DECORATION DAY.

TO-DAY has been devoted to the observance of the beautiful custom of decorating the graves of the brave men who, in defending the Union, lost their lives. It is most and fitting that the surviving comrades of the heroes who have sunk to rest, by all their country's wishes blest, should formally pay an annual tribute of respect to the memory of their companions in arms, and that the great people whose personal safety and cherished institutions were maintained by the valor of their soldiers should liberally aid and participate in these ceremonies.

RELIGIOUS INTOLERANCE. Our despatches from the Southern Presbyterian Assembly on Saturday do not look promising for the reunion of the Northern and Southern organizations. The report adopted by the Louisville Assembly demands that the Northern Assembly must purge the Church of error in regard to political utterances, deliberately pronounced year after year, and which, in our opinion, was a sad betrayal of the cause and kingdom of our common Lord and Head, nor can we by official correspondence consent to blunt the edge of our testimony concerning the nature and mission of the Church as a purely spiritual body among men.

The action of the Louisville Assembly precludes the possibility of farther advances on the part of the Church North to effect a reunion. Bad as have been the repeated deliverances of the Church South touching slavery, considered either in the light of what is now history or as fundamental articles of religious faith, the Church North did not demand that their Southern brethren should discard their utterances or change their convictions. They were asked to unite as Christians, regardless of their political views, and no humiliating surrender of belief was exacted. To this the Louisville Assembly answers that the Church North, whose recent political utterances have been interwoven with the unalterable history of Christian progress, must be disavowed, and the Church made to grope in the dark paths of error and prejudice, while the nation advances in every feature of enlightened and religious civilization.

The blindness and bitterness with which Southern branches of the several Churches insist upon blotting Christianity with the drags of slavery is one of the unaccountable follies of the times. It certainly is not because of the want of Christian toleration and charity in the North, for it has been willing to waive everything that could possibly be conceded for the sake of brotherhood, yet it is met with foolish pride, and but too often with malignant speech.

At the recent anniversary of the American Sunday-School Union, the prominent orator was Rev. J. H. Brookes, D. D., of St. Louis, and yesterday he filled important pulpits in our city. He has been received with marked hospitality in the City of Brotherly Love, as have all who came in the name of the Church, and yet, in an article in the Old School Presbyterian of St. Louis, of March 11, 1870, over his initials, and referred to editorially as his article, he denounces the Presbyterian Church North in language that would disgrace the lower strata of secular editors. Speaking of the union of the Assemblies, so happily consummated within a few days, Dr. Brookes denounced the Church as follows:— "The bad men who were tossed to the surface of the Assembly by the violence of the political storm have trampled under foot the constitution of the Church, and with Papal arrogance the sacred right of protest, and, as far as they were able, the kingly crown of Christ.

"They have led their timid and temporizing followers far away from the landmarks of truth, until the glorious old doctrines of grace are promptly surrendered for power; principles are cheaply bartered, and the bride-elect of the Prince of Life is ready to play the whore with any political party that may bid for her services."

We are glad that the eminent divine who could thus write of the Presbyterian Church North but a little more than two months ago, has been here mingling with the men he denounces in such indecent terms, for he has seen for himself and must bear witness that not only exploded political errors, but even reviling approaching blasphemy, are met with the largest measure of generosity and forbearance. However assailed, the great men who have reunited the Presbyterian bodies of the North go on in sublime devotion to their mighty work, and their high Christian example and teaching must in time triumph over individual malice and sectional hate, and make Presbyterianism a common brotherhood in the United States.

THE NEW PROTHONOTARIES. Mr. Conkline's bill on the subject of naturalization, recently introduced in the Senate of the United States, among other wise provisions enacts that all certificates of naturalization issued in the large cities subsequent to July, 1868, shall be void of and of no effect, unless proved before the competent authority named by the new bill.

A REVOLUTION IN LILLIPIP. And now comes Costa Rica, one of the three-by-four republics of Central America, with a full-fledged revolution, which has resulted in the complete overturning of the old Government, and the setting up of a new one. They go about these things systematically in Costa Rica. Only a year ago, Dr. Castro, the constitutional President, was upset, and a person by the name of Jimenez installed in his place.

Now and then—Four Paris newspapers and several provincial ones are under prosecution for having published a copy of a proclamation attributed to Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, and dated 1848, when the future Prince Regent of the republic and Emperor of the French set foot in France for the first time since his escape from the prison of Ham, to offer his disinterested and patriotic services to the Provisional Government of the Republic. In that proclamation, which M. Olivier now declares an impudent forgery, Louis Bonaparte protested that he would sooner suffer the most terrible penalties than be unfaithful to the republic. Whether the proclamation was a forgery or not, certain it is that it was adopted as perfectly genuine and authentic by the Bonapartist committee sitting in Paris, of which General Flaj was President, and which was particularly active in its propaganda on the eve of the terrible June insurrection. Not only was the proclamation adopted by the Bonapartist committee in those days, it was never repudiated by Prince Louis Napoleon Bonaparte, and only last year it was reprinted in more than one of the republican papers in Paris, and went the round of the provincial press, without the slightest hint from the Minister of the Interior or any of his prefects that the document signed by Augustus a name was "an impudent forgery."

chain of five feet gauge railway from the Chesapeake to the Mississippi via Burkeville, over the Virginia and Tennessee Air Line to Memphis and points West; via Greensboro, Charlotte, and Atlanta to Vicksburg, New Orleans, and Mobile; and via Cheraw to Charleston, Savannah, and Ferdinand, shorter than the shortest now operated and run. Once on the Chesapeake, a line of steamers across the bay will connect the Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Annapolis line at Crisfield, and the whole grand scheme for a quick and expedient route from Boston, New York, and Philadelphia, to the far South and Southwest, is accomplished. Success to the enterprise! THE TELEGRAPH is decidedly in favor of all new routes, and particularly those which facilitate trade and reduce the expenses of travel. The time for reaching Richmond, from Philadelphia, will then be less than twelve hours; Charleston, thirty-four hours; Atlanta, thirty-seven hours; and New Orleans, sixty-six hours.

GRAND MUSICAL CELEBRATION. TWENTY-SECOND ANNIVERSARY OF THE TABERNACLE BAPTIST CHURCH SUNDAY SCHOOLS, AT THE ACADEMY OF MUSIC, On THURSDAY EVENING, June 2, 1870. AN ADDRESS BY RALPH WELLS, of New York.

THE CLERICAL CIRCLES at Rome were in a great state of consternation recently. It had just been discovered that the rebellious Orientals had escaped. Only a day or two before a Roman prelate had been to see the Armenian Bishop Casangian, in the monastery where he was a guest or prisoner, and had found him in bed, declaring himself to be far too ill to attend to any business, but, by the aid of two friends' passports, the supposed sick man, the Archbishop of Diarbeck had left Rome by railway for Naples, intending to go thence by steamer to Constantinople, in order to take a leading position in the new Armenian schism.
