NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, July 8, 1870.

Central Park. Central Park is too apt to be regarded as a first-class picturesque lodging-place intended especially for the behoof of the poorer classes on Sunday. Yet whoever would see it at its best must time his visit upon some other day than the first of the week, for then, if the weather be fine, every seat is occupied, the walks are crowded, the lakes are covered with boating parties, and the various booths, stalls, soda fountains and restaurants so beset, that no one who is unwilling to wait for accommodations need repair to one of them. But of a week-day the case is different. Then you have the park all to yourself-or at least with just enough people in sight to prevent the sense of loneliness. On a fine summer's afternoon, when the air is not too cool, the sense of rest and quiet is delightful, especially when sufficient carriages and pedestrians are in sight to preclude the idea of perfect solitude. In company with your books, your cigarettes, and yourself, you seek out some shady arbor-and, thank goodness! all the scats in Central Park have backs to them-and read and observe what is going on about you with, perhaps, something of the complacency with which the landed proprietor takes in the area of his estates, and congratulates himself that they are all his own. The puff of your cigar excites in you a meek-and harmless joy greater than any newspaper puff has power to cause. The goat-carriages, filled with children and attended by colored boys in livery, reconcile you to I fe's unamiabilities, and by some occult species of argument cause you to think that after all your salary may be large enough. By and by a troupe of good-natured rowdies come by, and occupy the long bench opposite. They wear no collars or neck-ties, their hands are stained and dirty, their caps are slouched and their clothes spattered with grease. The brown roughness of the mechanic hangs above them, but it is one of their afternoons off, and they have come to Central Park to get a mouthful of fresh air, to look at the handsome equipages, and to talk ignorant wonder concerning the exploits of that marvellous man Fisk. It is a solemn fact that the doings and misdoings of Mr. Fisk constitute the staple talk of just such a party of rough half-grown boys as this. Next troops by a bevy of showily-dressed girls, who look as though they might be third-rate concert-hall singers, and talk fast slaug, intended to be attractive of whatever male biped is minded to take up with them. Saunters by, every now and then, a "nobby" and somewhat wearled-looking gentleman, having a "nobby" and somewhat wearied-looking lady hanging on his arm, and entrusted by her with the care of her heterogeneous litter, in which figure a book, a shawl, a parasol, a veil, a satchel, and such useful appurtenances. The motherly-looking, middle-aged man, with the masculine woman, who defies the thermometer in a red flaunel shawl, and the inevitable brace of savage babies, make up the conventional family-circle that haunts every nook of the Park. Another of the standbys is the vague masculine, elaborately dressed, and never without an umbrella, who assumes sentimental attitudes in shady

A NEW ADDITION TO OUR NATIONAL BILL OF FARE. -The committee of ladies appointed by the Farmers Club of the American Institute, among whom was an eminent medical graduate and the wife of the Secretary of the Institute, state in their report that a packet of SEA Moss FARINE, costing twenty-five cents, will produce, when combined with milk, in due proportion, full sixteen quarts of blanc mange, while a packet of corn starch, maizena or farina, costing sixteen cents, will only produce, with a like quantity of milk, from four to six quarts, thus showing that the new food staple is actually worth, as a means of nourishment, about one hundred and hfty per cent. more than heretofore-popular preparations from maize and grain. It is also stated that it has none of the heating properties of ordinary farinaccous food, and is digested and assimilated with wonderful rapidity.

MR. WILLIAM W. CASSIDY, the jeweller at No 28-Soath Second street, has one of the largest and most attractive stocks of all kinds of Jewelry and Silverware in the city. He has also on hand a fine assortment of fine American Western Watches. Those who purchase at this store at the present time are certain to get the worth of their money.

tion representing the Sans Ares, Minneconjours, and Two Kettle Sloux had a council with Commissioner Parker to-day. The council was opened by the Commissioner expressing regrets that all the Indians could not have been here at the time Red Cloud and Spotted Tail were in Washington. He also explained to them that Spotted Tail had, while here, promised to keep peace; and Red Cloud, while making no positive promise, would keep on his reserve.

The general tenor of the Commissioner's remarks was similar to those conveyed to the delegations which have recently been here, asserting the desire of the Government to have them at peace with the whites, and the determination to use properly the appropriations made by Congress for the benefit of the Indians. Little Swan, responding, said he came right away when he was called here to see his Great Father. He thought that what the Government wanted was good: but said his people all had not hearts like his own, and sometimes would not agree. The usual complaints about whites taking their land and the establishment of railroads in their country were made.

In response to a question from Senator Cor-bett, who was present, Little Swan said his people would return to their reserve after their summer hunt; and to the question whether they had gone out to hunt or commit depredations, he said, "They did not go out for a war, but I suppose they will war while they are out." He wants three or four stores on the reservation, so they can buy goods cheaper. Running Bull, Red Feather, and others made speeches, all expressing friendliness for the whites and asking for more traders. They also want presents to take home to their families. They desire to have General Stapley and Major Randall remain among them. Red Feather said he was very poor and wanted to go back well dressed. He wanted wagons, oxen, and cows, and desired the Great Father to take care of the half-breeds among the tribes.

The Commissioner made another speech after the Indians had concluded, saying he was glad to hear they are well-disposed and friendly, and hoped they would so continue and that they would keep their young men friendly and not let them go out to fight. Alluding to traders. he said their agent can appoint as many good traders as he chooses. All the Government desires is that they get good men.

