PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON (SUNDAYS EXCEPTED), AT THE EVENING TELEGRAPH BUILDING, No. 108 S. THIRD STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

The Price is three cents per copy (double sheet), or fifteen cents per week, payable to the carrier by whom served. The subscription price by mail is Nine Dollars per annum, or One Dollar and Fifty Cents for two months, invariably in advance for the time ordered.

SATURDAY, AUGUST 13, 1870.

The earliest regular edition of THE EVENING TELEGRAPH goes to press at 1 1/2 o'clock, and the subsequent regular editions at 2 1/2, 3 1/2, and 4 1/2. Whenever there is important news of the progress of the European war, extra editions will be issued after this hour, and before the regular time for the early edition.

POLITICAL SUPERANNATION. ATTORNEY-GENERAL AKERMAN last night delivered an address in Washington, before a meeting called by the Southern Republican Association, in which we set forth many wholesome truths that it would be well for the people of the Southern States to ponder over.

Mr. Akerman said that there was such a thing as political superannation. This is as complete a description of the state of mind not only of Mr. Stephens and other secession leaders, but of the whole Democratic party, as could be made, and until men of the Stephens class are rejuvenated by the absorption of some new ideas, or are superseded by a younger generation of public men who will be willing to forget the doctrines of the Calhoun school of politics for the sake of pushing their own fortunes, if for no other reason, the South never will be able to relieve herself entirely of the disabilities imposed upon her by the results of the war.

It is perhaps only natural that the sudden extinction of slavery, and particularly in the manner in which it was extinguished, should be a sore subject with the late slave-owners, but there is no excuse for the way in which the Northern Democrats have continued to bemoan the emancipation of the negroes and to oppose every effort of the Government to bring the late Rebel States into their normal relations to the nation again.

The political superannation of the Democratic party keeps it just where it was ten years ago: it clings to the old anti-war issues just as if no great political revolution had taken place; and the utter want of ability to accommodate themselves to the new state of affairs shown by the Democrats has enabled the Republican party to maintain its ascendancy in a manner that it otherwise never could have done. If the Democratic party should now succeed in obtaining the control of the Government, it would be through the wiles of its antagonists rather than through any merits of its own. Political skill of the very highest order enabled the Democrats to keep the management of the affairs of the nation in their hands for thirty years, and to demolish opposition after opposition; but in the course of events the party and its leaders became afflicted with political superannation, and was unable to exchange the doctrines of Calhoun for anything better, so that here-to-day, five years after the collapse of the rebellion, we have Alexander H. Stephens preaching secession and State rights, just as if the march of Sherman's army across his State had never demonstrated the right of the nation to exercise supreme authority in every portion of its dominions.

There is not in the North or in the South a man in his senses who believes that slavery will ever be revived. There may be some who hope that the negroes will be deprived of their right to vote, but any politician who has the faintest comprehension of the actual situation knows that this will be impossible, and the only practical method of dealing with the situation is to accept the results of the war candidly and fairly, and to take a fresh departure on the basis of the living issues of the day. This is what the wisest heads in the Democratic party have advised again and again, but the political superannation of their associates has been too much for them, and the Republicans, in spite of many shortcomings that wise adversaries would have been eager to take advantage of, have been able to complete the work of reconstruction, making it more sure, firm, and solid because of the recalcitrant disposition shown by the late slave owners and their Northern sympathizers; so that, after all, the political superannation of the old pro-slavery party may prove to have been a blessing in disguise to itself and to the nation.

EDITORIALS and editorial statements in the English journals referring to the present war should be received with many grains of allowance. It is as impossible for our British cousins to be just to the French as it is to the Americans. Their speculations in reference to our conflict were notoriously stupid and malicious, and the present combatants will not fare much better at their hands. They are forever making assertions which have no real foundation, and hazardous predictions which are never realized. Ashamed of the pitiable attitude assumed by England in modern conflicts, they constantly endeavor to give her factitious importance by attempting to belittle the movements of the really great nations of the world.

AFTER all the wonderful stories we have heard of the superior organization of the French army, and the prevision of the officials who direct it, the late news from the seat of war indicates that it was not much better prepared for a deadly struggle than the Union forces at the commencement of our late conflict. The Emperor seems to have calculated that, like his uncle, he could quarter on the enemy, and the disappointment of this expectation left many of his soldiers without food and without ammunition. It requires first-class genius and an inferior foe to win triumphs with an army thus imperfectly supplied, and Napoleon lacks both these advantages.

THE PROCLAMATION recently issued by King William seems to have had a triple object. He wished to assure the French that they would have no reason to dread a repetition of the barbarities perpetrated by Blucher, to prevent a rising of the French people against him, and to gain the good will of the inhabitants of Alsace and Lorraine, among whom his troops are now operating, so that they might be predisposed, as far as possible, to favor annexation to Germany. The last named purpose especially will be well served by the just and judicious course adopted by the invaders.

