within a few minutes after he had named that figure. The reason why the property sold so cheaply was that when Mr. Albert D. Richard-son bought it he took it at the price of $9000. Of this amount he paid only $1500 down and gave a mortgage for the balance; the mortgage being for $7500, which is held by Mr. Anson, the original owner of the property. The sale yesterday was made subject to Mrs. Richardson's (McFarland) right of dower and the rights of (McFarland) right of dower and the rights of the minor children (three in number) left by Mr. Richardson. The interest due on this mortgage, after subtracting $60 paid on it, amounted to $459 99.

The sale was conducted very quietly. Mrs. Richardson was not present. She is still living at the Woodside villa, and has recovered from the illness from which she suffered while the trial of McFarland was going on. Mr. Richardson's children are all with her, but her little boy

A Pence Party Organizing Among Havana Spanlards-Another Raid on Freemasons-Burning Sugar Mills and Polsoning Wells. HAVANA, June 15 .- Advices from Santiago announce that General Merelo has quietly assumed the position to which he was appointed by the Home Government-Governor of the Eastern Department-but with the compromise that Count de Valmaseda shall remain at the head of the military affairs of the department. This is a substantial victory for the volunteers over the Home Government, since they thus prevent the removal of their favorite and keep him in the position they desire. General Merelo wisely concluded that a divided command was far better than no command at all, for had he not agreed to the compromise it is about sure that the volunteers would have forced him to return to Spain. Their success in this instance is but another evidence of what has long been apparent-that the Serrano and Prim government of Spain has more of a nominal than real control of the no longer faithful island.

WELLS

The order of General Cavada, the Cuban Commander-in-Chief, to burn and destroy all sugar mills, houses, cabins, etc., that may serve the Spaniards in their warfare, is being rigidly com-plied with by his soldiers, and very likely in a few weeks more there will not be a single building left standing within twenty-five or thirty miles of Puerto Principe, save along the line of the railway, out of over one thousand there were before the war commenced. General Cavada and his men are terribly in earnest, and this enrages the Spaniards very much, but not as much as an intercepted order of General Agra-monte to the commander of the "Twelfth Bat-talion, Division of the Camaguey," to poison the wells of Sabana Nueva and all other wells the Spaniards are apt to use. The Spaniards have published the order, but without any date attached; a suspicious omission, which cast many doubts upon the genuineness of the order.

WHERE THE DRAWING WAS DONE.

The sittings were all held in a dark room, and were opened and closed by the circle reciting the Lord's prayer. The ladies and medium were required to stand during the entire time and to sing. Sometimes the sittings lasted for two or three hours, making the attendance anything but a pleasure. During the sittings sounds like but a pleasure. During the sittings sounds like pencils moving upon paper were distinctly heard. Towards the end of the third week the faith of the members of the circle began to flag, when the raps asked, "If you are permitted to see a hole over the paper will it give you strength to persevere to the end?" The ladies replied "Yes." It was then rapped out, "Don't cause confusion by exclamations when you see the light " the light.

A SUPERNATURAL SIGHT.

In a few minutes afterwards a halo was visible over the paper upon the table, and the pencils distinctly seen in an upright position moving upon the paper without visible hands. Three sittings before the last the ladies were ordered to procure a sheet of the thinnest tracing paper. It was purchased and at the next meeting placed in a roll upon the table. Before the close of the sitting a light was or-Before the close of the sitting a light was or-dered, when the drawing paper was found covered with the tracing paper fastened down by pins and books. The ladies were then di-rected to examine the unfinished picture through the tracing paper, which they did, and at that time there was no writing upon the paper.

RAPHAEL'S INTERPRETER.

The medium who officiated at the sittings was Mrs. Margaretta Fox Kane, one of the original Rochester Fox sisters. She does not reside in the house, and had no means of access except when admitted in answer to the street door bell. It would have been impossible for her to have tampered with the paper without being in col-lusion with others in the house. The mother of the person whose portrait the picture repre-sents was one of the circle, and was so much pleased with it that she gave the medium $100 for her time at the seances.

THE PICTURE.

