THE DAILY EVENING TELEGRAPH-PHILADELPHIA, TUESDAY, MAY 17, 1870.

NEW.YORKISMS.

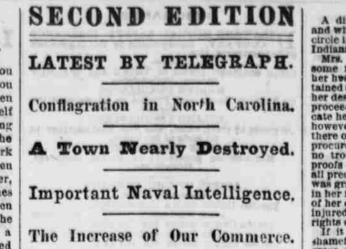

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, May 17, 1870.

The "Spoons" of Central Park. Go to Central Park of a Sunday night if you wish to see happy love in lowly life. When you lose sight of the hundred lights of the Garden Concert, you might easily imagine yourself fifty miles away from everywhere, rambling through a moonlit Arcadia dedicated to the working people. At such an hour Central Park is the poor man's paradise. It abounds in green secluded alcoves where fragrant leaves embower. and balmy waters roll, and bashfulness becomes eloquent and poetic, and the emotion between sweetheart and lover finds a rhyme for itself in the beauty and silence of the hour. There is not a solitary nook which is not thus divinely niched with Kate and Thomas, or Biddy and Patrick. Let us hope there are few Juans and Julias among these humble lovers. Of all the nights in the week, Sunday night at Central Park is a heavenly time for "spoons." You see them beneath the trees, along the bridges, in the boats, beside the lake, down the alleys, above the rocks, and all over. Every other class unites at other times in usurping these precincts, but on Sunday evening the park is understood to be set apart for the occapation of lovers of low degree. To sing their praises aright a newspaper Boccaccio would be required. You hear the car-bells of the various avenues tinkling faintly in the distance, but poetic fancy transmutes them into the sound of cattle-bells. The lights and music from the garden concert come in sweeps and flushes. but they seem like fairy unrealities disassocisted from lager-bier and refreshment in general. The world seems made for love, and our hewers of wood and drawers of water seem to have the best right to it.

Insunity as a Orime-Coverer.

Insanity covers more sins than even charity did. The insanity ascribed to criminals is the charity of the nineteenth century. Not to refer to a recent case that will be in every one's mind. witness that of a suicide which took place a day or two ago at Long Island, where the selfmurderer tied his legs together and managed somehow to fetter his arms, and then flung himself into a wheel-race. And cases as bad as this are occurring around us every day. But when the insane man, instead of taking his own life takes that of another, there is some show of reason in the petition that has been got up by a number of women in this city, praying Governor Hofiman that one McFarland may be imprigoned in a lunatic asylum, in order that citizens may be protected from him. Of course, these women are the gritty-natured Amazons, the women of the sterner sex who have already done so much gabbling and so little good. But if they succeed in confining this fellow, many will be the women of the softer sex who will rise up and call them blessed. Lamp-post Law.

In this city it is not theft to appropriate newspapers one finds on the outside of lamp-post boxes. A case of this kind, where a Chinaman helped himself to some newspapers that were thus lying loose, has just been decided by a court in this city. Not being inside the boxes, they were not considered to be in the custody of the United States. The general public appears to labor under the delusion that so long as newspapers and letters touch a lamp-post box they are as good as delivered, and I have been much dified and interested in observing the sweet and lambent confidence which old ladies sometimes evince in human nature by depositing outside the box unstamped letters, accompanied by three pennies to defray the postage. Mr. Stockton's Play. Mr. J. D. Stockton's delightful comedy of For vs. Goose was presented last evening for the first time at Mr. Booth's Theatre, Mr. Clarke taking the part of "Jack Gosling." The comedy, as Philadelphians have reason to know. is written in Mr. Stockton's most spirited and sparkling vein, and furnished the genius of Mr. Clarke with the opportunity for displaying itself in the rarest and most genial phases of humor. It was attended by one of the largest and most cultured audiences of the season, who were evidently attracted by that important event, the production by a genuine American actor of a genuine American play, written expressly for him by a genuine American author. Very soon Mrs. Waller, who is to next season fill the position now occupied by Miss Morant, will appear in a "grand romantic play." In some characters Mrs. Waller is an effective and beautiful actress, but when she rants, as she too often does, her voice is painfully ragged. It sounds as though it had been hung on a clothesline in a hail-storm and the pegs had blown away. Exit "Mawworm." The Rev. Charles B. Smythe had no weeping eves to wipe when he bade farewell on Sunday to his congregation in the Eleventh Street Presbyterian Church. Although there was more sorrow than anger in his look, he did not melt, but sternly reminded his parishioners that they would remember what they had done and be sorry for it when it was too late. I have no disposition to join with those narrow-minded cynics who gloat over the failings of ministers of the Gospel; but there is a ludicrous as well as a sorrowful side to the subject, and Mr. Smythe's cheek in defending his conduct deprives him of all the sympathy which would otherwise be held in reserve for him. Now that he is relieved from clerical duties, there is no reason why he should not prepare a new libretto for The Black Crook, which they say is to be revived. Like "Mawworm," he "likes to be despised."