We are deeply grieved by the announcement that dissensions exist among the Republicans of New Jersey. That important State must be saved at any hazard. Since the liberal share of national offices hitherto bestowed upon her has not secured harmony, one of two courses should be speedily adopted. She should either be deprived, as far as possible, of the patronage which has failed to appease all her great men, or places should instantly be found for all of her talented and patriotic sons who have not yet been provided for.

We have read, with deep interest, the telegraphic report of the grand masquerade and fancy dress ball given at the Virginia Springs on the night of the 11th inst. "for the benefit of the needy sufferers by the recent railroad accident at Jerry's run." We are glad that it was one of the most brilliant affairs that ever took place at that famous resort, but as the flower of Southern chivalry and "fully eight hundred persons" were present, we are annoyed to find at the conclusion of the despatch that only "several hundred dollars" were "realized for the sufferers." The notables of Dixie's land seem to have been unable, according to this statement, to make an average contribution of more than twenty-five cents each to touching objects of charity.

—Lost, stolen, or mislaid, a French prince, fourteen years of age, of tranquil temperament, wears red trousers and carries a bullet in his pocket. Was last seen going home from a baptism at Metz. Is supposed to be in Paris; is supposed at other places to be in London. Any information concerning him will be received with the greatest indifference by the Corps Legislatif.—N. Y. Tribune.

LYNCH LAW IN NEBRASKA.

A Clergyman Heading a Mob. They seem to have a curious way of administering justice in some parts of Nebraska. A few weeks ago a man named Miller, who was an abandoned character, set out to go from Council Bluffs, Iowa, to Sioux City. On his way he fell in with a man named Dunn, whom he murdered without provocation, and then fled to Council Bluffs, where he was arrested and carried to Ponca. On being incarcerated in jail, Miller, harassed by the pangs of conscience and the awful fate before him, sent for the Rev. Mr. Beardshear, and said he wished to confess everything. The good man suggested that the murderer make a public confession, which he agreeing to, the minister of Christ assembled some three hundred people in the church, and the Sheriff brought the prisoner before them. A hymn was sung, and a chapter in the Bible on the crucifixion read, and a prayer offered up, after which the murderer arose and addressed the audience, detailing at great length the facts connected with the murder, and confessing himself guilty of the crime.

When he had done, the Rev. Beardshear stood up and said the assassin had a solemn duty to perform, and that they must adjudge the prisoner. He wanted all to vote, and would have no shirking or dodging. He then put the question:—"Shall the man Miller be hung, and all the assembly voted in the affirmative except two. The godly man not noticing the small minority, declared the question carried unanimously. The prisoner was then taken out, a rude scaffold erected, and Miller placed in a wagon and driven under it. The most singular part of this performance was that Miller seemed to think the matter all right and regular. When asked if he had anything to say why he should not be hung, he replied, "I forgive all my enemies, and have truly repented of my sins. I do not blame any one for what you are about to do. I am reconciled to God, and heaven is opening to receive my regenerated soul."

The minister assured the prisoner angels were waiting to receive and welcome him into paradise, and at a given signal the wagon started and Miller was left suspended between earth and sky. He died hard, writhing convulsively for about twenty-eight minutes, when a physician advanced, and after a careful examination, pronounced life extinct. The body was then taken down, laid on boards, and placed in the school-house until it could be buried. Throughout the trying ordeal Miller was perfectly calm, and even helped to adjust the rope about his neck. A correspondent says:—"We have often had cases of Lynch law in our country, but this is the first attempt to reduce the thing to a system and ceremony. The spectacle of a Christian minister in his clerical robes conducting the proceedings of a Lynch court is indeed novel, and will no doubt be carefully noted as a new evidence of the progress of American civilization."

A BRAVE SEAMAN.

Deserved Honors—An Heroic Act Rewarded. The following letter from Ellwood Walter, President of the Life-Saving Benevolent Association, to Captain Charles A. Ranlett, Jr., of the ship Surprise, explains itself.—"THE LIFE-SAVING BENEVOLENT ASSOCIATION OF NEW YORK, Aug. 1, 1870.—Captain Charles A. Ranlett, Jr.—Dear Sir:—It affords me pleasure to transmit herewith the gold medal awarded to you by the Life-Saving Benevolent Association of New York. The inscription you will observe, is as follows:—"Presented to Charles A. Ranlett, Jr., master of the ship Surprise, in recognition of his humanity and remarkably skilful seamanship in saving the life of William A. Joy, aged 14 years, who fell from aloft into the ocean at midnight, during a gale of wind, on a voyage from New York to China, the 29th of January, 1870."