As a work of art coming from the hand of As a work of art coming from the hand of Raphael, a more perfect production was ex-pected. The expression of the face, with its eyes turned heavenward, is exquisitely sweet, and the left shoulder and breast are true to nature. The color of the eyes and hair is said to be like that of the original, and a strong family resemblance is recognized by all who have seen the picture. The hands are crossed upon the right breast, with the fingers pointing upward, and from the right hand a rosebud droops toward the left shoulder. The arms, from the elbow to the wrist, and the hand are badly drawn and out of proportion. The defect is a marked peculiarity of the picture, and, to some persons who have seen it, presents evidences of its production as represented. At the bottom of the picture is written in Italian, in a bold hand, "Estiva rosa somiglia mia vita" (my life is like a summer rose), and across the left-hand corner is the name Raphael, said to be a fac-simile of the great artist's signature. The painting has created a decided sensation among spiritualists, and, whether or not it be a production of the marvellous master from whose hand it is said to have come, it is a curiosity, and the select few who have seen it have at least found in it something to talk about.

GREAT EAR-SPLITTING FESTIVAL.

A Perfect Sham-It Expires of Emaciation and

General Debility-A Pecuniary and Musical Disaster. The musical festival dwindled away steadily after the Elijah night, and on Saturday evening expired of emaciation and general debility. Its last hours were disturbed by the clamors of unpaid artists and impatient auditors, and hardly a friend remained to close its eyes. Without Parepa the festival would have tumbled to pieces long ago. In a pecuniary sense the festival must have been disastrous. In an artistic sense, despite some excellent performances to which we have done full justice from time to time, it has also been a bad failure. A Beethoven testival it has not been in any sense of the word. During the whole eleven concerts only two compositions by Beethoven have been played, and both were played badly. The exaggerations, not to say false pretenses, of the advertisements were too flagrant to be excused. The blunders and confusion in the management were too obvious to escape notice, and too annoying to be borne with patience. We are far from saying that the performances as a rule were poor. If they had been an-nounced as a series of great popular concerts, at reasonable prices, no one would have com-plained; but purporting to be a jubilee celebra-tion of the centenary of the greatest of com-posers, with tickets $4 apiece for each performance, they invite the severest criticism. The first and most obvious fault was the want of a recognized musical head. Programmes got themselves made somehow or other in town meeting, and these were followed or not, as convenience dictated. A splendid array of operatic artists were present, but nobody knew how to turn them to account. With the repertory at their command we might have had an unequalled variety of selections; but parts had not been furnished for the orchestra, and the list of possible pieces was consequently reduced to a few, of which the music could be bought or borrowed at a moment's notice, and these were repeated over and over again. Several eminent conductors were engaged, but the orchestra was of a second-rate quality and had no rehear-sals. Better music is given by Theodore Thomas every night at the Central Park Garden than was given any time last week by the orchestra at the Rink The effect of the Festival upon art we believe will prove unfortunate. The Boston Jublice, with all its little absurdities and shortcomings, and the inevitable imperfection of performance in which ten thousand voices and five hundred instruments took part together, gave an extraordinary impulse to musical enterprise all over the country, infused vitality into scores of choral societies, developed a latent popular taste for the works of the best masters, and set for-ward the average musical culture of New Eng-land a good half generation. The Jubilee in York, on the contrary, has discouraged musicians, disheartened musical societies, and strengthened the vulgar prejudice which calls Handel stupid and Mendelssohn a bore. Even the least cultivated ear listens with delight to a choir: but such indifferent performances of oratorio music as we generally have in New York cannot possibly interest any except those who know enough of art to go behind the imwho know enough of art to go behind the im-perfections of the interpreters and catch the spirit of the composer. The Festival of last week has developed nothing but the popular taste for gunpowder, and that was strong enough already. One of these days we shall perhaps have a genuine Musical Festival. Who-ever undertakes the herculean task of getting it are undertakes the herculean task of getting it up will find the recollection of this sham one a formidable obstacle to be overcome. -N, F. There has been no secret about his poverty or about the insufficiency of his income, and the reasons for his going abroad bave been repeatedly published in the newspapers. A MUSICAL JUDGE. An Opera Troupe in Court-A Judge's Musical Criticism. Blanch Ellerman, a young prima donna, engaged for the Bernard-Richings troupe, recently he failed. He was greatly discouraged by this, and also at the way in which his patriotic ser-vices at the opening of the war were slighted. Before leaving here he offered his private library for sale, as a means of meeting the expenses of his family on their passage to Europe. There were in this library many valuable books of a military and scientific kind, for which he hoped to obtain good prices. But though his friends of the press called attention to the sale, he rea-lized very little from it, few of the books bring ing one-quarter their cost or value. He left here a poor man, shattered in constitution, and with an income so small that he had very hard work to cover the necessary expenses of his family. He has been living for some time past in an humble way at the French town of Tours, from which we now receive the reports of his dangerous illness. It seems strange that some of the rich men of New York, who have lately raised large sums of money to keep the families of Stanton and Rawlins, after Stanton and sued the latter for salary. Judge Cooley, of New Orleans, has delivered the following entertaining decision :---"The plaintiff cultivates that branch of the fine arts called music, and the defendant is the directress of an opera troupe. This opera troupe, it appears by the record, adds to its many sterling qualities in point of musical talent the advantage of constant locomotion it is always on the wing-perlpatetic as well as musical; and goes by the high-sounding title of the 'Richings English Opera Company.' "It appears that the plaintiff was employed to act in the capacity of assistant prima donna, obligating herself to sing such parts in the operas to be performed by the troupe as are written for a soprano voice, the directress re-serving for herself the honors of the premiereship as prima donna. The period of her engagement was eight months, beginning on the 13th of September, 1869, she to sing not less than four days each week, and at one matinee if so required. And for these services the defendant agreed to pay her the sum of seventy dollars per week, to give her one benefit, and besides, as was necessary, considering the ambulatory character of the Kichings English Opera Troupe, to pay all her travelling expenses, except hotel

