CHTY PTEMS.

A FOOD TREASURE FROM THE SEA.—If the sea in its wrath has swallowed up an enormous amount of pro-perty, it has more than balanced the account by giving us in return many inestimable treasures. One of these is the nutritious sea moss growing upon its otherwise barren shores, and cropping out from wave-washed

"That stand far out in ocean like pilgrims from the land." Here, if disposed to air our botany, we might volunteer a technical description of the varieties of the crypt-ogamic order to which the sea lichens belong; but our present object being simply utilitarian and practical, we only propose to show that the more valuable of all the sea mosses—the Carrageon or Irish Moss—has been reudered, by a new process of manufacture, far superior to any article of its class heretofore introduced either in Europe or America.

The new preparation of this marine vegetable (if it may be so called) was patented only a few weeks ago under the name of SEA MOSS FARINE, and its purity, palatability, and extraordinary nutrimental properties are attested by mpetent scientific authority, and by those still more potential evidences of excellence—general popularity and extensive sales. The addition to our national bill of fare of an article which is claimed to be pro-eminently economic, as well as peculiarly wholesome, nourishing, and delicious, is a matter of great interest to the public, and, therefore, a proper subject of newspaper comment. As cordingly, the attention of the press, in all parts of the country, has been attracted to this new product, or rather this new manufacture of a natural product well known to the scientific world for its fattening, strongth-sustaining qualities. Editors and newsaper correspondents in all parts of the country seem to have investigated the merits of the Sea Moss Farine pretty thoroughly. It has been subjected to the experimentum crucis in humberless kitchens, and to the critiism of numberless epicurean palates, and the result, as far as we can judge, is a universal verdict in its favor. It has been placed, so to speak, in the front rank of our food staples, and all that has been said of it by the patentee (Mr. Rand), and the Company interested in its sale, appears to be approved and confirmed by public

Its uses, as set forth by the reports of scientific ex perts, are many and various. In the first place, when am played in the proparation of puddings, custards, bland mange, creams, gruels, and scores of other delicacies for the family table or the sick room, it adds largely to the quantity of nutriment derivable from the other materials; and in the second place renders the dish, whatever it may be, far more digestible and agreeable to the taste than it would have been without this cheap and pure ingredient. Such is the testimony of a large number of the most prominent hotel-keepers to New York and other cities, and of a committee appointed by the Farmers' Club of the American Institute to pronounce judgment on the new edible. The committee of ladies, among whom was an eminent medical graduate and the wife of the Secretary of the Institute, state in their report that a packet of Sea Mess Farine, costing twenty-live cents, will produce, when combined with milk in due proper-tion, full sixteen quarts of blanc mange, while a packet of corn starch, makena or farins, costing sixteen cents, will only produce, with the like quantity of milk, from four to six quaris—thus showing that the new food sta-ple is actually worth, as a means of nourishment, about one hundred and Afty per ceal, more than the heretofore popular preparations from maize and grain. It is also stated that it has none of the heating properties of ordi-nary farinaceous food, and is digested and assimilated with wonderful rapidity.

As far as we can judge, the conclusions at which the scientific world, the press, and the public bave arrived with regard to Rand's Sea Mess Farine are founded on incontrovertible facts, and we have no hesitation in warmly recommending the article to our readers as an essential of the economic cuisine, and as a genuine lux-ury. To dyspeptics we feel assured it will prove an invaluable blessing. It is manufactured by a company with ample means (located at No. 53 Park place, New York), known as the Sea Moss Farine Company.

These remedies are prepared by the newly discovered Chemical process of Professor Scott, termed SFEAM FILTRATION, by which the entire Active Principle of any herb, drug, or chemical is thoroughly extracted, and its curative properties increased a hundred fold over those made in the ordinary manner.

They are standard, most of the ingredients constituting them having been used by the physicians of the University, in their private practice, for more than twenty years.
