MONDAY, JUNE 27, 1870.

THE SAN DOMINGO MUDDLE. Os Saturday last two reports were presented by the special committee of the Senate appointed to examine into the alleged grievances of David Hatch, an American citizen who, according to his own report, has been most cruelly treated by Baez, the President of the Dominican republic, with the conniwance of the agent of our own Government who negotiated the treaty of annexation. The story of Hatch's tribulations has been mixed up pretty extensively with damaging rumors of gross irregularities in the management of the San Domingo treaty, and Hatch himself complains that he has been imprisoned, sentenced to death, and otherwise cruelly treated, solely because it was feared he might damage the schemes of the annexationists if he were allowed to remain at liberty and tell all he knew about the matter.

Neither the majority nor minority reports of the committee presented on Saturday are altogether satisfactory, although they are lengthy and go over considerable ground. Of the two the minority statement, signed by Senators Schurz and Ferry, appears to approach a good deal nearer to the truth of the matter than that of the majority, which looks very much like an attempt to whitewash the villainies of the treaty "ring." The minority contend that Hatch, by taking up his residence in San Domingo, made himself amenable to the laws of the country, and that, as he was tried and convicted before a regular tribunal of giving aid and comfort to Cabral and his party of revolutionists at a time when Baez was firmly seated in power, and committing other offenses of a like character, he had no right to ask the United States to protect him from any punishment that his judges chose to inflict. Hatch was sentenced to death, but this sentence was afterwards commuted to banishment from the country. He charges, however, that, instead of being sent back to the United States, he was still detained in prison mainly through the interference of the agents of the United States connected with the negotiation of the annexation treaty. With regard to General Babcock's alleged action in this matter, the majority state that they can find nothing to convict him of any impropriety, or to show that he was in any way implicated in the detention of Hatch. This part of the report is very far from satisfactory. There appears to be an evident desire to exonerate him and those associated with him in the negotiation of the treaty, more for the purpose of leaving the impression that the negotiations were free from fraud, and that therefore the treaty ought to be accepted, than to demonstrate Babcock's innocence or to secure impartial justice for Hatch. Indeed, the greater portion of the report is a plain and undisguised puff for the treaty, and the evident desire to press it upon the favorable notice of the Senate. together with the fact that at least one of the members of the majority of the committee, Senator Howard, has been openly mentioned as being one of the "ring," will prevent this report from being accepted with the utmost confidence by the country. Senators Schurz and Ferry in their statement of the case dissent from the majority in every important point of fact. They submit that the testimony proves Mr. Hatch to be a gentleman of irreproachable character, and that there is no evidence whatever to prove that he was implicated in any way with the contending factions of San Domingo. Hatch was intimate with Cabral and was at Barajona while it was in possession of that chief. This was the ground upon which Baez made his accusation against him, and when Barajona fell into the hands of the Baez party, Hatch was arrested, tried, and condemned, as has been stated. His real offense, however, was that he considered Baez to be a dangerous man, and had written articles in 1868 to some of the American papers reflecting upon him, Baez being at that time a fugitive from the island. The allegation against General Babcock the minority consider to be fully sustained by the testimony of Colonel Perry, and by the facts with regard to his own conduct that were admitted by him or proved by other witnesses before the committee, and they arrive at the following conclusions with regard to the case:-

""They reject it a a doctrine utterly repugnant to free institutions, and unprecedented in the history of this republic. They desire also to designate the institution contained in the majority report that this investigation is instituted for the purpose of as-sailing the Executive branch of the Government, as uncalled for and frivolous. They would be sorry to think that the Executive would construe as an attack a fair investigation into the conduct of its agents."

These conclusions appear to be fully sustained by all the facts, and in view of the extreme weakness of the whitewashing report of the majority, we believe that the statement of Messrs. Schurz and Ferry will be accepted in preference by the people of the country. The developments in this San Domingo business indicate very plainly that the evident anxiety of the President to obtain possession of the island has been taken advantage of by a ring of speculators, and that the treaty concluded through the agency of Babcock and others implicated in this Hatch business needs looking into before any action is taken upon it. We undoubtedly need one of the larger West India islands as a Gulf station, and if we can obtain San Domingo upon reasonable terms, and in a proper manner, we ought by all means to do so. As matters now stand, however, we are not so badly in want of territory in that quarter that it is necessary to countenance any manner of villainy to gain it, and it is the duty of the Senate before ratifying the treaty to find out whether it is consistent with our national dignity or honor to accept the island under existing circumstances.