These Indians will start back to their homes to-night, and they will be given presents for their families. They will visit Philadelphia and New York en roule.

nue entrance, the seats along which are almost always filled. Here every style of equipage incessantly rolls in, from the elegant phæton to the disreputable buggy, from the classic clarence to the popular cabriola-wagonnette. The comparative dearth of visitors upon a week day afternoon gives you the chance, if you have a little patience, of obtaining a seat on one of the benches, and of observing the countenances and costumes of those who fill the carriages. Here, driven by a sable coachman, comes a maiden lady, very old, notoriously rich and relentlessly grim, accompanied by a snubbed "companion" in a faded silk and with a brow-beaten visage. In this hired barouche sit, with their admirers, a couple of beauties whose rouged faces only too plainly announce their avocation. To get out of sight of little incidents like these, which jar, requires a walk of but a few minutes, for of a week-day afternoon Fifth-avenue entrance is the only locality in Central Park where you will discover anything approaching to a crowd. The multitude of nooks, rambles, lakes, grottoes, and arbors are almost unoccupied, and your book, your cigarette, and your self forming a sympathetic trio, with which the cultivated nature around you is admitted into pleasing companionship.

A Street-car Incident.

Yesterday afternoon an incident, which has not yet made its way into any of the newspapers, took place in one of the Sixth avenue cars, and becomes worth mentioning because it illustrates the avidity with which geniality rushes to the rescue of itself and the discomfiture of the churl. The car contained a dozen passengers, all of whom were men, with the exception of one who was a boy. Immediately opposite the boy, who occupied one corner, sat a man whose countenance was a compendium of malignity. He looked as though all the gall and wormwood of existence had flowed through a funnel into the cracks and crannies of his face. Suddenly the boy, whose face was a bright contrast to that of his opposite neighbor, began whistling "Shoo Fly." It has been said that the first Napoleon foamed at the mouth at the sound of church-bells in the country. Premonitory symptoms of such a crisis came over the man I have been describing at the first notes of this popular classic.

"Shut up!" he screamed. "What do you mean? Shut up!" This in a tone of indescribable malignity, and loud enough to be heard by all the passengers. The poor boy, completely abashed, "shut up." But one of the nearest passengers, seeing how matters stood, fixed his eyes upon the man, and, with a firm, even flow of breath, commenced whistling the obnoxious air. The joke seemed to spread. One after one the passengers, fixing their eyes upon the wretched churl, joined in that immortal melody until, when the refrain, "Shoo fly, don't bodder me," came in, the boy who had been rebuked ventured to lift up his voice and whistle to his heart's content, and the car went rattling along the avenue, the atmosphere around it ringing with the whistles of nearly a dozen manly voices. To describe the rage and bewilderment that succeeded each another over the countenance of the victim would be an eminently difficult task. At length, unable to bear it any longer, he jumped up, took the number of the conductor, and swearing he would have him discharged for allowing his car to be filled with public nuisances, plunged off while the vehicle ALI BABA. was in full motion.

COMMON COUNCIL OF PHILADELPHIA. CLERK'S OFFICE.

PHILADELPHIA, July 8, 1870. In accordance with a resolution adopted by the Common Council of the city of Philadelphia on Thuisday, the 7th day of July, 1870, the annexed bill, entitled "An Ordinance to Create a Lean for a House of Correction," is hereby published for public information.

JOHN ECKSTEIN, Clerk of Common Council.

A To Create a Loan for a House of Correction Section 1. The Select and Common Councils of the City of Philadelphia do ordain, That the Mayor of Philadelphia be and he is hereby authorized to borrow, at not less than par, on the credit of the city, from time to time, for a House of Correction, five hundred thousand dollars, for which interest, not to exceed the rate of six per cent. per annum, shall be paid half yearly on the first days of January and at the office of the City Treasurer. The principal of said loan shall be payable and paid at the expiration of thirty years from the date of the same, and not before, without the consent holders thereof; and the certificates the therefor, in the usual form of the certificates of city loan, shall be issued in such amounts as the lenders may require, but not for any fractional part of one hundred dollars, or, if required, n amounts of five hundred or one thousand dollars; and it shall be expressed in said certificates that the loan therein mentioned and the interest thereof are payable free from all taxes. Section 2. Whenever any loan shall be made by virtue thereof, there shall be, by force of this ordinance, annually appropriated out of the income of the corporate estates and from the raised by taxation a sum sufficient to pay the interest on said certificates; and the further sum of three-tenths of one per centum on the par value of such certificates so issued, shall be appropriated quarterly out of said income and taxes to a sinking fund, which fund and its ac cumulations are hereby especially pledged for the redemption and payment of said certificates.

RESOLUTION TO PUBLISH A LOAN BILL.

Resolved, That the Clerk of Common Council be authorized to publish in two daily news-papers of this city daily for four weeks, the ordinance presented to the Common Council on Thursday, July 7, 1870, entitled "An ordi-nance to create a loan for a House of Correc-tion;" and the said Clerk, at the stated meeting of Councils after the experiention of four weeks of Councils after the expiration of four weeks from the first day of said publication, shall pre-sent to this Council one of each of said newspapers for every day in which the same shall have been made. 7824
