

NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Jan. 28, 1870. Is a Limb a Body? This is the question which is now agitating the Corners of this city and Brooklyn.

In Love with a Female. Why did she love him? Curious fool, he still is human love the growth of human will!

Mr. Fechter's Second Role. Upon Wednesday evening Mr. Fechter appeared in the character of "Captain Henri de Legardere," one which which Mr. Wheatley originally enacted in this country.

The Baby Bull. All day yesterday an interesting spectacle presented itself opposite the window at which I generally "take my pen in hand."

NEW YORK'S FRENCH BALL.

Spotlights in Spangles and Integrity in Tight-Tops. The French ball, which was given last night at the Academy of Music, deserves to be called the most successful of the season.

missionary to whom aboriginal nudity had become a second nature. Altogether the ball may be said to have been a not immoral one.

Let me say a few words about the "Carole" itself. It is a society composed of about one hundred members, who have well-appointed club-rooms, and who are bound by an oath to administer to one another's pleasure by as many means as they legitimately and innocently may.

The club had secured two new features for last night's ball. One of these was the burlesque quadrille of Ko-ko-ri-ko, an extravagant improvisation due to the brain of Brididi, and invented for the behoof of the Parisian ball d'opera.

A third feature of Wednesday evening's ball was the mutual geniality with which the sexes wore one another's dresses, and converted themselves into haled hybridities in regard to whom it was difficult to say which was which.

Now, these women have adopted the "reform" dress (not the "bloomer" costume) from principle. They have worn it on all occasions for many years, as have some thousands of women in the United States.

As a set-off to this, an extremely handsome girl, dressed in the full evening costume approved of for gentlemen, might be seen at all hours, from 10 o'clock in the evening to 3 o'clock in the morning, walking around, always alone, but always followed by a crowd of young men, who, somehow or other, never attempted any extreme liberties.

THE REFORMED WOMEN.

We have no doubt that the woman's rightsists have their use in the world, and although they do not make a great deal of headway in the work of converting those of the sex particularly interested, it is possible that they may succeed in illuminating society with a few valuable ideas.

We are always disposed to treat the gentler sex—we hope the persons to whom those remarks are particularly addressed will forgive the epithet—even when in error, with greater consideration than we would care to bestow upon a male animal of the genus homo, when he makes a fool of himself in public.

the advantages and beauties of the "reform" costume. We doubt not that those women are inspired by the very highest motives and the purest intentions; but why, in the name of all the graces that are supposed to wait on the feminine toilet, did they think it necessary to choose a dress that is made up of the ugliest features of the male attire, and that is rendered doubly hideous by those physiological peculiarities of the female form that, however attractive when set off by flowing skirts, are anything but fascinating when revealed by breeches?

Did these women, in the seclusion of their retreat at Florence, beguile themselves into the notion that the world had begun to advance towards their position? or that they had at least made such an impression on society that they could appear in public without attracting remark? We can assure them that, whatever the hygienic inconveniences of the present female fashions in dress may be, the sex feminine are the first to repudiate the reform costume of the Florence Heights dressmakers, and that they will repudiate any attempts at reform in which the chief characteristic is hideousness.

It seems that our remarks on Saturday gave offense to some of the reformers, and we find in the columns of one of our contemporaries the following communication on the subject. We can assure the writer of this document that we are always ready to open our columns to any proper explanations from persons whom we may have occasion to criticize, and the advocates of the "reform" dress can have as fair a chance to present their cause to the public in THE TELEGRAPH as in any other paper published.

To the Editor of the Press.—Sir—I ask respectfully a place in your columns to explain the occasion and motives which induced some twenty of the women students of the Hygienic Medical College to visit Philadelphia last Saturday, and whose presence caused some of your city papers, especially THE TELEGRAPH, to publish articles of a nature so unbecomingly and unworthy of any respectable public journal.

Now, these women have adopted the "reform" dress (not the "bloomer" costume) from principle. They have worn it on all occasions for many years, as have some thousands of women in the United States. They have studied the subject faithfully, and have held three national conventions in view of comparing notes and providing the best possible style of dress that should combine convenience, utility, healthfulness, and economy, and they know they have succeeded.

The Hygienic Medical College has held yearly sessions in New York for more than fifteen years. During all this time a part of its women students have from the reform dress, which was checked the refined sensibilities of certain editors of that city attacked them with vile epithets or vilification.
