FROM NEW ENGLAND.

New Hampshire Election. CONCORD, N. H., March 9.—Returns from 202 towns give Stearns 32,987; Bedell, 22,304; Hirst, 6898; Barrows, 1159. The remaining towns will give about 5000 votes, leaving Gover-nor Stearns majority at about 1200. The Republicans will have about fifty majority in the House. The vote for Senators elects six Republican, four Democrats, and one Labor Reformer, with one vacancy.

WALPOLE, N. H., March 9.—Walpole voted almost unanimously in favor of uniting with Westminster in establishing a free bridge over the Connecticut river. The Union Pacific Rallroad.

Boston, March 9.—The stockholders of the Union Pacific Rallroad met in this city to-day and elected directors for the ensuing year a John Duff, John B. Alley, C. H. McCormack, W. T. Gladden, R. Hazard, Elisha Atkins, A. C. Lombard, O. S. Chapman, James Brooks, G. M. Dodge, Sidney Dillon, Frederick Nickerson, and

FROM WASHINGTON.

The Cubau Question.

Special Despatch to The Evening Telegraph.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—General Quesada was before the Military Committee of the Senate to-day, and made a statement relative to the condition of affairs in Cuba and the progress of the insurrection. He exhibited facts to show that the insurgents hold two-thirds of the island; that they only needed arms to be able to attack and capture the seaboard eities held by Spaniards; but that, under the present circumstances, they could not hold these places if they had them. Quesada says if the United States would recognize the Cubans as belligerents they would make short work of the Spanlards. The committee was very favorably impressed with the statement, and the feeling among Senators in favor of Cuba is said to be in-An Expected Proclamation.

The President refused to see visitors to-day and stated to a Senator that he was engaged in writing an important document. It is inferred that it is a proclamation announcing the ratification of the fifteenth amendment. Blogham's Amendment.

An effort will be made in the Senate to strike out Bingham's amendment to the Georgia bill. The committee is divided on the subject. It is thought that if the Senate disagrees to it the House will reverse its action and concur. The Air Line Railroad.

2:10 P. M.—The morning hour in the House was consumed in discussing the Air Line Rali-road to New York. The House, by a vote of 61 to 71, refused to second the demand for the pre-vious question, and the bill went over till to-morrow. There is a large lobby here in the interest of rival roads opposing the bill, and its success is regarded as doubtful. Executive Nominations.

FROM NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Gold opened at 110%, with a frantic rush to sell; went to 110%, and

The Express says:—"At this juncture the bull cliques on the Stock Exchange suddenly bid gold up to 1111/4, in order to make the bids at gold up to 111½, in order to make the bids at the Treasury appear very much below the market, and prevent the Secretary from selling any gold. The total amount of the gold bid was $3,200,000 at 107½ to 111·10. At 12·45 it was announced that the Secretary had accepted $1,000,000 of the bids at 110·60 to 111·10. This $1,000,000 of the bids at 110.60 to 111.10. This threw the Gold Room into convulsions, and down went the price to 110%; but suddenly the market turned on the upward tack, and the price was jumped up to 111."

Great excitement attended these frequent finctuations, and the Gold Loom was the scene of enormous operations.

MUSA CAL AND DRAMATIC.

The 'lty Amusements. AT THE ACADEMY 6. MUSIC Weber's opera of Oberon will be produced for the first time this evening, with Madame Re a. Messrs. Seguin, Castle, Laurance, Hall, De Sc. a., Howard, Kinross, and Miss Geraldine Warden in the cast. The following is the plot of the opera of Oberon Charles at Chorus of

The following is the plot of the open of the open of Oberon opens with a chorus of genil and fairles in 'Oberon' spens with a chorus of genil and fairles in 'Oberon' spens, From 'Pinca' we learn that 'Oberon' and 'Titania, ha, his quarreiled in an argument on the relative coas, havy of man and woman, had parted in anger, vowing a ever to meet again until some couple should keep the 'Ir pighted faith through all trials, 'Oberon' enters and demands of 'Puck' where he has been since cock-crow; 'Puck' replies that he has been round the globe seeking for that which might amuse his king; two hours since he was at the throne of 'Charlemagne,' whose son having waylaid 'Sir Huon of Bordeaux,' was by him, in open combat, slain—all France proclaimed him justified, but 'Charlemagne,' allowing the feelings of a father to ontweigh justice, will grant him his life only on condition that he speeds to the court of the 'Caliph of bagdad,' slay nim who sits on the 'Caliph's' right, and claim his (the 'Caliph's) daughter as his bride. 'Oberon,' learning from 'Puck' that 'Sir Huon,' accompanied by a slugle squire, has already started, determines to befriend him, and bids 'Puck' bring them hither. 'Puck' departs, and a bank arises, on which sleeps 'Sir Huon,' and 'Sharsasmio,' this squires. determines to befriend him, and bids 'Puck' bring them hither. 'Puck' departs, and a bank arises, on which sleeps 'Sir Huon' and 'Sherasmin' (his squire), 'Puck' standing by their sides. 'Oberon' now conjures up a vision, showing to 'Sir Huon' Reiza' (the 'Caliph's' daughter), who lament, that 'Sir Huon' sleeps when she is about to fall a victim, and calls upon him to rescue her; the vision disappears. 'Oberon' having dissolved the spell on 'Sir Huon' and 'Sherasmin' explains that he is 'Oberon,' King of Fairyland, that he knows 'Sir Huron' and his mission, and if he is true he shall triumph. He gives 'Sir Huon' a magle horn, which, being wound softly, will bring instant aid; loudly, will bring 'Oberon' himself. 'Oberon' causes the scene to change to the Tigris, with Bagdad in the distance, and bids 'Sir Huon' go beldly into the city and comand bids 'Sir Huon' go boldly into the city and com-plete his errand. In the next scene, 'Reiza,' in the narem of 'Horoun' (the Caliph), learns through 'Pa-tima' that the knight has arrived, and hearing of her dream, has vowed to rescue her or perish.

