmaids" attempted to justify their treatment of the poor brutes, and two or three of the more intelligent even hinted that no "animules" in the country were better treated. The best of hay was given, and they had all they wanted of it, besides a "plenty" of other food.

* THE MORGUE.

Leaving the heated air of the stable, the party followed the detectives into a yard in the rear. Here lay an animal stiff and cold. The sight was horrible, for cow was almost skin and bone. The "bloated fatness" had disappeared, and only a heap of putrid flesh and rotten bones remained. Huge swill tanks were on every side, and some of them had capacity for more than a thousand gallons. The others held about five hundred gallons. In all there were 27 of these swill tubs. A large distillery stood at the upper end of the yard, and formerly, when it was running, fully 600 cows were kept here. Then the swill came scalding hot from the distillery, and the neighborhood was pestilent with sickening vapors. The huge pipes which were used to convey the liquor to different parts of the stables are still remaining. Some of them are as large as a fish cask. As it was impossible to obtain the names of the propriators of the cows, the following names were copied from the numerous milk wagons in the yard: -

A MONUMENT TO THE BOARD OF HEALTH. Leaving this place the party walked to the foot of North Sixth street, which is not more than two blocks [distant. Here is the offal dock, where one Frank Swift, an offal contractor, deposits the careases of horses and cows that die in the city. The stench was enough to sink In the city. The stench was enough to sink an ordinary schooner, and it required heroism on the part of Mr. Bergh and his companions to approach it. Fully 500 dead animals were piled up on the dock and a barge moored to the pier. Nearly all of the cows bore the marks of the swill-milk disease. cows bore the marks of the swill-milk disease. Mr. Bergh said that he had informed the Board of Health about this nuisance, but still they re-main a disgrace to barbarism. A detective said that these decaying bodies had been here for two months. There were enough carcases to cover an acre lot so that the bodies would almost touch each other.
