Tax route of this road is through the eastern tier of counties of the State of Illinois and il traverses a well-settled and highly cultivated region of country that is not surpassed in general productiveness and quality of soil by any portion of the State. This section, singular to say, has hitherto had no direct railroad communication with Chicago, which is the natural outlet for the produce not only of Illinois, but of a very large portion of the great Western country. The pecuniary success of the Chicago, Danville, and Vincennes Rallroad, which is now completed and in operation between Chicago and Momence, a distance of fifty-five miles, is a foregone conclusion. The Chicago Tribune, the editor of which is entirely familiar with the character and capacity of the country traversed by the road, says of it:-"We can see no reason for supposing otherwise than that this road, when completed to Banville, and connected with the Terre Haute and Evansville road, making, in fact, one continuous line from Chicago to Bvansville of 280 miles in length, will pour a trade into this city little less than that carried by the Himols Central. It passes through equally as good a country, and very little of the products of the lower 220 miles of country it traverses and controls have ever reached this market. The coal and iron business of the road must be heavy from the start, and a large trade in grain, cotton, hogs, and fruit and a large trade in grain, cotton, hogs, and fruit will seek the Chicago market, to be exchanged for lumber, merchandise, groceries, building materials, salt, fish, furniture, etc. Our business men have sat, fish, furniture, etc. Our business in lave been asleep to the coming advantages of this great and valuable artery of trade running along the boundary line between Illinois and Indiana, from Lake Michigan to the Ohio river. It is time they had wakened up, and were making their preparations to atransact their new business which in a few the will be pouring into their hands."

The road will be completed as far as Danville ere many months, and from thence it will extend in a southwesterly direction to the State line of Indiana and connect with the Evansville, Terre Haute and Chicago Railroad, the length of the line being about one hundred and forty miles. This road will be a first-class one in every respect, and it will considerably exceed the standard of first-class work established by the Government engineers for the Pacific Railroads. The road-bed is solid and of extra width, and the culverts, bridges, etc., of a character for many years wear. Upon this, white oak ties are laid to the unusual number of 2800 to the mile. The rails are of the best quality and weighing fiftysix pounds to the yard, and these rails are secured by fish joints. It is evident that such a railroad will need but little repair for many years to come, and that it can transact its rapidly increasing business without the corresponding outlay which most ndw roads require as soon as they obtain the business which their projectors anticipate.

In comparison with some of the best paying roads of the West the bonded debt of the Chicago, Danville, and Vincennes Rajilroad is small, and passing as it does through a rich and populous country, there can be no doubt that it will from the commencement of its operations more than earn its expenses and the interest on

Upon this road thus constructed, the company are selling first mortgage 7 per cent. gold bonds, having 40 years to run, interest payable semiannually. The sales already have been large, and the company has been purchasing materials for the extension and equipment. Among these purchases are 80,000 oak ties, 9000 tons of rails, 20 locomotives, 130 freight cars, and other articles in proportion. The road has an assurance of large and profitable traffic, both from the local trade and from the carrying of coal and iron from the points of their production along the line to Chicago, where they are in steady demand. The bonds are for $18,000 to the mile only, and at present price of gold they pay nearly 10 per cent. upon the investment.

These bonds are considered equally secure with Governments, and they are much more profitable, so that there is a decided advantage in making an exchange. The agents for the sale of the bonds are W. Bailey Lang & Co., No. 54 Cliff street, New York, from whom all information with regard to the road and its securities can be obtained.

NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, March 5, 1870.

Clever Mrs. Cantell. Goldsmith's lines ought to be reversed. It is lovely man that stoops to folly, and finds tha women generally betray. The only charm which then can soothe his melancholy is to take the case before the Tombs, and have his deceiver sent, if possible, to the Island. Mrs. Cantell. for instance, is a clever and attractive-looking woman, but she appears to have been coming the double-husband game. If the evidence adduced shows the truth, it would seem as though her matrimonial tastes were more catholic than correct, and that having deceived one man, her great revenge has stomach for them all. The man she commenced with was her legitimate husband, named Gould, who some years ago was "grafted into the army." Through succesful frauds he managed to get possession of $600 bounty money, all of which he handed over to his clever Catharine. Clever Catharine took the money, and likewise took her departure from beneath the roof where her husband had lavished uxorious spondulies upon her. It is ten to one if a drafted man ever comes back again. If he is not shot he might be, If he don't die of fever or diarrhea, there is no reason why he shouldn't in the ordinary course of soldier life. So at least Catharine appeared to think. Not to be left husbandless she provided herself with two strings-or rather, got two

