NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, April 16, 1870.

Academy of Design. The National Academy of Design gave its grand spring reception last evening, and rivalled the fashion and wealth of the display for which preceding seasons have been remarkable. People do not go there because they love art and want to discuss it, but because it is the thing. Of course you have to tattle about art to some extent, but if you can wrap the web of what you have to say in that convenient phrase, "you know, you know," you will pass muster. It is only proper, however, to give the reception the peculiar kind of eredit that is its due. For instance, no public assemblage held during the winter displayed more rich and expensive dresses, a more utter recklessness as to how startling effects in costume were produced, so that they were produced. At no ball or opera of the entire season has there been so dazzling a display of jewelry and toilette audacity. The rooms and staircases were crowded. After orce having passed a certain spot there was no repassing it without going the rounds of a very large circle. Fashion and wealth, however, were not the only worlds that were represented. The world of intellect was there in some force. Mr. Bryant, the poet and editor, sat or stood alone the greater part of the evening, his classic head and beard suggestive of a majestic rock past which frivolous waters were bouncing. Dr. Bellows was also there, contemplating the pictures and the crowd with that geniality which enters so largely into his religion. These exceptions gave something of a dignified counterbalance to a celebration in which butterflies love to bask. Good Friday.

Hot Cross Buns! An English institution, but there is something jolly in it. It is refreshing, after you have just finished a hearty breakfast at total variance with the abstinent principles which Dr. Hall lays down in his "Health by Good Living," to see a man come in with a huge tray laden with the warm buns. Etiquette does not allow you to refuse, and if you can't eat one then and there, etiquette allows itself to be stretched sufficiently to permit of your carrying away the delicacy without your manners being called into question.

the caters of hot cross buns to the worshippers at St. Alban's. The theatres were poorly attended. The Stock, Gold, Produce, and Merchants' Exchanges and the Board of Cotton Brokers suspended their usual business meetings. Since the day was not made a legal holiday, of course the Government offices, banking institutions, and counting-rooms were kept open, but many places of business were closed, and had placarded over their doors an announcement relative to the sanctity of the day. With all the wickedness in high life as well as low for which New York is notorious, it is a city in which religious forms are observed to a vast extent.

Captain Mavne Reid, who is held in a kind of worship by every heart which beats in a boy's roundabout, is going to lecture on Bycon before an audience which he boasts will be mainly composed of old Knickerbocker families. Since he occupied "The Ranche, Gerrard's Cross, Bucks," Captain Reid has experienced many ups and downs, and, in the course of a life of vicissitudes, has gone through several fortunes. The last time at which be distinguished himself at fortunelosing was a few weeks ago, when his magazine venture exploded. In that he sank no less than twenty-five thousand dollars. The magazine, it will be remembered, was called Onward. It might better have been termed "Downward." At present the Captain is a wiry-looking gentlemen of about fifty, with prominent white teeth, a nervous manner, a gushing, expansive, and polite address, and obvious consciousness of his reputation. He thinks Byron one of the most unaffected and lovable of men, a shining example of scandalized innocence.

"[In!" The letters of Mrs. Calhoun, which have come to light during the McFarland trial, are naturally exciting a good deal of comment. She has managed to get all her friends by the ears, and indulges in an exquisite simile in which she typifies her correspondential connection with the Tribune, figuring herself as a warbler around whose feet Mr. Greeley has attached a string. It seems to be the general opinion that she has got herself on a string.

