PHILADELPHIA DOGS. From the N. Y. Tribune

Dogs, we regret to say, still prove the ob-stinate unwelcome apparitions that stand be-tween our sister city and her happiness. Other communities are bestirring themselves with regard to railroads, steamers, or other great national topics; but the City of Bro-therly Love still sits solitary, brooding over the momentous question:—"What shall we do with our dogs?" The cause of this solici-tude it is impossible for us outsiders rightly to comprehend; whether the cause a momentum that and the cause of the cause of the cause dent of our modern story with a pang. There is not a true-hearted man or woman in population has really become alarmingly ex-cessive, or whether it arises from that rare refinement of charitable spirit which characterizes the neighboring village. We incline to the latter supposition. From a careful study of our Philadelphia exchanges we are forced to the belief that every shape and form of imaginable human suffering has been there largely provided for, and that the phi-lanthropists, in sheer desperation for new worlds to conquer, are compelled to turn to the dogs. So entirely is the city free from the dogs. So entirely is the city free from the poor and needy human beings to be found elsewhere, and so comfortable is life to every Philadelphian, that the benevolent who wish to confer a gift on their employes or associates can find nothing else to bestow than a graveyard lot. Tombstones are now orite or societ to adorn Christmas tracs or as quite en regle to adorn Christmas trees, or as

It is no wonder, in this beatific state of We do not read that they went away, and have a right to infer that they did not, until the voluntary or delegated work was done, and they had listened with delight, not at all completion and complacency, that the yet uncared-for vagabond curs should have risen like a ghost to trouble joy and have become a ince a ghost to trouble joy and have become a matter of deep public concern. For the last year Philadelphia's fair women and scientific men have taken connsel together. An asylum was proposed, any which homeless dogs of the nobler breed should receive that bodily com-fort and sweet spiritual sympathy which gentle woman is always ready to bestow. like Henry's on the eve of Agincourt, to "armorers closing rivets up" on the wasted limbs of a feeble prisoner in their hands. It is a sad thought, think of it as we may. The deed was, according to the Talleyrand formula, worse than a crime—a huge, stupid blunder, having for its direct and permanent effect the awakening of pity and even the second second second second second second and permanent effect the awakening of pity Dogs of the baser sort were sent to that and sympathy where, according to the cur-rent judgment of the North, neither was due. bourne from which no traveller is supposed to bourne from which no traveller is supposed to return, especially if he be travelling on four feet. The asylum was not built, owing to some unreasonable stinginess and outcry from persons lacking in the nobler sensibili-ties. The ladies proposed to call it a pound. But the majority were still unmollified. Philadelphia stood in grief and doubt, a wan-doming our on a power struct without a load The whirligig of even so short a time as three or five years works odd changes. The manacled prisoner of 1865 was released from all custody—loyal radical men of the North gladly entering the bail and becoming respon-sible for him and his good behavior; and the dering cur on every street without a local habitation or a name. Her lamentations over them for a year past could be heard whole world of humanity and chivalry will agree with us in saying that the consciousness of the sureties is more to be envied than are the ghastly memories of those who ordered the shackles and superintended the blackof all men; her priests sighed, her virgins were afflicted, and she was in bitterness. Last week an idea came to her relief; but whether smith. it emanated from the brain of one of the ladies, or the physicians whom they had summoned to the council, it is impossible to discover. The dogs were all collected, a tub constructed THE FENIAN MOVEMENT—A SKIRMISH ON THE FRONTIER. From the N. Y. The sarcophagus was then opened; but in-stead of a cohort of dead dogs, each with a smile of gratitude for his euthanasia upon his iowls, behold the whole mangy troop frisk-ng and lively to the last degree. "On the morning of the 23d of May," says a loyal his-torian and gallant man—for such were both Dr. Craven and Mr. Weed's dear friend Hal-pine—"on the morning of the 23d of May a yet bitterer trial was in store for the proud spirit of the captive—a trial severer, proba-bly, than has ever in modern times been in-flicted upon any one who had aniored each prove that because attacks upon the colonial dependencies of Great Britain over the border have failed, there will not remain a disposi-tion here among a large class of our people to encourage, tacitly at least, such movements, until the just claims of our Government as to the unsettled Alabama business are at-tended to.

bly, than has ever in modern times been in-flicted upon any one who had enjoyed such eminence. This morning Jefferson Davis was shackled." At the end of exactly the period when, in ancient days even of civil war, the explaing sacrifice was offered and the sins of all washed out, we read of this inci-It is reported that the Board of Education has under consideration at the present time the question of allowing longer vacations than have been customary hitherto in our public schools. It is well known among teachers that the New York ward schools the land, be their political prejudices what they may, who does not wish this deed of unallow less vacation to the teachers than do the schools in any of our rural districts. New England, which has never been accused of necessary cruelty had not been done; and it is one of the administration secrets, which injuriously neglecting mental exercises, long since concluded that better work is got out of both instructor and scholar by allowing a sufficient and healthful time for rest and doubt not, the truculent civilian busybody change of occupation. The high and district schools of that section give spring, winter, and summer vacations, amounting together to ten or twelve weeks. The colleges and seminaries and private schools throughout the country allow as much or more. had his share in it, or some amateur soldier who either had a personal wrong to avenge or a political end to gain. On the 22d of May, Colonel Roberts, of the regular service, was relieved of the command of Fortress Mon-