"hubbles" on one. She dropped the name of Gould, and became Mrs. Cantell, upon a gentleman of that name paying addresses to her. Soon and right-feeling twins would do unde se pumstances, and Cantell evinced his sympaint . the man who ought to have been their father by having them decently buried (in coffin with a silver-plated plate), and paying the undertaker's bill. Time passed on-surprising as it may seem-and Mr. Gould, in the mos tantalizing manner, returned, the only disease from which he suffered being Enoch Arden or the brain. Gould found Cantell in this city, an went with him to the presence of Catherine when a spicy triangular conversation took place whose sequel transpired in the Tombs yesterday Catherine charges the man who says the twins are not his with having abandoned her, and he says-But I waive the interesting case unti more explicit particulars shall have become public.

Booth at the Olympic. Mr. Edwin Booth has procured a box at the Olympic Theatre for this evening. His desired is to see his comic prototype, Mr. G. L. Fox, in the character to whose immortality he has contributed a tithe. The spectacle will be a funny one, for such is Mr. Fox's devotion to art that he has had nearly all his teeth extracted for the

THE CHICAGO, DANVILLE, AND VIN- sake of giving a travestian degree of wocbegoneness to the part. At least this is the only theory upon which I can account for the comical concavity of this celebrated clown's cheeks. In private life he is plump and comfortable-looking. It is only during the present season of Hamlet that his checks have gone in and his teeth come out. I recommend this device to all young actors who would identify themselves with their art. Laughing-gas will enable them to submit to a long pull, a strong pull, and a pull altogether, and then they can have several sets of teeth made adapted to early and advanced stages of life. The teeth can be changed between the acts, and will be found invaluable in those dramas in which twenty years are supposed to elapse between the prologue and the first act.

Fat Women's Ball. The fat women held a ball at the Military Hall last night. The hall is at No. 193 Bowery, and the quality of the assemblage may be imagined. I do not like the idea of fat in connection with anything that is feminine. It is a common saying that the man that drinks is bad enough, but the woman who drinks-the sentence being left unfinished for want of a sufficiently apt comparison. So say I of fat women. A fat man Is bad enough, but a fat woman !- take her away at once, cart her off, let her be boxed up and placed upon a rigid course of Banting.

The Preumatic Transit Tannel is visited by between one and two thousand people daily. It was thrown open to the public last Monday, at a charge of twenty-five cents per head. On the Saturday previous there had been a reception tendered to the newspapers, at which I was given to understand the principal features were extremely bad champagne and a very vitiated atmosphere. Why the bad champague should always be trotted out when newspapers are about I don't know, unless it is because they so often drink so indiscriminately that it is assumed they don't have time to judge in the act of swallowing.

"Dend to Rights." This is a term which the police of the city are fond of applying to one of the celebrated female pickpockets of Gotham, who is always on the verge of committal, but never gets committed. Her name is Lou, and "Little Lou" is the denomination of endearment that is generally applied to her. Her favorite mode of operating is in crowded stages. She is small, and sharp, and bright, perfectly self-possessed, and hard to battle. She "understands her biz" as well as any one in her profession in the metropolis. She is "in" with several detectives, and has been useful to some of them on more than one occasion. Perhaps this is the reason why she always is safe. At any rate, whatever the reason may be, she always escapes. In the elegantly picturesque language in which a policeman referred to the mystery, "There is a nigger in the pit somewhere!" She always is getting "Dead to Rights."

Car-Children. It is Victor Hugo who remarks that the beautiful is as useful as the useful. A down-town manufacturer is endeavoring to prove that the ugly may be made as useful too. In the first place, he has manufactured several thousand miniature mirrors, so small that they sell for a trifle, and can be held in the hollow of the hand. He then went to work and hunted up all the frightful-looking and deformed children that could be made serviceable. To these he committed the sale of his min'ature mirrors, and sent the callow Calibans shivering through the principal street cars, displaying their wares and appealing to the sympathy of the public. The device took; the little looking-glasses sold; the one-eyed and hunch-back brats rejoiced and were exceeding glad; and the mirror manufacturer made money. On the back of each glass was an ingenious advertisement of his business, which no purchaser could well avoid reading.

The Truss Question. Mr. Reecher's denunciatory note seems to have had the effect of drawing out other testimonies against the swindling truss. One courageous act in this direction often has the effect of drawing forth many more. ALI BABA.