THE GREAT ART SALE OF THE SEASON .- Mr. D'Huyvetter's fine collection of paintings is now arranged for exhibition at the galleries of B. Scott, Jr., No. 1117 Chesnut street, and as the sale is to take place on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, they should receive the early attention of picture buyers and lovers of the fine arts. This collection is remarkable for the large percentage of very superior works that it contains, among the most noticeable of which may be named No. 61, "Waterfall in Norway by Moonlight," by A. Wust; No. 144, "The Shepherd's Rest," landscape by C. F. De Vogel, and cattle by E. Do Verboeckhoven; No. 47, "Royal Entertainment," by Backolowitz (this is the largest painting by this artist ever brought to this country, and it is a very beautiful work); No. 136, "Waterfall on the River Glonnen, in Norway," by J. Jacobs; No. 56, "Upsetting the Basket," by E. Bridau. This is a gorgeous flower picture, that is worthy of special notice. The most important pictures in the collection, however, are "Esmeralda and Djali," by J. Van Lerius of Antwerp. This subject, taken from Victor Hugo's "Notre Dame," is of a much higher class than the pictures generally offered at auction, and we hope it will be secured by some genuine lover of art and retained in this city. The same may be said of the spirited "Sea Fight at Walcheron" by Hendrick Schaefels of Antwerp. This subject is taken from Motley's "Dutch Republic," and we commend it to the notice of the public as a very superior picture. Another fine work is the Greek subject by Karl Ooms, entitled "The Return." This artist has a high reputation in Europe, although he is but little known here, this being the second picture by him that has been imported. Besides those we have mentioned there are a great number of excellent works of cabinet size that are admirably suited for the decoration of drawing rooms. This collection will be sold without reserve on the evenings of Tuesday and Wednesday of next eek oy Mr. B. Scott, Jr.

BIUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Italian Opera.

The approaching season of opera offers attractions which should awaken in the hearts of all lovers of the lyric stage a warm interest. We will again listen to the exquisite voice of our favorite tenor, Signor Brignoli, who has just returned from a successful tour in the West.

At San Francisco Brignoli created a great furore, and was received with every mark of favor and unbounded enthusiasm. On the night of his benefit-the last of the season-the satisfaction of the audience was evinced by warm expressions of appreciation. At this farewell benefit Sig. Brignoli was the recipient of three costly gifts-tokens of public esteem.

We are promised the pleasure of hearing Madame Gazzaniga in the operas of Lucretia Borgia and Trovatore, in which last named she will sing for the first time the role of "Azucena." The memory of her rich sympathetic voice and wonderful acting is cherished by every lover of music in this city. It is with a feeling of infinite sadness that we announce as a fact that this is positively "La Gazzaniga's" last appearance in

In the Philadelphia Academy of Music she was first introduced to the American public. Here in our midst she was accorded sympathy and the just meed of approbation, and it is in this city she has chosen to take her farewell of the stage.

Madame Gazzaniga has been faithful in her attachment to Philadelphia. May she receive a warm welcome in hearty response to the compliment she has accorded our city in choosing it as the recipient of her foad adjeus.

Signor Paolo Giorza, the musical director, who is one of the greatest living composers, is a man of brilliant talent and refined sensibility. His celebrated compositions have won for him renown upon the Continent.

At the early age of fourteen Signor Giorza first appeared before the musical world. Although but a boy in years he composed the music of the ballet entitled Una Faulta, which was produced at the La Scala, Milan, where he led an orchestra of over ninety musicians. In recognition of his talent Victor Emanuel accorded him decorations. Signor Giorza has composed sixty ballets, together with countless fugitive pieces. We are told that ere long he will give to the public an opera.

AT THE WALNUT Mr. Lewis Morrison will have a benefit this evening, when he will appear as "Pizarro" in Sheridan's drama of that name, and as "Jonathan Wild" in the drama of Jack Sheppard. Between the plays Mr. W. H. Jones will recite Lover's poem of "Shamus O'Brien." Mr. Morrison is a studious and talented actor; who has made many friends in this city during who has made many friends in this city during the present scason, and he should receive the compliment of a crowded house on the occasion of this his first benefit here. The play of Pizarro has not been represented in this city for a long time, and it ought to be an attraction of the first magnitude independently of the merits of the beneficiary.

On Monday Mr. and Mrs. Barney Williams will appear in The Emerald Ring.

At the Chennut Mrs. J. A. Oates and her burlesque troupe will appear this afternoon and evening in The Field of the Cloth of Gold.

At the Arch the comedy of Married Life