FROM THE SOUTH.

Destructive Fire in North Carolina.

NORFOLK, Va., May 17 .- The entire business part of the town of Henderson, North Carolina, was destroyed by fire this morning. The fire was first discovered issuing from a store on Maia street, belonging to Dr. Debrian. It spread very rapidly, and soon barned every building on both sides of the street for a distance of two hundred vards. Every business house in the town was destroyed. The fire is believed to have been the work of an incendiary. The loss is roughly estimated at $50,000, only a small portion of which was covered by insurance.

A Bogus Indiana, Divorce Upset.

A divorce case of more than ordinary interest, and which has attracted the sympathy of a large circle in this city, has but recently been decided in Indiana.

Mrs. Martha Lamite Johnson was astonished some months ago by receiving a notification that her hysband, Mr. William R. A. Johnson, had obsome months ago by receiving a notification that her hysband, Mr. William R. A. Johnson, had ob-tained a divorce from her on the faise allegation of her desertion. She had received no notice of such proceedings, therefore had no opportunity to vindi-cate her rights. Her counsel, Mr. George Northrop, however, immediately proceeded to Indiana, and there obtained proofs that faise witnesses had been procured to accomplish the outrage. He spared no trouble in establishing before the courts such proofs of the infamy of the prosecution, that against all precedents in such cases in Indiana, a new trial was granted to Mrs. Johnson, and a decree made in her favor, with alimony and the exclusive control of her child. Thus justice has been accorded to an injured lady who had the courage to claim her rights even from an Indiana tribunal. If it is painful to record but too frequently the shameful proceedings of lawyers, so styled, who dia grace their profession by tampering with law and justice, it is gratifying also to notice the noble and, we will add, successful exertions of one of our pro-minent members of the Prindelphia bar, who, in presence of so many obstacles, did not hesitate to seek for and obtain justice, in defiance of malignity and faisehood. Mr. George Northron has proven by presence of so many obstacles, did not hesitate to seek for and obtain justice, in defiance of malignity and faischood. Mr. Genrge Northrop has proven by his success in the present instance that unjust divorces obtained under faisc pretenses, even in the State of Indiana, can be set aside when an upright lawver fears not to labor for the cause of justice.

FINANCE AND COMMERCE.

EVENING TELEGRAPH OFFICE, ? Tuesday, May 17, 1810.

The usual bank statement yesterday gives further proof of an extremely dull and easy money market. There is a slight falling off in specie and loans, of the latter to the amount of $178,795, which is due to the apathy existing in trade circles. On the other hand, the deposits have increased $637,544, and the legal-tenders $393,520. The dulness which has marked the course of the loan market during the week is faithfully reflected in the very heavy reduction in the clearings, amounting to $8,330,799. There is some demand for call loans, but it is quite moderate, and rates continue as last quoted

Sunday Reading-Rooms.