The theory allow as much or more. The theory among physicians and prudent parents is that the quality of the work of the children's brain, during the remaining nine months, is such as to make up for the dimin-ished quantity; while the physique—on which all else depends—is better preserved by these three months' holidays. Then the labors of the teachers, if faithful and earnest, are ex-ceedingly exhausting and wearving and prohero-baptized, oddly enough, Napoleon Bonaparte (ob, St. Helena and Sir Hudson!) —who was smarting under the recollection that, but one month before, he had been soundly thrashed by the Rebels at Farmville, ceedingly exhausting and wearying, and pro-badly, among women of culture, there is no branch of employment so trying to the nervous system. As a profession, the teachers are unquestionably the most useful of any, and the poorest paid. Like clergymen, their compensation should be in a longer rest from toil each year, as well as in the greater re-spect of the community. The future success of our children depends in a large measure on the quality of the teachers' labors. This can be best improved by a sufficient rest being granted in the hot season to their bodies and minds.

Our New York city schools give generally but six weeks' vacation in summer; and yet, of all parts of the country, this city presents the severest field of labor in the hot weather. Many of the schools are in crowded and unhealthy districts; the teachers, by the 1st of July, are jaded out, and after that date the work accomplished in them is mainly a form. Under the improved methods of teachingsuch as the "Object System"-it should be remembered that the effort is treble what it used to be under the old routine system. The teachers are exhausted sooner. So convinced are the English school reformers of the injury of too much school work, that, even in their cool climate, they have established "half-time schools," and consider them the most efficient for young children. In our intense summer, either half sessions or a complete holiday from the 1st of July till September would, we are convinced, be the best for both pupils and instructors.

That is a startling revelation which the Senate's Committee on Retrenchment have made. They have evidence that during the Southern Rebellion President Juarez of Mexico was in league with the Confederates, helping them to get off their cotton, and making money by the operation; and supplying them in turn with arms and ammunition which he had imported into Mexico for the manity were worsted. Murder as a fine art was a failure. The ladies and physicians beat an ignoble retreat, and the dogs were "punched full of deadly holes" by the police, according to immemorial usage. Since then, additional gloom has fallen upon our staid sister. The ghosts of the unscientifically murdered dogs rest heavy on her soul, and be-fore the unavailing pound, like Constance mourning for her child's fate, there she and Sorrow sit.

MANACLES.

From the N. Y. World.

Rear-Admiral Dahlgren-he who, years Rear-Admiral Dahlgren—he who, years ago, invented bottle-shaped cannon, but did not use them very effectively during the late war—has recently written a letter to Mr. Bennett Forbes, of Boston, in commemora-tion of the gallant Williams of the Oneida. In it he mentions, properly enough, that Williams, then a lieutenant, headed the assault which, on the night of the 8th of September, 1862, was made, without the co-operation or even the knowledge of the army, on Fort Sumter. He then adds—and it is this which moves our curiosity as a mere this which moves our curiosity as a mere this which moves our curiosity as a mere matter of history:—"He there was made prisoner with the gallant Preston, and had the honor of wearing manacles in a Rebel prison." Having read in the good book of the "bonds of iniquity," and elsewhere of the "fetters of verse," and even of the "manacles of rhyme," we are at a loss to determine whether the gallant Admiral is speaking literally or figuratively, and whether he means to state as a matter of fact that Mr. Williams or any other unresisting prisoner Williams or any other unresisting prisoner of war was put in shackles. Bad as the Rebels may have been, we have never before heard this imputed to them; and, indeed, amidst all the horrors and atrocities of that wretched strife there always, or at least generally, seemed to be a humanizing influence, generated, as it were, by professional associations and sympathies, which forbade harshness of this sort to captives of rank on either side. It was made matter of reproach to General McClellan by the Covode gang that he treated one of Johnston's staff with courtesy, when taken prisoner on the Chickahominy; and we all know that when McCall and Reynolds were, about the same time, captured, they were for a time—until civilian busybodies, those pests of war, interposed—lodged in the best hotel at Richmond and treated kindly. McCall used in his grave way to tell, with as near an approach to jocularity as he ever ventured on, that, being on foot and fatigued when taken, he was, in spite of remonstrance, mounted on Wigfall's horse, and thus taken to General Lee's headquarters, the hilarious and generous Texan walking as best he could alongside. We are free to say that we had rather dwell in memory on these traditions of military courtesy and mercy than on the facts or figures of our acrid Admiral. If it be true that Colonel Elliott, who on the occasion re-ferred to commanded at Sumter, and whom even our loyal Lossing pictorially praises, did shackle Williams and Preston, or anybody, after the assault was over, it should be known. If false, it will be well for Dahlgren to be more cautious in his metaphorical exorbitances.