"In the second act 'Haroun' is in his palace, surrou...ded by his court, 'Prince Babekan' seated on his right. 'Haroun' informs 'Babekan' that the time bas arrived for his marriage with 'Reiza' 'Babekan' expresses his impatience for the ceremony. 'Reiza' has barely entered at the command of her bas arrived for his marriage with 'Reiza.' 'Babekan' expresses his impatience for the ceremony. 'Reiza' has barely entered at the command of her father, when the clashing of swords is heard without, and 'Sir Huon' and 'Sherashmin' rush in with their swords drawn; 'Reiza' and 'Sir Huon' embrace, and 'Sir Huon' claims her as bride. 'Haroun' is furious and orders his slaves to cut 'Sir Huon' down; 'Babekan' demands that as his right. 'Babekan' is slain by 'Sir Huon,' the attendants are about to rush on 'Sir Huon' when 'Sherasmin' reminds him of the horn, which he winds. 'Oberon' appears and protects him. The scene changes, showing a ship lying at anchor in the port of Ascalon. 'Oberon' bids 'Sir Huon' and 'Reiza' embark as the vessel is bound for Grecce: 'Sherasmin,' in a loving strain prevalls upon 'Fatima' to accompany him.

"In the third act 'Puck' summons the 'Spirits of Earth, Air, Fire, and Water' to wreck a barque on the coast. In the second scene, a seashore is seen. 'Sir Huon' enters, supporting 'Reiza.' He upbraids himself with being the cause of her sufferings, and denounces 'Oberon.' They both lament the loss of 'Sherasmin' and 'Fatima,' whom they believe to be drowned. During the absence of 'Sir Huon' to seek assistance, 'Abdallah' and pirates land' and are carry-rying of 'Reiza,' when 'Sir Huon' returns and is by them struck senseless. 'Oberon' appears, and deploring the cruel fat a compels him to make 'Sir Huon' suffer so make summons 'Puck,' bids him guard 'Sir Huon' whom he has entranced well, and on the seventh day place him before the door of

'Sir Huon' suffer as make summons 'Puck,' bids him guard 'Sir Huon' whom he has entranced well, and on the seventh day place him before the door of the house of old 'Ibrahim,' the gardener, in Tunis.'

'The fourth and last act commences in a court of the garden of 'Ibrahim,' to whom 'Sherasmin' and 'Fatima' have been sold as slaves. 'Puck' descends with 'Sir Huon,' who is bewildered at meeting 'Sherasmin' and 'Fatima', from 'Fatima' he learns that 'Relza' has that morning been presented to the 'Emir' by the pirate captain. In the second scene, 'Roshana,' the 'Emir's' favorite, deposed in favor of 'Reiza,' thirsting for revenge, has noted 'Bir Huon's' mein, and marked him as a fit accomplice. She causes 'Sir Huon,' who hopes he may be about to meet 'Relza,' to be brought before her, abruptly avows her love for him, and proposes that he slay the 'Elzir' and share tha throne with her. 'Sir Huon' indignantly rofuses, declaring he loves another. 'Roshana' summons to her ald singing girls, who endeavor, but in vain, to fascinate 'Sir Huon;' he is about to force his way out, 'Roshana' clinging to him, when 'Almanzar' (the 'Emir') enters. In his fury he orders 'Sir Huon' to be burned alive within two hours. 'Reiza' rushes in, claims 'Sir Huon' as her husband, and, as a first favor, asks his parden. 'Almanzar' will pardon, even enrich him, if 'Reiza' will smile upon his ('Almanzar's') love; she refuses, and they are both about to be led to the stake, when 'Puck' appears and winds the magle horn: 'Almanzar' is rendered powerless, 'Sir Huon' and 'Reiza' are recessed; 'Puck' blows a louder blast, 'Oberon' and 'Titania' appear. 'Oberon' greets the happy pair. The opera concludes with a grand finale and 'Titania' appear. 'Oberon' greets the happy The opera concludes with a grand finale and Detective. AT THE AMATEURS' DRAWING ROOM, on Seventeenth street, above Chesnut, the French Comedy Company will appear this evening in Le Voyage de M. Perrichon.

AT THE ELEVENTH STREET OPERA HOUSE a variety of entertaining songs and burlesques will be given this evening.

AT DUPREZ & BENEDICT'S OPERA HOUSE

an attractive programme of minstrelsy will be presented this evening.

Signor Blitz and his son will give a magical entertainment at the Assembly Building this evening.

THE PANOBAMA of "The Pilgrim" will be exhibited at Concert Hall this evening. We refer our readers to the church benefits at this entertainment. Not far from 25,000 of our citizens are now directly interested in the success of "The Pilgrim." This system of a division of profits, adopted by Professor Baird, is working to mutual advantage. Whilst it is unusually liberal, it is wise, and we heartily commend Concert Hall as a spiendid place to spend an evening.
