

NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Jan. 21, 1870. Prince Arthur.

You will anticipate that the first words I have to say to you to-day will be with respect to Prince Arthur, who by the time this letter reaches you will probably be in the apartments engaged for him at the Brevoort House. I can imagine what a rush has been made thither for rooms; I can appreciate the blind faith with which rooms in that neighborhood, to let with or without board, have been snapped up by those in quest of accommodations. He is not the Prince of Wales, indeed, but he is a chip of the same block; his complexion shows the same latent tints of rosy beef and bitter beer which are capable of being detected in the countenance of his virtuous and irreproachable brother. As far as his eyes and hands go, a prince ought to have the manual pliancy of Brancius, and the visual amplification of Argus, compressed in intensity in the single pair which nature has seen fit to endow him with; for in this country particularly, he has a hundredfold harder work to undergo than he would have "at home." Has it never been your misfortune to meet a person who has "met" a prince? Do you remember the naïf (?) pertinacity with which his royal highness was dragged into every species of narrative and made to figure as a rich background against which the speaker egotistically wreathed himself? And then think what a digestion a prince—one who deserves the name, at least—is required to have! Not only one good digestion, but several. I should imagine, would be required to wait upon his appetite. Think of the endless career of state dinners that must be sat down to, and the enormous quantity of dances that must be danced with partners whom, etiquette aside, you detest, or would were you a prince. Think of the fat mayoressees you would be obliged to embrace, the stupid ambassadors that you must perforce be civil to. I destiny like this is the kind of divinity that doth hedge a king—and consequently a prince—it is an arbitrary tyrant that one can never feel much liking or respect for. The "peaky" etiquette that haunts royalty is a sort of imperial Frankenstein, and will sooner or later be the death of the rash creator who evoked it.

To come to facts, however, the present stay of the Prince here will be very short. To-morrow he goes to Washington, where he remains until the latter part of next week. Then he returns here, when Gotham proposes to show him what it can do in the way of balls and banquets.

But, after all, what is there new that Society can purvey for this youthful Solomon? There is one thing. It can furnish him with the new pleasure of being let alone.

It can refuse to spread itself upon the latest style in cards, and treat a stripling who happens to be related to the heir to the British throne with the polite immunity to come and go that it shows to a distinguished but uninitiated stranger.

It can refuse to believe that there is any inherent archangelhood in royalty; it can desist from rivalry for the paltry distinction of clasping a royal hand, or being whisked by the whizz of a princely coat-tail, and learn to do homage to that natural nobility which is without titles and beyond them.

Hub-and-by Literature. A magazine for babies has been started in Boston, and reports to us that a similar magazine is shortly to put forth its first number in this city. It is to be divided into two departments, the first for the weaned and the second for the unwashed. Mrs. Winslow is to be proprietress and editor-in-chief, and the happy title of "The Soothing Syrup" has been selected. I heard that the type was to be set by machinery, but I incline to the belief that it will be set the way some of its readers will be raised—by hand. I have seen the advance sheets of the first number of the Boston pap-boat. It bears this motto on its title-page:

"Patty-cake, patty-cake, baker's man, (Gee!) will massy as fassy I can, Hickey, and picky, and marky with T, And tussy in oven for baby and me."

The New Heist. Every wanderer up Broadway sees from a great distance off the upper stories of the new hotel, the Lafarge House, that adorns that thoroughfare near Bleeker street. It is indeed a most imposing structure. Two or three stories have been added to the original hotel, until it is now of an average height of eight stories. Who are going to sleep up in them, I wonder? They look fairly tall, and though the terms will only be three dollars per day, the question whether the privilege of being burnt to cinders at that inaccessible point is worth the money, is the question that inevitably occurs. I think not; but perhaps my prejudices in favor of self-preservation are at fault.