For one reason-apropos of manage-we shall be glad if it turn out to be true. We have heretofore blushed under the belief that the enormity of manaeling prisoners of war of rank was rather on our shoulders, and have found consolation in one notable instance in the fact that the shame of it was due, not to adopting this course General Grant has followed the example of his predecessor, Andrew Johnson, in 1866, who not only by proclama-tion, but by the action of the United States troops, utterly wiped out the absurd under-taking of that time, capturing the provision trains, seizing the ammunition and arresting the military leaders on the frontier. That a proclamation against it, assuming, of course, settled the invasion business for that time. The news from the frontier shows a gathering of men at various towns and a general movement towards the frontier, of small bodies passing through the different cities north and east of Albany, as well as some migration from the West as far as Detroit and certain parts of Wisconsin. But the more significant news is that a force of Fenians, three thousand strong, had assembled at Pigeon Hill, on Canadian soil. There appears to be no truth in this statement, and probably not much more truth in all the other reports. The facts are that a few Fenians, about five hundred strong, under command of O'Neill, while advancing from Franklin, Vt., towards the Canadian frontier, were fired upon by some Canadian militia. The fire was returned, and one or two men were shot on both sides. After the skirmish United States Marshal Foster arrested the Fenian commander, O'Neill, on arrested the Fennan commander, O'Neill, on the spot, and thrusting him into a carriage drove him off to Burlington a prisoner, leav-ing—as the telegrams say—his little army so demoralized that many of them eagerly turned their faces towards home, and sought means of transportation from St. Albans. It is not certain—despite the fizzle of Wed-nesday—that the disturbance is entirely over, but no doubt the arrival of a few regular troops under General Meade will disperse

the grande armee of General O'Neill. Impotent, foolish, and illegal as this move-ment is, and easily put down as it can be by the United States authorities, adventures of this kind should be a warning to England. They are the natural growth of an immense Irish population, almost every man of whom hates England and would bring her to ruin or any portion of her dominions, from Nova Scotia to New Zealand, if opportunity offered. There can be no doubt that this is the spirit of what is called Fenianism. It is the spirit which enables a body of men, no matter what their qualifications or status may be, to get a sufficient number of their countrymen to subseribe money and furnish recruits for any expedition upon British soil, such as the last raid on Canada in 1866, and the present one. Would it not be wise for the British government to consider that there is but an imaginary line between this country and Canada, and that Canada will always be a source of irritation, as well as a weak spot, for the restless anti-English element in this community? The best thing British states-men could do, under these circumstances, would be to annex Canada to the United States; to pay off the Alabama claims, and then we would hear no more of lawless Fenian raids. The sympathy of the American people would be withdrawn from all movements and organizations having such aims as invasion, whether for conquest or plander. If England does not act squarely in the matter of the Alabama clasms, and thus cultivate some better feeling than now exists, Americans may come in time to sympathize more closely than they do with hostile movements of this kind; or, indeed, the Irish element, which becomes stronger every day, may force us ultimately, against our will, into a war-the last thing at present to be expected, and certainly an event most of all to be deplored.

The Fenian flusco twice repeated does not purpose, and on which he also realized handsome profit. If this be the truth there is nothing baser in the annals of national or personal ingrati-tude. Mr. Juarez owed his existence and that of his Government to the United States. We recognized and protected him when he had not an ally elsewhere, and when his tenure of Mexico was a mere foothold at El Paso. We denied to his enemy, the sham Emperor Maximilian, permission to procure supplies in our markets, and we refused to receive any of the agents he sent to Washington, although they came with the loudest professions of friendship. Mr. Romero, the diplomatic representative of the Mexican Republic, was constantly supported by Mr. Seward and Mr. Lincoln, although no member of the diplomatic corps in Washington would hold any relations with him. Madame Juarez, the wife of the Mexican President, was received by the Secretary of State and entertained in his own house with impressive and most signifi-cant hospitality, in which even the enemies of Mexico were politely forced to lend their assistance. And finally, Mr. Seward crowned his protracted and brilliant diplomatic de-fense of Juarez and of his Government by crowding the French army of Mexico, leaving the President free to take easy possession of the country, and teach the world a useful lesson in the execution of Maximilian. Such, briefly told, is the history of the Mexican republic and of its chief from 1861 to 1865; and now it is most disgusting to be to 1865; and now it is most disgusting to be told by a committee of the Senate that du-ring this period the republican leaders of Mexico were betraying the United States to our enemies and their own, that they were smuggling cotton and smuggling powder, all with the vulgar motive of making money by their treachery. We hope, for the credit of human nature, and for the future of his country, that Mr. Juarez may be able to dis-prove and annihilate these imputations; but prove and annihilate these imputations; but if he does not clear them away, he will deserve never to have a friend again, and he will be very sure to get his deserts.