The question whether the reading-room of the Mercantile Library shall be opened on Sunday is beginning to be agitated again, and a meeting will be held to-night for the purpose of deciding it. Is it any worse for a poor man or woman to sit and read in a public place on the Sabbath than for a rich man to sit and read in his own library? After all, the question tapers down to that. Among the directors of that library is a reform party, which is in favor of having the room open, but they will probably have a hard fight with the opposition.

The Country Parson.

The country parson is in town. You cannot. thread a thoroughfare or an intersecting bystreet without encountering the black suit, the black kid gloves, and the white tie of the rural black kid gloves, and the white the of the rural clergyman who has come to join in the May anniversaries. He has brought his best sermons with his best clothes, and has polished his boots and his brains for the occasion. He dreams of metropolitan revivals of which he shall be the instigator, and all his castles in the air are peopled with protracted meetings. For once in a lifetime he lectures before a congregation of fashionable saints and sinners, all equally well fashionable saints and sinners, all equally well dressed, and all presenting fronts of impertur-bable and impenetrable indifference. Let us think kindly of our green, good brother, and act genially to him, and send him back to his vege-table garden, and his small salary, and large family, and hob-nailed fold under the impres-sion that he has not sojourned among us in wein ALT BABA.

THE DEATH OF A SOLDIER.

The Commander of the Wanderer-The Com-panion of Lopez and Walker.

General J. Egbert Farnum, one of the most erratic and reckless spirits of the period, died yesterday at his residence in New York. General Farnum his residence in New York. General Farnum was born in New Jersey, April 1, 1824, and received his education in Pottsville, Pa. During the Mexican war he was sergeant-major of the 1st Pennsylvania Volunteers, Colonel Wynkoop, serving with marked distinction until the close of hostinities. He was with Walker in his Nicaraguan expedition, serving with the fillowster up to the date of his capture.

General Farmun's love of adventure led him with the wildest and bravest to take service in the Quitman, Lopez, and other fillbustering expeditions fitted out from this country, and in all of them he bore a conspicuous part. He was also commander of the slave yacht Wanderer, of Savannah, and was captured in his first attempt at landing a cargo of slaves in Georgia. At the outbreak of the Rebellion he entered the

At the outbreak of the Rebellion he entered the army as Major of the 1st Excelsior Regiment of New York. He soon rose to the rank of lieutenant-colonel, and afterwards to that of colonel, and was breveted brigadier-general for gallant and meri-torious services. General Farnum participated in nearly all of the battles in which the Army of the Potomac was engaged, and was severely wounded through both legs at Williamsburg, on the 7th of May, 1862. Subsequently he returned to his regi-ment, but his wounds forced him to retire from ac-tive service and accept a coloneloy in the 11th Vete-ran Reserve Corps. ran Reserve Corps.

THE N. Y. MONEY MARKET VESTERDAY.

From the N. Y. Herald.

"The general characteristic of Wall street to-day was duliness. The street was devoid of the usual sensational telegrams from Washington, unless we except the announcement that the new Tax bill pro-poses an abolition of all taxation on gross receipts – a measure of the highest importance to the railway interact interest.

interest. "The gold market was heavy at the opening and under a pressure of sales intended to induce an in-crease of the short interest as well as to make a good starting point for the 'bulls,' who have planned a starting demonstration this summer, the price went off to 114%, but then steadily advanced to 114%, closing strong at 114%. "The prominent feature of the beginning of the weekly business was the case in the money market. Borrowers on prime collaterals were freely accomweekly business was the case in the money market. Borrowers on prime collaterals were freely accom-modated at three to four per cent., and on the usual miscellaneous stock collaterals at four to five. A number of bank officers were on the street to-day endeavoring to place large amounts at four per cent. Accommodation at bank is freely had by good customers, while in the open market prime commercial paper is current at six to six and a half per cent. per cent. Foreign exchange was firm on the basis of 109% for prime bankers' sixty-day and 110% for sight sterling bills. "The Government market was dull and steady, the lower ruling of gold in the early part of the day seeming to have little influence, while the later ad-vance simply strengthened prices."
