THE DAILY EVENING TELEGRAPH-PHILADELPHIA, WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1870.

Evening Telegraph PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON (SUNDAYS EXCEPTED), AT THE EVENING TELEGRAPH BUILDING, No. 108 S. THIRD STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 30, 1870.

THE EVENING TELEGRAPH, from its original establishment, has been in the receipt of telegraphic news from the New York Associated Press, which consists of the Tribune, Times, Herald, World, Sun, Journal of Commerce, Evening Post, Commercial Advertiser, and Evening Express. The success which has attended our enterprise is, in itself, a sufficient evidence of the freshness, fullness, and reliability of the news which we have received from this source. We have now entered into a special contract by which THE EVENING TELEGRAPH has the exclusive use of the news furnished in the afternoon by the Associated Press to its own members, the North American, Inquirer, Ledger, Press, Age and German Democrat, of this city, and the leading journals of the of the land tenures, which proposed to apply East, North, West and South; and hereafter THE TELEGRAPH will be the only evening paper published in this city in which the afternoon despatches of the Associated Press will appear.

THE ADMISSION OF TEXAS. THE United States Senate yesterday adopted, by a decisive vote, the House resolution providing for the readmission of Texas into the Union, after having previously stricken out the proviso that the conditions and guarantees upon which Texas was originally annexed and admitted shall not be affected by the readmission. This proviso appears to have been a serious stumbling-block to the Judiciary Committee of the Senate, and the chief cause of its delay in acting upon the House bill. One of the conditions upon which Texas was originally annexed was as follows:-

"New States, of convenient size, not exceeding four in number, in addition to said State of Texas, and having sufficient population, may hereafter by the consent of the said state be formed out of the the consent of the said state be formed out of the territory thereof, which shall be entitled to admis-sion under the provisions of the Federal Constitu-tion. And such States as may be formed out of that portion of said territory lying south of thirty-six de-grees thirty minutes north latitude, commonly known as the Missouri Compromise line, shall be ad-mitted into the Uniou with or without slavery, as the people of each State asking admission may dethe people of each State asking admission may de-sire; and in such State or States as shall be formed out of said territory north of said Missouri Compro-mise line, slavery or involuntary servitude (except for orime) shall be prohibited."

Here, it will be perceived, are two very important conditions-one providing that Texas may be cut up into five States, and the other that slavery may be established in all her territory lying south of the Missouri Compromise line. The last-named condition has been practically rendered obsolete by modern legislation and the new constitutional amendments, yet still we think the Senate has acted wisely in refusing to reaffirm it even by implication. The people will not tolerate slavery in any State, and they should not be made to appear to sanction that detestable institution. The condition in regard to the subdivision of Texas may be respected when the necessity for such division arises, but it is unnecessary to discuss this question at length now, and it as not likely that a future Congress would deem itself irrevocably bound by any decision on this point that was made at the present session. If the House concurs with the action of the Senate in regard to these conditions, Texas will cease, for the second time in her history. to be a lone star, and become once more au acknowledged member of the American Union. Of all the Southern States she suffered least by the war, and its close found her people afflicted with a corresponding degree of contumacy. She therefore needed considerably more reconstruction than the other "wayward sisters," but as her rebellious citizens have had a good opportunity, by this time, to learn the folly of further antagonism to the national authority, her old relations to the Union may be restored without serious danger that her people will continue to delight in barbarous maltreatment of white Union men, and in the unprovoked slaughter of inoffensive freedmen. After peace and order are fully restored within her boundaries, Texas bids fair to speedily become one of the most powerful and prosperous of American States. She contains a greater variety of soil and climate than any other Commonwealth, and when her resources are thoroughly developed she will comprise within herself imperial elements of wealth.

single sentence. Even Delmar would not criticism, and Pierre has brought himself enture to utter such glaring and ridiculous alsehoods. When Mr. Wilkinson hunts up a Congressional district in Iowa that produces surplus food enough to feed the factory girls of Philadelphia, we will present him with a handsome leather medal, and meanwhile the Clerk of the House should see that he is furnished at once with a dunce-cap from one of the colored schoels in Washington City.

PRESERVING THE PEACE IN IRE. LAND.

