NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, April 8, 1870

"Waxing at Schools." The subject of corporal punishment at the public schools has been agitated by the Board of Education. This is a theme which every few months affords directors the opportunity to waste all their ungrammatical eloquence. Not very long ago corporal puulshment was abolished in all the public schools, on the ground that it was degrading to the pupil, and in too many cases a mere pretext for gratifying the teacher's vile passions, without any reference to the fact that it sometimes transgresses the bounds of decency and defeats the very end it was intended to secure. Now it seems, however, since Mr. Beecher has discovered that sugar-cape is not the only cane fit to bring up a child on, that corporal correction is to be reinstated into its old place. One of the directors prudently made the suggestion that it should be administered to the small boys only, and that the large ones should be allowed to go unwalloped on account of the physical improbability of female teachers coping with them. If there is truth in statistics, however, it is generally feminine teachers who are most successful in administering this sort of chastisement, and who are least merciful in the degree of it which they inflict. The non-waxing system has had a pretty fair trial, and is said to have been a failure, and now the "waxing" regime is to be restored with especial reference to the Small Boy.

Trillingual Love. Not many months ago a young girl of about sixteen married an old man of sixty. The girl was Irish by birth, but had been brought up by Germans in this country, so that she spoke English with a beautiful brogue made up of equal parts of Irish and German accent. The man is a Frenchman, and though he has been a considerable time in this country, cannot speak a word of its Isnguage. How he made love it would not be easy to tell if love were a passion that required words for its expression. Happily, however, it is such a mysterious and profound emotion that words often only obscure the meaning it burns to express. I suppose he made signs to her signifying certain moods and tenses of the verb amo, and that she responded to the conjugation. At any rate they were duly married, and had not been married long before, as with "Sir Peter" and "Lady Teazle," he found that he had a young wife and she discovered that she had an old husband. He was very jealous; she was very provocative of jealousy. He used to lock her up in her room, whence she used to escape at all hours of the night and day. Finally the trilingual pair made their appearance yesterday afternoon in one of the police courts of this city. The French sexagenarian pleaded his case very pathetically in his own language, but seemed to produce no effect whatever upon the heart of the Irish-German of sweet sixteen. "Come, oh, come with me!" he exclaimed.

endeavoring to put his arms around her. He expressed himself of course in French, of which this is a free translation, with the poetic tinge preserved which it possessed in the original. "I veel not; I veel not!" exclaimed the young

"Come, oh, come with me!" pleaded the Frenchman once more, with a doating lear beaming from his eye.

"I veel not; I veel not!" exclaimed the girl once more in a melodramatic voice.

Thereupon ensued a trilingual gibbering which Mr. Feehter might have understood, taking in the sense of all three languages simultaneously, but which nobody in court did. The young girl "made for him" in both English and German, pouring forth language with a volubility which it was a pity was not spent upon a better cause. He answered her back again in equally voluble French, until at length the police justice put an end to the matter by advising her to go home and give him another trial, which she at length agreed to do.

The Spanish Ballet at the Tammany is one of the greatest frauds that have ever been produced in this country. Where the members of it were picked up I cannot pretend to say, but I should hardly say they came from Madrid. They bear no evidences of Castile about them-not even soap! -and their dancing is nothing more than a skippety-skip that the veriest tyro in a balle. would be ashamed of not being able to execute.

The Patti Concert was on Wednesday evening at Steinway Hall, and last evening at the Brooklyn Academy of Music, attended by enormously large and enthusiastic audiences. Did you ever hear the strong, sweet strains produced by bell-ringers? Her voice is just as melodiously mellow as that, and New York audiences seem just beginning to appreciate it in all its extraordinary merit. ALI BABA.

The Late E. N. Thayer as a Midshipman. In our obituary of the late Mr. E. N. Thayer we alluded to a rumor that had been current during his life, to the effect that during the action between the Chesapeake and Shannon, he being a midshipman on board the former vessel, he hid himself in the hold of his ship. After our article appeared we thought that it would have been better if such an allusion had not been made, and our excuse must be the haste in which we were obliged to collect our material and write the notice. Mr. Thayer was a gentleman for whom we always entertained a most cordial esteem, and in referring to the above mentioned rumor we had no desire or intention to say anything but in a kindly spirit. We regret, how-ever, that anything was said on the subject, and we very gladly publish the following letter from a son of the deceased actor, which puts his conduct as a midshipman on board the Chesapeake in a proper light before the public:-

To the Editor of the Evening Telegraph.

