FRIDAY, APRIL 1, 1870.

IP THE EVENING TELEGRAPH, from its original establishment, has been in the receipt of telegraphic news from the New York Associated Press, which consists of the Tribune, Times, Herald, World, Sun, Journal of Commerce, Evening Post, Commercial Advertiser, and Evening Express. The success which has attended our enterprise is, in itself, a sufficient evidence of the freshness, fullness, and reliability of the news which we have received from this source. We have now entered into a special contract by which THE EVENING TELEGRAPH has the exclusive use of the news furnished in the afternoon by the Associated Press to its own members, the North American, Inquirer, Ledger, Press, Age and German Democrat, of this city, and the leading journals of the East, North, West and South; and hereafter THE TELEGRAPH will be the only evening paper published in this city in which the afternoon despatches of the Associated Press will appear.

THE LEGAL-TENDER DECISION. THE motion for a reconsideration of the question of the constitutionality of the Legaltender act was argued before the Supreme Court yesterday by Attorney-General Hoar on the part of the United States, and by Mr. Carlisle on behalf of the clients whose interests were favored by the late decision. Very cogent reasons were advanced for this reconsideration, and more especially for an explicit expression of the opinion of the Court on a point of vital importance which was decided rather by implication than in a direct manner. There is great force in the assertion of Mr. Hoar that the constitutionality of the Legal-tender act had been previously affirmed by every State Court except one, and that one was-Kentucky! If that treasontainted State is to interpret modern legislation, every important national law will speedily be set aside, and it is extremely doubtful whether the validity of the constitutional amendments can be maintained. The Attorney-General also directs attention to the fact that the late decision was made by a vote of four to three, or a majority of one, at a time when there were two vacancies on the bench, and he intimates that at least one of the judges acting with the majority had previously entertained different opinions, so that, in the language of Mr. Hoar, "on the differing opinions, at different times of his life, of a single man, the whole constitutional power of Congress and the execution in a time of the direct national necessity, after this long popular acquiescence and the decisions of State tribunals, was forever to be subverted and set aside and expunged from the practical powers of this nation." The scope of the late decision is thus stated by the Attorney-General: ----The Court has "not decided that this Legaltender act did not, as a matter of construction, apply to contrasts made before the passage of the act," but the Court has "decided that it was not within the constitutional power of Congress to insert that provision, making treasury notes a legal tender for priwate debts, previously contracted, in the statute." This distinction may belong to the class of hair-splitting differences which lawyers delight to discuss, but it nevertheless affords good ground for an application to a full bench of nine judges for its consideration of the question whether it is disposed to carry out, to all its logical consequences, the decision rendered by a bench of seven judges. From time immemorial the law has been full of glorious uncertainties, and on doubtful points no man can tell what the final construction of a statute may be until those who possess the privilege of making the last guess have rendered irrevocable judgment. The most important practical question raised by the decision is, whether the interest on unpaid loans contracted before 1862 should be paid in gold or greenbacks. We understand that several of the leading corporations of this city whose instalments of interest fall due to-day intend to pay interest, as heretofore, in legal tenders, but that they will accompany this payment with an agreement to advance hereafter the difference beween the current value of coin and currecey if the Supreme Court insists that such payments must be made. The fact that this couse is adopted affords in itself a good reason for the request of the Attorney-General that the late decision shall be reviewed, so that if he principle it affirms is sustained the existing doubts about its practical application my be cleared up, and if, o. the other hand, tha principle is overruled, all the business of the country may, in the sence of special contracts, be conducted herewter, as heretofore, on a greenback basis.

respect for the memory of the deceased will be offered. There ought to be a hearty response to this call, for nowhere in the country was General Thomas held in higher esteem than in Philadelphia, and it is eminently proper that there should be some public expression of the respect in which his memory is held.

DISGRACEFUL.

