NEW-YORKISMS.

om Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Aug. 17, 1870.

Ortme and Correspondence. Newspaper coirespondents are sometimes blamed because the majority of their correspondence is based upon crime, sin, and error. The blame is not pronounced in wisdom and is unjust. The hypercritical reader forgets that the vast majority of the history of the world consists of accounts of the same nature, only upon a larger scale. To say that one is human is almost the same thing as to say he sins and suffers, and the correspondent who deals with the bright side only of life but partially does his duty. To relate, in a straightforward manner, facts of which sin and suffering have a large share, is a thing very different from what it is to place perpetually before the public scenes of imaginary crime and woe, for the miserable sake merely of "being read" and creating a sensation. A story of deserved or of undeserved suffering always carries its own moral with it, unless the crime or error which induced it is of such a nature as had better not be generally known. There are certain crimes which bring upon innocent victims an incalculable amount of shame and anguish, but which, from the very hideousness of their nature, ought not to be mentioned either in public or private, more than is necessary to keep them in odium. It is upon the details surrounding an immorality of this nature that the tingling sensation-seeker pounces. Like lightning that, without striking, fitfully illuminates a picturesque but ghastly ruin, so he plays roun d the morbid piquancy and brings sensual secrecies to light without once venturing to actually touch them. He gloats upon the subject over which he moralizes, and squeezes out a sermon which is worse than the sin that wrung it forth. Under the present constitution of things, suffering and sin always must form a very large basis for newspaper writing, and it is perfectly unobjectionable that they should do so. It is against the kind of sin which correspondents too often take for their texts, and against the tone in which such sin is spoken of, that wholesale objections can justly be urged. If I were asked what kind of people the gossipy correspondent keep the eighth. Farragut and the Flags. The impartiality with which great men are honored in this life is not often illustrated more strikingly than it was on Monday and Tuesday in this city. Admiral Farragut died on Sunday. Until late on Tuesday afternoon no half-mast flag was raised over the City Hall, or over any other building that comes within the control of the corporation of New York. Think of that! When the half-mast flags were at last raised the procrastinated tribute was wrung forth by popular clamor. Contrast this shameful indifference to the virtues of a good and great United States citizen, who had used his goodness and greatness in the service of his country, with the ostentations honors that, a few weeks ago, were paid to the memory of Florence Scannel. who, as the Tribune says, died "from the effects of wounds received in a fight in a It is satisfactory to state that the two valuations rum-hole, whither he and his friends had gone for the avowed purpose of 'mashing' some opponents." At that decease, every flag appeared | rately, and in the other they were grouped in at half-mast, and the stars and stripes were ob- classes according to ages. scured by crape. Remember, too, the apotheosis of John Real, and the vast multitudes that fringed the route of his tuneral procession. Circumstances like these remind one that we are living in strange times, when an unspeakably corrupt system of politics erects ruffians into heroes, and treats the honorable dead, the chief servants and saviors of the nation, with shameful and hideous disrespect.

that, for the most part, they belong to those who

mr. Barrett at Niblo's. After eight years' absence from this city, Mr. Lawrence Barrett appeared at Niblo's Garden on Monday night in that absurd play The Duke's Motto. His capacity is that of a good leading stock performer. His audacity in venturing to appear in a character that Mr. Fechter, the greatest living representative of the romantic drama, had made peculiarly his own, has not been justified by the result. The performance is neat and spirited-that is all. The scenery of the play is elaborate and appropriate. Miss Moore, who gives the impression that she is always on the point of beautifully blubbering, is the "Blanche de Nevers," and Madame Ponisi is the "Duchess"-the old lady with the remarkable memory, who swears that a certain young lady is not her daughter, because she (the "Duchess") can't recognize her, and it has been only twenty years since they met. But what matters a trifling incongruity like this. when the necessary "effect" and "situation" are produced? Plenty of Gliend but no Balm.

The census proves that we have plenty of city (though not perhaps so much as some of us try to make out that we have) and plenty of the miseries that usually beset a large city, but that we have not near so much compensation for them as we ought to enjoy. In other words, there is plenty of Gllead, but very little balm. Look at the Bay nuisances, and the imbecility of the Board of Health. The bay is filling with offal of every description, and, to all appear-ances, the Board of Health is powerless to prevent the evil, and even questions whether every other department of the city is not equally powerless. Contractors are, by law, required to move all offal beyond the city. For a time they evaded the law by manufacturing the offal, at one of the docks, into certain profitable substances. After a long struggle the Board of Health succeeded in abolishing that nui-sance, and the disgusted contractors expressed their sentiments by chucking the offal into the Lower Bay. Literally they observe their contract, though certainly they violate its spirit. The Board of Health has followed them up, and done all it could to remedy the evil, but has discovered that its efforts are laughed at. The nulsance is continued, and the Lower Bay may be described as a sort of infernal manufactory, where Pestilence broods over his work before he issues forth to afflict New York. If no disease is generated there, it will not be because it was not presented with an Ingenious pretext for making its appearance.

Country Cousins. The country cousin is in town. He sitteth dumb and wondering in the Broadway stage, and forgetieth to hand up his fare. Surely the driver ringeth the bell in vain, for the country driver ringeth the bell in vain, for the country cousin is jost in the contemplation thereof and dreameth not that it is rung for him. At the end he seeth his error, and straightway asketh his neighbor if the fare be five cents or ten. Then he passeth up a ten dollar bill and the driver snatcheth it. And the country cousin quaketh as he heareth the sound of the driver's voice and knoweth that the driver sweareth. Yet a little while, and lo' the ten-dollar bill is returned the original words which it is not while, and for the ten-dollar bill is returned though the opening with words which it is not iawful for a correspondent to utter, and the country cousin passeth it around, asking change and finding none, for no man will give unto him, because it is counterfeit. Then the country cousin getteth out of the stage, even out of that which is called the Broadway, and wisheth he were at home. And the rest of the acts of the country cousin, and all that he did away from home, are they not written under the head of papers? You bet! ALI BABA.