"There is no contest about the contract alleged by the plaintiff; nor relative to the fact that she complied with all its terms, except that that she complied with all its terms, except that of capacity to sing and perform the part allotted to her. The plaintiff alleges her ability and willingness at all times, and the defendant, though admitting her willingness, strenuously denies her capacity. The case therefore pre-sents simply the question, whether Miss Blanche Ellerman possessed the voice and the artistic culture required in an assistant prima donna. "The defendant offered the testimony of nearly all the members of her troupe to show al imperfection in the voice of the plainBoston Congregationalist and brother of Albert D. Richardson; and two or three persons who were drawn to the place by curiosity. Mr. Stone annnounced that the Court of Chancery LATEST BY TELEGRAPH. TO DAY'S CABLE NEWS.

When Lopez left his horse to enter the wood they alighted also, and fired almost without stoppage, and it was their balls which closed the life of Marshal Lopez, wounding him mortally in two places. ### A POST-RAPHAELITE PICTURE.

The Latest Marvel in the Spiritualistic World -A Crayon Portrait Said to be from the Hand of the Great Italian Master.

The spiritualists of this city, says the New York World, have been much exercised in mind for some time past over a picture which was recently completed, and which spiritualistically purports to be the production of Raphael, the great Italian painter. The history of this pic-ture may be briefly told.

ture may be briefly told. On the evening of May 12 a circle was held at a private residence in Thirty-fourth street, under the mediumship of Mrs. Margaretta Fox Kaue. the circle being composed of three ladies and the medium. During the scance the following communication was "rapped out:"— "We will draw you a picture of Mrs. B— (a daughter of one of the ladies of the circle). The artist will be Raphael, and the picture very much in the style of his Madonna della Seg-g ola. The attitude will express three affections —the hands be pointed towards God, and signify

-the hands be pointed towards God, and signify devotion; the smile to her mother; and the exion of love to all. These three-named expressions are the attributes that tend to convey to your minds all that makes the soul divine. We want you to commence and end each meeting with the Lord's prayer." In fulfilment of the above request, a circle was held twice a week at the house where the ladies reside, and the result is the production of the promised pleture.

By invitation of a friend, the writer paid : visit to the house to examine the picture and listen to the statements made by the ladies reisten to the statements made by the ladies re-garding the manner of its production, which was in substance as follows: The time con-sumed was about four weeks. Two circles, as already stated, were held each week, although at some of the sittings, conditions not being favor-able, no work was done upon the picture. The actual time occupied in drawing has been com-puted at seven hours. The directions governing the proceedings were always given through the rat s.

DRAWN. A large sheet of drawing paper and a lot of crayons were purchased at Goupil's, as directed by the raps, and placed upon a large-sized quar-tette table at the first circle. The paper was marked by each member of the circle, and also by other persons residing in the house. A piece of muslin was also ordered and strings sewed at each corner. It was placed over the paper by the spirits, and at the close of each sitting the strings were tied to the legs of the table by one of the ladies, and the table placed in a small

A PROBABLE LIE.

A Broken-Down and Neglected American General. New York Correspondence Cincinnati Commercial.