THOUSANDS of the citizens of Philadelphia who take a pride in the Academy of Music as one of the noblest theatres in existence, and who sometimes regret the base uses to which it is put, will hear with mingled astonishment and disgust that the Board of Directors have refused the building to Mr. T. B. Pugh for the purpose of introducing to the public of this city Senator Revels, of Mississippi, in the capacity of a lecturer. The sole reason assigned for this action of the board was "inexpediency," which means, in plain terms, that the barbarous spirit of ostracism against the colored race that has just been crushed out of our politics by the fifteenth amendment still rules the Board of Directors of the Academy of Music. The building was refused to Mr. Pugh simply because the gentleman whom he desired the people of Philadelphia should have an opportunity to hear speak is a negro. The directors have repeatedly refused the Academy to Frederick Douglass, and the fact that Mr. Revels is a Senator of the United States, and that the enlightened spirit of the age has abolished from the Constitution of the United States the discriminations against the race that he represents, are matters of ne moment to this little coterie, all of whom, with one exception, we regret to say, profess to be Republicans, and supporters of the enlightened national policy that has struck the fetters from the limbs of the negro and made him a citizen of this republic.

It is particularly discreditable that such a disgraceful affair as this should have occarred in Philadelphia on the very day when the official proclamation of the ratification of the fifteenth amendment was made public, and that it should have been the action of a body of men who profess to represent in a great measure the culture, refinement, and intelligence of the city. If the directors of the Academy in times past had shown themselves in the slightest degree fastidious with regard to the character of the exhibitions given on their stage, there might be some shadow of excuse for them in this instance. But, as every one knows, they let the building for shows of every description; and a stage upon which have been exhibited the flip-flaps of acrobats, the legs of the Black Crook ballet girls, the obscenities of Genevieve de Brabant and La Vie Parisienne, and numerous other performances of like character, can scarcely be contaminated by the tread of a Senator of the United States, even if he does happen to be a negro.

The following are the names of the Directors of the Academy of Music:-

President, JAMES C. HAND.

Treasurer and Secretary, JAMES FARQUHAR. FERDINAND J. DREER, JOHN P. STEINER, GEORGE S. PEPPER, FREDERICK GRAFF, FAIRMAN ROGERS, JAMES C. HAND. THOMAS SPARES, JAMES L. CLAGHORN, DANIEL HADDOOK, JR., HENRY M. PHILLIPS. Among these Henry M. Phillips, Esq., is the only Democrat, but we are very much ed to state that he was among those wh were willing that Senator Revels should speak in the Academy. Mr. Phillips, although a Democrat, is a man of large and liberal views, and no one will be surprised to hear that he is superior to any such contemptible motives as influenced the majority of the directors in this instance; that he was able to rise superior to the prejudices of caste on this occasion which places the Republican majority of the board in a more unfavorable position than ever, and he doubtless appreciates keenly the utterly ridiculous attitude of his associates. If all Democrats were like Mr. Phillips, the party would long since have gained something of its old power and prestige, especially when opposed by weak-kneed Republicans such as the majority of the Board of Directors of the Academy of Music have shown themselves to be. Mr. Phillips has brains, and it would be a good thing for some of the other directors if they were similarly endowed. He knows that the time has passed when such a contemptible piece of bigotry as the exclusion of a gentleman and a United States Senator from the stage of the Academy of Music on account of the color of his skin can pass rebuked in this community, and we hope that the expression of public opinion that has been called forth on this occasion will be a lesson not only for the directors of the Academy of Music, but for all others who may be disposed to imitate their example.

discharged soldiers, for the support of the great Christian Commission, etc. etc., and all this many times repeated for three long, dark years,-let these glorious deeds give answer.

Then the loyal people said to Congress, "Lay on the taxes to carry on the war until all Rebels lay down their arms." They bravely carried two special taxes in one year, and stopped not until the "cruel war was over," freely paying for a birthright, an heirship in one and the freest country on this earth. Will not our legislators think of this, and not ask that same number, or nearly the same persons, to pay all the debt besides ? It is worse than asking a noble man, who has done a wonderful day's work, to work all night, and to keep on working, without rest, day and night until the job is finished. Have we no faith in the next generation? Why ask one generation that has done so much to do the work of two?

FOUND AT LAST.

THE individual who first nominated General Grant for the Presidency has been found, and he has received his reward. It is with great satisfaction that we allude to this occurrence, for, amid such a multitude of claimants for the honor, there was much danger that the right person would be overlooked, and some pretender obtain recognition of services that he did not perform in the way of recommending Grant to the notice of the American people as the properest person that could be found for the Presidency. The happy man to whose prophetic forethought we are indebted for a President whose principal policy appears to be to pay off the public debt as soon as possible is Dr. Samuel Bard, of Georgia, who was on Wednesday confirmed by the Senate as Governor of Idaho, in place of Governor Ballard, whose commission expires on the tenth of this month. | It was while occupying the editorial chair of the Atlanta New Era that Dr. Bard conceived the happy idea of nominating Grant, and it is to the credit of the latter that he has not forgotten the recognition of his merits when he was only the occupant of the obscure position of General of the United States army, but having found the man who first nominated him, he promptly returns the compliment by nominating Bard for the Govership of Idaho. The prompt confirmation of the Senate ought to convince Dr. Bard that neither Presidents nor republics are always ungrateful.