MR. GLADSTONE, on accepting the Premiership, found himself confronted with a task that has baffled many generations of British statesmen, and when so many have failed before him it can scarcely be considered as a disparagement to his abilities that he has not made any great headway towards the pacification of Ireland since he has been in office. It is the cue of British rulers of the present day to endeavor to inspire an affection for British law in the hearts of the Irish, but Mr. Gladstone found that something more than the disestablishment of the Irish Church was necessary before he could bring the "finest pizentry on the face of the earth" into cordial sympathy with a people and a political policy that for centuries have been zealously cultivating a hatred which has developed into a chronic spirit of insurrection. The disestablishment of the Irish Church was followed by a measure for the better regulation a remedy to what has ever been one of the chief Irish grievances, but the agitation of Fenianism rendered it necessary to supplement this by a bill for the preservation of the peace in Ireland, which by the stringency of its provisions is expected to bring the rebellious sons of St. Patrick into immediate and lamb-like submission to the British rule. This bill has passed the House of Commons, and yesterday it was read for the second time in the House of Lords, where it was supported by a number of the peers. Among those who advocated the bill was the Marquis of Salisbury, who pertinently remarked that the Irish must be made to fear the law before they could love it. The English have been endeavoring to make the Irish fear the law ever since the twelfth century, when Pope Adrian IV conferred the sovereignty of the island upon Henry II, upon the payment of Peter's pence to the Court of Rome; and here in the year of grace 1870 the problem of ruling Ireland presents itself in its old shape, and an English statesman finds it necessary to recommend measures that will make the Irish fear the law before they can be expected to love it. It might be thought that the efforts to inspire fear having failed so often, those who manage the affairs of the British dominions would begin to lose faith in the idea that the affections of the Irish might be gained by this means, and they would be anxious to try the effect of some milder measures. We believe, however, that they are essentially right, for while the Irish may possibly be made to fear the English law, they will searcely feel any affection for it under any circumstances, and the only way in which the island can be kept in subjection is by the point of the bayonet. Among a large portion of the Irish the hatred of England and the English is hearty and ineradicable, and nothing short of total independence will satisfy them. That they will ever be able to obtain a severance from the British Crown is at least doubtful, and that they will ever be able to govern themselves in case they did set up a government of their own is more doubtful still. The Irish, like the French, are apparently incapable of self-government; and while we deprecate the selfish and despotic course of the English towards them ever since the two countries were united under one crown, it is by no means certain that the present condition of things is not better than any that would be likely to succeed in case a separation should take place. Statesmen professing liberal principles, however, are now in power in England, and it is clearly their duty to labor earnestly to bring about such reforms as will give the Irish no cause for complaint in the future. The abolition of the Irish Church was a step in this direction; and the bill for the regulation of the land tenures, although it will probably fail to satisfy many who are most interested, is another. But even with these reforms much remains to be done; and the bill for the preservation of the peace in Ireland, now under discussion, will probably, by the harshness of its provisions, do much to counterbalance the good effect of the other measures named. PRINCE PIERRE BONAPARTE. THE Paris journals announce that the Emperor of the French has requested Prince Pierre Benaparte to leave the country, and that, to oblige his Imperial cousin, Pierre proposes to visit America. There is no doubt that the Emperor is exceedingly anxious to get rid of Pierre as soon as possible, and that the further he removes himself from France the better his relatives at the Tuileries will appreciate him. The shooting of a Red Republican journalist by a member of his family was an awkward thing for the Emperor, who, in addition to the unpopularity to himself that must result from such an action, was reduced to the unpleasant extremity of either sending a near, if not a dear relative to the guillotine, or else securing his acquittal by a packed jury. He chose the latter alternative, and now he tells Pierre that he has already given too much annoyance to his relatives, and that the sooner he leaves the better. It is probable, too, that the Emperor has some regard for Pierre's safety, as threats have been made that Victor Noir's death shall be avenged; for, although the speedy taking off of Pierre would not cause any great grief in the breast of the Emperor, it would be an unpleasant thing to be obliged to hunt down and punish his assassin. We are sorry for his own sake that the Prince is coming to this country, as this

are sensitive on the subject of newspaper

into such notoriety of late that the comments of a portion of the press would be apt to be more personal than polite. The editors in the United States, too are not in the habit of fighting duels, or at least of sending challenges, so that in case of a difficulty with some journalist on account of uncomplimentary remarks on the subject of his character or personal appearance, the Prince would probably be forced to assume the attitude of an aggressor in a personal encounter, and if he should show himself as ready with his pistol as he was in Victor Noir's case, any average American jury would find him guilty without hesitation, no matter what his provocation might have been, if only for the sake of the novel sensation to be produced by the hanging of a prince. Perhaps the Emperor, with his customary astuteness, foresees some such consummation as this, which makes him desirous of shipping his cousin Pierre off to America as soon as possible.

LENDING TO THE LORD .- It has been reserved for a certain church in Nebraska to devise the most novel and fantastic financial scheme of the day. This congregation of saints propose to combine the possibility of profit with benevolence, after the fashion of the raffling church fairs which are so much in vogue in this part of the country, but they have gone a step beyond the practice prevailing here and given the people a lesson in financiering which should not be lost sight of. To cancel the mortgage debt of the church, non-interest bearing bonds in sums of $100 have been put upon the market, payable in ten years, and as a means of securing rapid subscriptions, two comparatively large prizes, to be awarded by lot in the same fashion, are offered, the one a $2000 United States bond, and the other a bond of half that amount. The inducement for the good Christians of Nebraska to invest in these sanctimonious securities is therefore the chance of getting their money back with interest at the rather steep rate of 2000 per cent., or 200 per cent. per annum. The authors and advocates of the various funding schemes now before Congress should take a lesson at the feet of the Nebraska saints. Let them abandon all the measures which have made such a muddle and unite in pressing through Congress a bill providing for the refunding of the entire national debt in non-interest bearing bonds with the offer of a dozen or so of $1,000,000 prizes as an offset to the deprivation of interest. In the present feverish and reckless state of Wall street, such a financial project would doubtless find favor and success.

The immediate object of hastening her readmission is to facilitate the official promulgation of the crowning act of reconstruction -the fifteenth amendment-which prohibits legal distinction on account of color or previous condition throughout the length and breadth of the land. It is desirable that this great work shall be irrevocably completed at the earliest possible moment, so that the nation may present to the world the proud spectacle of a perfected restoration of the Union, which is immutably based on doctrines of universal freedom.

THE REPORT of the proceedings of Congress yesterday contains a brief abstract of the speech of Mr. Wilkinson against a protective tariff, which embraces the following extraordinary sentence:--

"He [Wilkinson] ridiculed the idea of the agricul-tural interests being benefited to any appreciable extent by the manufacturing centres, and ventured the assertion that the farm produce of the district of his friend from Iowa [Mr. Allison] was more than would be consumed by all the persons engaged in manufacturing in the whole country."

After this assertion, Mr. Wilkinson may fairly claim the highest honofs as a free-trade statistician. We cannot see how any man can crowd more absurdity and mendacity into a