The cable despatch from France about the dangerous illness of General Robert Anderson, of Fort Sumter fame, is almost tragical, in view of his physician's direction for a change of cli-mate as the means of saving his life. General Anderson was broken in health, if not in heart, when he was compulsed to leave New York a when he was compelled to leave New York a year ago. He was unable to pay his very moderate expenses here out of LLUG tiff, as well as entire want of musical training and education. The testimony of these members of the Richings English Opera Troupe would have received some consideration in determining the question presented by the merits of this were it not for the fact that a great deal of case, said testimony forces me to the conclusion that the members of that troupe, in testifying, forgot they were not on the stage. Their opinion of the capacity of Miss Blanche Ellerman is seriously affected by the overweening vanity which they exhibited in estimating their own talents. If we are to believe these censors of the plaintiff, the Richings English Opera Troupe has the advantage over all other opera troupes in the world in this, that it has not one member who is not A No. 1, first-class.

"One of them, particularly, called Drayton, had the audacity to place the defendant in the same niche of the musical temple as Adelina Patti, the world-renowned prima donna. After having thus vaunted the acquirements of his directress, the witness, Drayton, very compla-cently styles himself 'a first-class baritone,' There may be grave cause to doubt whether the musical talents of the witness, Drayton, are such that his name will be handed down to posterity as a musical prodigy; but there cer-tainly can be no doubt that, through the judicial archives of this State, he will be known by succeeding ages as one possessing those peculiar mental traits which entitle persons to compulsory and oftentimes protracted residence in lunatic asylums.

"The testimony of the other members of the troupe is, in substance, the testimony of Dray-ton. Each is 'first-class,' and indeed it would appear that, with the exception of the unfor-tunate Blanche Ellerman, the Richings English Opera Troupe was composed exclusively of 'first-class artists' in their own estimation.

"On the other hand, plaintiff has produced the testimony of persons living in this city-professors in different departments of music-who are well known throughout the community in point of their ability, intelligence, and integrity, and the testimony of these gives a high char-acter to the musical powers of Miss Blanche Ellerman. Her voice is represented as a pure soprano, of great compass and capable of reach-ing the highest notes.

"The praise of such men is sufficient to counteract the testimony of witnesses like those who testified for the defendant—testimony whose only effect as evidence is to prove the over-weening vanity and supremely ridiculous pre-tensions of most of the singers composing the Richings English Opera Troupe.' "The judgment will be entered in favor of plaintiff.

ANOTHER RAID ON HAVANA FREEMASONS.

Another raid has been made by the Havana authorities upon Freemasons. On Saturday nine Masons, all foreigners, were seized, and sent to the city prison, to keep company with the fifty-four Masons, Cubans and Spaniards, who for months have languished in captivity for no offenses committed, and simply because they are Freemasons. Among the unlucky nine no American citizen is included, for a wonder, though an American was wanted by the autho-rities, but not found-Mr. J. B. Harmony, now in Key West.

A PEACE PARTY.

On Saturday evening quite an excitement was created in the Casino Espanol by Colonel Zu-ineta, of the 2d Battalion of Volunteers, and the wealthy merchant Mamerto Publido, advocating the autonomy of the island, and declaring that it was now high time that terms of peace were made with the Cubans, honorable to Spain and to Cuba both alike. A large majority of the Casino repudiated the views of the two gentlemen, but still their enunciation is yet a subject of general conversation, and is considered by most persons as a proof that the two gentlemen, once so irreconcliably loyal, are now tired of the war, and see only destruction ahead. They are not by any means alone among the late advocates of "Cuba Spanish or nothing who have changed. Twenty months of unsuc ceseful war have opened the eyes of many a Spaniard as to the dangers that now surround spanish rule, and causes them to seriously doubt whether war, the garrote, and the shoot ing of prisoners can suffice to remove themto weaken than to strengthen Spanish sway. From what I have noticed this week, I fancy that soon a peace party of respectable propor-tions and composition will exist among the Havana Spanlards.

-In a letter to a friend, a United States Senator says:-"I see but little left for me live for, and nothing valuable now in polities. An old man at fifty-four years. But life is not now measured by years; events make the sum of human life." And, previously, he says: _-"I have lived three lives already. How many more there are in store for me i campoi non anow."

The danger to the horse car, filled with passengers, was perceived in time by the flag-man and Officer Bangor, who united in warning the driver. The latter paid no heed to the cau-tion, however. The locomotive scarcely cleared his bird relation. his hind platform. The excitement among the horse car passengers can better be imagined than described.