THE TERMS of office of the Prothonotaries of the Supreme Court of Pennsylvania in Philadelphia, Pittsburg, and Harrisburg are about to expire, and the duty of making new appointments will devolve upon the judges. A petition is now being extensively signed in this city asking that the present Philadelphia Prothonotary may not be reapppointed on account of his implication in the naturalization frauds of 1868. The manner in which the naturalization business was conducted by the Prothonotary was fully exposed by THE EVENING TELEGRAPH at the time, and the public are well aware how nearly the frauds then perpetrated came to restoring the Democratic party to power and to placing a Democratic judge upon the Supreme bench. As to the impropriety of reappointing the present Prothonotary there can be no possible question, and with a majority of Republicans

VOLUNIARY CONTRIBUTIONS VS. CONTINUED HIGH TAXES.

The people are growing weary of this continued, continual tax-paying, and of supporting such an army of tax-gatherers, many of them in general idleness. They are growing more so every month. The petty and larger politicians, an army of them, at least, are living off of the hard earnings of the poor. The larger politicians who keep this army of retainers in the field appear to wish to have as large a number to work for their own private interests as they can get, and pay them off by giving them a living at the expense of the public. We would gladly be convinced by facts that these things are not so.

There must be a change ere long. There can be no more solid appeals to patriotism, and loyalty, and sympathy. What did the patriotism and sympathy of the people here de voluntarily during the war? Let the millions of dollars that were riven, freely given, for the support of the figuilies of volunteers, for the feeding of reginants of soldiers, as they were passing to and 1.om the field, for the support of hospitals, fo the sick and wounded, for soldiers' aid societies, for helping volunteer enlistments, for Sanitary Fairs, for relief of loyal citizens in deferent parts of the country who zens and soldiers, and proper resolutions of of gratitude to successful or wounded and upon the Supreme bench, it is clearly the duty of the judges to appoint not only men of assured honesty and trustworthiness, but staunch Republicans, against whose loyalty there is not the shadow of a suspicion, to these important offices.

For the last twenty years the Democrat have by some means or other contrived to maintain their control of prothonotaryships. and it is high time that there was a rotation in office. The injury that can be done by a Democratic prothonotary was sufficiently demonstrated by the exposure of the natural ization frauds in 1868, and the judges owe i to themselves and the public that no oppor tunities should be afforded for the perpetra sion of anything of the kind again.

DEATHS IN THE MINES.

THE "Coal Statistical Register" of the Mineri Journal has the following article upon casualties i the mining regions :- "The official report of th number of persons killed in the collieries in Schuyl kill county, from May 1 to December 31, 1869, was 57, which is one for about 67,50) tons of coal mined and 91 persons were injured, which is one for about every 42,400 tons mined during that period. Taking the whole year in the same proportion, it would giv 72 persons killed during the year and 115 injured No official report has been kept of the number of the injured that afterwards died, but as far as we re ceived answers to queries which we addressed t operators, about one-sixth of the injured person have died, which would give the number of death caused by casualties in the mines in Schuyikil county, in 1869, at 91, leaving 96 injured that su vived, in the product of about 4,883,000 tons. The causes of the deaths and casualties were as follows Falls of rocks. 2 Falis of rocks. Caught in screens and Falling in slopes and shafts .... pells..... By sundry causes ... . 5 Sundry causes . Leaving 30 widows and 132 orphans.

"These official statistics show that there were bu four deaths and thirty-six injured by explosions of foul gas in the collieries in Schuylkill county from May 1 to December 31, a period of eight month while the deaths from other cause - were fifty-three and the casualties fity-five from other cause These are important figures in the framing of a bill for the protection of the lives of the miners in ou collieries.

"We append the last report of the number o deaths in the mines of England, Wales, and Sco land, in 1867, divided into different districts, which shows a great discrepancy in the different parts of England and Wales :-