"This association recognizes your skilful seamanship, as evidenced by the acts of shortening sail, wearing ship twice, and heaving to within forty-five minutes, in a dark night in mid-ocean, which rendered the rescue of the boy possible. "But we desire especially to commemorate the humane impulse which induced these efforts under circumstances so discouraging. Most men would probably have assumed that the youth struggling with the waves in the gloom of midnight was beyond the possibility of succor, and would have passed on; but in you we have a striking evidence of what good deeds may be accomplished by the exercise of humanity, skill, perseverance, and undying hope in times when many would despair. "With a strong desire that your example may prove an incentive to others, and with the best wishes for your future happiness, I am, sir, Very respectfully, "ELLWOOD WALTER, President." Captain Ranlett writes under date of Bellevue, Mass., August 4, gratefully acknowledging the compliment and its accompanying testimonial. In closing he thus modestly writes:—"I think this medal has been easily won, as no one could do less than exert himself to save the life of a fellow-man."

Incidentals.

—The marriage of Ole Bull and a daughter of the Hon. J. G. Thorpe, of Madison, Wis., will take place on the 29th inst. —Two little Cincinnati girls were careless enough to sit down in a tub of boiling water a few days ago and die. —There is a man at Port Jervis so mean that he wouldn't allow a poor woman to drown herself in a private pond on his premises. She was obliged to go to a public reservoir. —Mrs. Middy Morgan was one of the reporters at the Buffalo races. She is described by the Courier as an efficient, industrious, and painstaking newspaper writer. —A Jersey widow, finding her charms fading, applied a "magic bath" a few nights ago, and woke next morning to find her hair all fallen off, and blotches as large as ginger cookies all over her face. She wants to interview the balmy man. —According to the Troy papers, that city is full of scandals just now. Clergymen who act improperly toward the female members of their flocks, men and women who run away with the wives and husbands of other people, etc., are the order of the day. —We never haunched after the farming business, but if we could possess a farm like that of Mr. John T. Alexander, of Illinois, we might be induced to engage in agricultural pursuits. Mr. Alexander has 24,000 acres of improved land. Last year he paid out $78,500 for wages and sold $493,000 worth of live stock. —A Western paper says:—"By a singular coincidence, a pair of egg merchants, at Independence, Iowa, last week, unintentionally became posturers on a large scale. The porter suddenly heard a noise in the store-room, where there were 60,000 dozen of eggs packed away preparatory to being shipped East, and on going to see what was the matter, found 730,000 chickens running about the floor. They had been hatched by the heat."

The Perfection of the Art of Refining Whiskies.

P. HEVNER, Sole Proprietor, for the State of Pennsylvania, of the CELEBRATED "P. P." WHISKIES, Nos. 246 S. FRONT and 117 DOCK St., Phila.

It has been clearly demonstrated that all Liquors distilled by the ordinary methods contain a very large percentage of impurities; the degree of heat that must necessarily be employed, decomposing, disengaging and vaporizing all the baseful elements and noxious gases contained in the mash, which when condensed form the deleterious fluid oil so detrimental to life and health; but, when indulged in to excess, the result is Brain Fever, Delirium Tremens, Apoplexy, Insanity, etc. Consequently Liquors, as ordinarily distilled, are apt, even when only used sparingly as a stimulant, to create Nausea, Sick Headache, Inflammation, and Kidney Diseases. The "P. P." Whiskies, on the contrary, "stimulate and cheer" without unduly exciting the brain or injuring the coats of the stomach. They are distilled from the choicest product of the Cereals in vacuo, the pressure of the atmosphere being reduced from 15 lbs. to 2 lbs. to the square inch; consequently a temperature of only about 90 degrees of heat is required in the operation. The process is entirely mechanical, no ACIDS, CHARCOAL, ESSENCES, EXTRACTS, DRUGS OR CHEMICALS OF ANY DESCRIPTION BEING USED—hence the "P. P." Whiskies are not only delicate in flavor, but pure, wholesome, and innocuous beverage, retaining in simple purity the flavor of the cereals from which they were distilled. The "P. P." Whiskies have been tested by some of the most eminent of the Medical Faculty, by Analytical Chemists, and by the best judges of Liquors in the United States, and pronounced perfectly pure and wholesome, and especially desirable for Family use and Medical purposes. Members of the medical faculty, the trade, and the public generally are cordially invited to call and inspect the machinery and process, and examine the liquors and the impurities extracted, at the Refinery and Warerooms, Nos. 246 SOUTH FRONT and 117 DOCK STREET. This is the only process in operation in the State of Pennsylvania for refining whiskies in "vacuo." P. HEVNER, 730 stuth 1/2