THE SPANISH THRONE. A CABLE telegram from Paris announces that Isabella, ex-Queen of Spain, has abdicated the throne in favor of her son. Her own prospects of reclaiming it were so desperate that her abdication involves no tangible personal sacrifice. She only gives up in form what she has irretrievably lost in fact. At the same time she gives to her offspring a far better chance for their establishment on the Spanish throne than they would otherwise possess, and greatly increases the probability that the revolution will end in the coronation of her son. Heretofore she has been the true and only representative of the principle of legitimacy to which the Spaniards are still so strongly attached, while the remembrance of her odious administration, coupled with her private vices, has made it impossible to rally a formidable legitimist party. Now, however, the true heir of the crown is a lad too young to be personally obnoxious, and he can win the support of thousands who could not be induced, even by their horror of republicanism, to re-establish the arbitrary and disgraceful rule of Isabella. Spain now is in a position somewhat analogous to that of England two hundred years ago, when all the glories of Cromwell's Commonwealth could not subdue the instinctive longings of peers and peasants for a re-establishment of royal rule, and when a generation which had consented to the execution of a tyrannical king afterwards gladly restored his worthless son. Many months have been consumed by the Spanish Cortes in a search for an acceptable sovereign, but they could find none who combined in the proper degree the necessary personal qualities with the requisite political strength and essential degree of legitimacy. Isabella's son, however, can now enter the lists as a formidable candidate, and if the people will insist on the management of their government on hereditary principles, he is the proper person on whom their choice should fall. The conclusion of the prolonged controversy will be awaited with no little interest. It remains to be seen whether the Republicans on the one hand, or the monarchical opponents of the old Bourbon dynasty on the other, are strong enough to resist the claims of the new aspirant, but the chances appear to be decidedly in his favor.

ticket. The position to which he has just b nominated by the President is one of the most sponsible in the gift of the Government, WOMEN, in discussing their grievances, do make enough use of the fact that they were su moned to Parliament in Edward III's time. Joseph Holland's "Of the Antiquity of the Par ments in England," published in 1685, it is record that among the summonses to Parliament in 1361, 35th Parliament of Edward III, there is one writ admittendo fide dignos ad colloquiam ;" and amo the earls and barons are returned Marie Counted de Norif, Alianor Countesse de Ormond, Philip Countesse de March, Agnes Countesse de Pe brook, and Katherine Countesse de Athoie. In preceding year, also (34 Edward III), there had be writs tested at Winston on the 5th of April, issu to divers earls and barons, to the Archbishop Canterbury, to several bishops and abbots, and four abbesaes, requiring their attendance at We minster on the morrow of the Trinity, for the p pose of treating of an aid for the making of King's eldest son a knight, etc. It does not appe however, that any ladies ever actually took th scats in Parliament by virtue of these summons although numerous instances are on record of be knights and esquires having sat in the House Lords in right of their wives.

He was tried by a military commis-sion and sentenced to be shot, but the record of the trial shows the whole proceeding was a barbarous farce.

lease of Hatch, but also discouraged others from doing so. "The minority believe that, aside from Hatch's pecuniary losses, he is, in consideration of the treat-ment he received at the hands of the Dominican Government, entitled to liberal reparation. They caunce close their report without declaring their most emphatic dissent from the position taken by the majority, that the imprisonment of an American cuizen abroad, on the ground that he might exer-cise an injurious inducnoe this or that way with re-gard to a question of public interest, can be justified or excused under any circumstances.

THE FRENCH CABLE.

WE are glad to see that the firm attitude assumed by the administration in regard to the French cable has led to a withdrawal, on the part of France, of the exclusive rights originally granted to the French Cable Company, and to an understanding which places the Governments of the two nations on a fair and equal footing. By the first contract France arrogantly assumed the privilege of authorizing a company to extend a cable to the United States, while at the same time the privilege of permitting an American cable company to land its wires on the coast of France was to be forever prohibited. Under the modified arrangement, however, our citizens will have the same privileges on French soil that are now granted on American soil to the French company. The happy accord established on this subject is to be followed by an attempt to fix a maximum price for despatches, and in due season we hope these efforts may also be successful, so that cable telegrams may become cheaper than ever.

FENIANISM has broken out in a new quarter, the last demonstration being the organization of a plot to blow up the powder magazine of the fortress of Gibraltar. If the scheme had succeeded Ireland would not have been one inch nearer freedom. All the money and time devoted to such desperate undertakings are worse than wasted. They only tend to throw discredit and odium upon the Irish cause, and, like bad guns, their rebounds help to kick the owner over.

THE coffee, tea, and sugar dealers of the West don't want the taxes taken off those articles too soon. Perhaps their petition for a postponement of the time when the reduction is to take place may deserve consideration; but if it receives it, Congress should make amends to the people by increasing the amount of the reduction. Tea and coffee especially should be admitted free of duty at the earliest possible moment.