Deay Sir:—Permit me in my own name and that of the family to thank you for the complimentary notice of my father appearing in Monday's Tele-Graph, and also to ask a correction of the account of his connection with the Chesapeake. I have again and again heard him describe the action, and I know from the minuteness with which at various times he detailed different trifling incidents, all corrections of the main features, that although a boy robative of the main features, that although a boy he was not a more than ordinarily frightened one. On the day of the fight he went ashore in charge of the boat sent for Capiato Lawrence, and always asserted most positively that that officer was not in the slightest degree intuxicated.

The Shannon was foreign slowly seaward, and the

The Shannon was forging slowly seaward, and the The Smannon was forging slowly seaward, and the Chesapeake carrying more sail attempted to pass her, cross her bows, and rake her from forward. Unfortunately the manocuvre was not successful. The fire of the English out away all the rigging forward, so that the Chesapeake came up into the wind, and then backed stern first against the beam of the Shannon, which vessel poured, her brondsides comward, so that the Chesapeake came up into the wind, and then backed stern first against the beam of the Shannon, which vessel poured her broadsides completely through her. Father saw Captain Lawrence carried down the hatchway, and received perhaps his last order, "To board the foretack," a mancauvre which would have laid the vessels side by side, Going forward he found the boatswain cut in two by a shot, and could not get the order executed. As he attempted to return the boarders were pouring into the Chesapeake, and he was forced down between decks together with the rest of the crew, receiving a slight cutlass wound on the hand, the sear of which was laintly visible to the end of his life.

I must apologize for asking this favor, but you will appreciate that the imputation of cowardice, although he were but a boy, and however gently expressed, is extremely painful to the family. Thanking you again for your kindly notice, and fully aware that the objectionable sentence was not written in an unkindly spirit, I remain, very truly yours,

H. G. Thayer,

ART SALE. This evening and to morrow a sale of fine modern paintings will be conducted by B. Scott, Jr., at the Galleries, No. 1125 Chesnut street. This collection of works is well worthy of the attention of the art-loving public, as it contains a large number of first-class specimens from the easels of the best American and European painters. To those who wish to secure pictures of undoubted merit for the decoration of their homes this sale offers unusual facilities, as, for a variety of causes, it is almost certain that many of them will be knocked down at exceedingly low prices. These pictures are of a much higher grade than those usually offered at auction, and those who bid on them can do so with the assurance that they will got something worth baving. The names of the following artists whose works are included in the collection are of themselves guarantees of excellence :- Meyer von Bremen, Zamacois, Escosura, Herbstoffer, Boulanger, Church, Beranger, Herzog, Jacobsen, Kuwasseg, Preyer, Wilms, Sonderman, Hildebrandt, Haseltine, Lassalle, De Buel, Nehlig, Caraud, Lejeune, Bensell, Seignac, Paul Weber, Pecrus, Carolus, Eaton, Veron, Arnoux, Irving, Ramsey, Triebel, Von Seben, Bosch, De Haas, and a great number Dictures are of cabinet size, which makes them very desirable for the decoration of parlors and drawing rooms, and a visit to the galleries to-day, while they are on exhi bition, will enable any one to form a judgment of their merits and to make judicious selections. The sale will begin each evening at 7% o'clock precisely.

IMPORTANT TO SUPPERERS FROM NERVOUS EXCUR-MENT .- A gentleman residing in Grammercy place, New York (whose name it would not be proper to mention), was suffering terribly about three weeks ago from the effects of dissipation. He could not sleep, vomited frequently, was tormented by horrible lancies, and could not keep a limb still. Opiates made him worse. While in this condition he was visited by a friend, who advised him to try PLANTATION BITTERS as an anodyne, stomachic, and tonic. "No use," said the sick man, despondingly; "nothing will save me. I'm's gone case." "Pahaw!" said his friend, "you're worth forty dead men yet. I'm going to doctor you now." So saying, he put on his hat, and go to the nearest druggist's presently returned with a bottle of the Bitters, of which he administered a dose forthwith. It had a soothing, cheering, tranquillizing effect. For a week thereafter the gentleman continued to take the tonic regularly, according to the directions, and at the end of that time was able to return to business in sound health, and with a clear intellect. This information is furnished by Alexander T. Miuthrom, of Morrisania, who will confirm it if addressed by mail.

Two on Three Colos in succession will, with many constitutions, securely establish the seeds of Consump tion in the system, thus converting what was originally a simple, curable affection into one generally fatal, While ordinary prudence, therefore, makes it the business of every one to take care of a Cold until it is got rid of, intelligent experience fortunately presents a remedy in Dn. D. Jayne's Expectonant, thoroughly adapted to remove speedily all Coughs and Colds, and one equally effective in the primary stages of Consumption, Asthma, and Bronchitis Sold by all Druggists.