A Ghost Story. I warn all who read this title that no madman or murderer turns up to explain all in the last paragraph. Such vulgar materials are not for me. No. The question was one of how much damages should be claimed for the plaintiff, Mr. Sylvester, the proprietor of an entertainment called the "Enchanted Canopy." Mr. Sylvester is an illusionist who deals in ghosts, and other vermin of that description. If these vermin are trodden upon—as they appear to have been in the case of Messrs. Jarrett & Palmer, against whom he brings indictment—they, of course, turn and sting, as all well-conducted worms have done from time immemorial. It appears that Jarrett & Palmer made an arrangement with Sylvester by which he was to receive so much money for thirty representations of his "Enchanted Canopy," to be distributed over a space of three months. Instead of this he only gave three, and the reason he only gave three was that he had no "properties" to place the illusions on the stage with. He alleges that all he engaged to give was personal services and brains—such as he had. They allege that he engaged to give much more, namely, the "properties," without which the ghost would not come to time. Sylvester's counsel argued that he could be more expected to furnish "properties" than Mr. Fechter could be expected to carry the scenery of Ruy Blas and The Duke's Motto along with his wardrobe; and he argued the case so well that Sylvester was decreed, by verdict, $300 in gold.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

TO ALL WANTING FARMS IN A LOCALITY Exempt from Fevers and Lung Complaints.—To Farmers, Horticulturists, Mechanics, Capitalists, Gentlemen of Leisure, Invalids, and all wanting a homestead in a climate of unsurpassed salubrity, exempt from the rigors of a Northern winter, and in close connection with the commercial centres of the South. Few if any sections offer such a combination of inducements as the town of Aiken, S. C., and its vicinity for a desirable and permanent home. A pamphlet of 84 pages now ready, containing a description of the climate, soils, and the nature of the products in the vicinity of Aiken, especially fruit, cereals, cotton, corn, vegetables, etc., including extracts from letters of distinguished visitors, correspondents, action of town councils inviting emigrants, etc., to which is added a descriptive list of property for sale, including improved farms, orchards, vineyards, water powers, kaolin deposits, unimproved lands, and town residences. For sale by E. J. C. WOOD, Real Estate Agent, Aiken, S. C. The book will be sent by mail on receipt of price, 50 cents. Address J. C. DERRY, Publisher, P. O. Box No. 1429, New York, until last of February, after that date at Aiken, S. C. (11 1/2 St.)

FINANCIAL. FIRST MORTGAGE SINKING FUND. Seven Per Cent. Gold Bonds OF THE Fredericksburg and Gordonsville Railroad Company of Virginia.

Principal and Interest Payable in Coin, Free of United States Government Tax. These Bonds are secured by a First and only Mortgage made to The Farmers' Loan and Trust Company of New York, as Trustees for the Bondholders.

The Mortgage covers the entire road, Right of Way Franchises, Rolling Stock, Equipments, Lands and Property, real and personal, now belonging or which may hereafter belong to the Company, a SINKING FUND is also provided, which will reduce the principal of the debt TWO-THIRDS of the entire amount in advance of the maturity of the Bonds.

The Road is 62 miles long, connecting Fredericksburg via Orange Court House, with Charlottesville, which is the point of junction of the Chesapeake and Ohio Railroad to the Ohio river, and the extension of the Orange and Alexandria Railroad to Lynchburg. It forms the shortest connecting link in the system of roads leading to the entire South, Southwest and West to the Pacific Ocean. It passes through a rich section of the Shenandoah Valley, the local traffic of which alone will support the Road, and it must command an abundant share of through trade from the fact of its being a SHORT CUT TO THE WATER ON THE POTOMAC AT THE FARTHEST INLAND POINT WHERE DEEP WATER FOR HEAVY SHIPPING CAN BE FOUND ON THE WHOLE LENGTH OF THE ATLANTIC COAST.

From Charlottesville to Tidewater by this route the distance is 60 miles less than via Alexandria; 65 miles less than via Richmond and West Point; 124 miles less than via Norfolk.

A limited amount of these bonds are offered at 95%, and interest from November 4, in currency.

From an examination in person, and also by competent counsel, of all the papers and documents relating to this loan, we are enabled to pronounce them entirely correct and satisfactory; we have also had the work and property of the company examined by our own agents, whose reports agree with those made by the officers of the company, and we therefore recommend these bonds, the issue of which is limited to $1,000,000 per mile of complete and equipped road, AS A FIRST-CLASS SECURITY IN EVERY PARTICULAR, and as a most desirable investment, giving a large increase of income over investments in any description of Government bonds.

TANNER & CO., Bankers, No. 49 WALL STREET, New York. Pamphlets, maps, and information furnished. Government bonds and other marketable securities will be converted without commission to parties investing in these bonds, and the highest market price allowed for gold and other coupons in exchange.