ROYAL INSURANCE COMPANY.

From the Liverpool Mail, Aug. 6, 1870. The annual general meeting of the sharehold ers of the Royal Insurance Company was held yesterday morning, at the Head Office of the Company, North John street, Liverpool, for the transaction of the ordinary business of the Company, and for the purpose of declaring the amount of profits up to the expiration of the last quinquennial period, to be set apart out of the Life Assurance Fund.

REPORT FOR THE YEAR 1869. The Directors have the pleasing duty of reporting that the results of the year 1869 are highly satisfactory in both departments of the PIRE DEPARTMENT. The premiums for the period amount to £485,180 5s. 9d. ($2,425,900), and the losses to £200,685 10s. 11d. ($1,453,425), being an increase of premium and a decrease of loss as compared with the corresponding totals of the preceding twelve months. The net profit of the Department, including interest; amounts to £78,154 3s. 5d. ($890,770). With a single exception, this is the largest surplus that has been announced as the result of a year's operations since the estabfishment of the Company; and it is satisfactory to state that most of the Branches have contributed to it in some measure, the American Department being the only important one that shows a small adverse balance.

Your Directors have repeatedly had to refer to the fluctuations to which Fire Insurance business is exposed. The year now under review has been marked by the absence of fires of any serious extent, but it has been succeeded by a period equally distinguished for the number and severity of the losses which have occurred in various parts of the world. The Royal has shared in many of these, and so favorable a report as the one now presented cannot therefore be anticipated for the year 1870.

LIFE DEPARTMENT. It will be in the recollection of the shareholders that the results of the Quinquennial Valuation of the Liabilities of this Department now fail to be reported. Your Directors feel that more than the usual interest attaches to this investigation, in consequence of public attention having been prominently drawn during the past twelve months to the financial position of is most fond of chatting about, I should reply Life Offices by the failure of one large Company and the rumored difficulties of others. break the seventh commandment and do not

For the better security of the public, a bill, which has just received the approval of the Legislature, will compel all Life Companies to publish, periodically, important information respecting their financial position and the means they possess of meeting their engagements. Your Directors approve of the salutary provisions of the measure, which enforce the publication of accounts upon all Companies, and, in order to afford an adequate confirmation of the accuracy of the statements of this Company, your Directors have adopted a further check, which they are satisfied will commend itself to every Shareholder and Assurer.

August 3, 1870. A NORTHWESTERN ENTERPRISE. The attention of the readers of THE EVENING TELEGRAPH is called to the accompanying letter :-

OFFICE OF ROBINSON, CHASE & CO., Bankers and Brokers, No. 18 BROAD STREET, NEW YORK We desire to call your attention to the new Con solidated Mortgage Sinking Fund Bonds of the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern Railway Company, which we are offeringifor sale. A mortgage has been executed by the company to the Union Trust Company of New York, as Trustee, securing the payment of these bonds, which covers the entire property of the company, including its railway and branches, equipment and real estate.

The purpose of the company is to retire its present funded debt upon maturity into these bonds, thereby leaving them eventually the first and only mortgage upon its valuable property. The amount now offered for sale by us is limited to the surplus after providing for the present debt, as before mentioned. These bonds, payable, July 1, 1800, are in two classes, viz.:—Coupon bonds of $1000 each, bearing interest at the rate of 7 per cent. per annum, payable on the 1st day of January and July in each year, and registered bonds, without coupons, bearing the same rate of interest payable quarterly on the lat day of Janu-STATE AND ADDRESS OF A STREET

ary, April, July, and October in each year; principal and interest both being payable at the office of the Union Trust Company of New York.

We would especially commend to your considera-tion this last-named class of bonds as affording security against loss by robbery, fire, or otherwise, the safety of both principal and interest being pretected to the holder-which is not the case with registered coupon bonds, and the quarterly payment of interest, which is an entire new feature in registered bonds.

The recognized importance of this well-known road, extending from Buffalo to Chicago, constituting with its branches a railway nearly one thousand miles in length, renders an extended notice unnecessary.

We are offering these bonds at 97% and accrued interest from July 1, and shall be pleased to receive your orders.

> Yours, respectfully, ROBINSON, CHASE & Co.

P. S. Further information in regard to the above bonds will be cheerfully given at the banking house of GLENDINNING, DAVIS & Co., No. 48 S. Third street, Philada.

War News in London. London papers have some three hundred words of war despatches this morning less, and less fresh, than American papers have every day. 1

The Paris Defenses. There is immense activity in the Paris defenses. Laborers are actually swarming on the fortifications. It is hinted that this measure of strengthening the works is due more to a wish to keep the dangerous class busy than to any actual fear.

One of Blamarck's "Schemes" Paris, Aug. 18 .- Le Pays this morning says two days ago French vessels of war captured an English vessel in the English channel laden with articles contraband of war destined for Prussia. When the captain was questioned how he dare do this, he replied that he knew revolution was about to occur in Paris, and as the French fleet would, therefore, probably be recalled, he thought he could run the risk.

Le Pays comments upon this reply, and says that the same impression regarding revolutionary outbreaks in Paris exists in Germany, and is one of the schemes of Bismarck.

has sent all his valuables to Italy.

PARIS, Aug. 18 .- The last meeting of the Corps Legislatif was interesting. Great crowds of people had collected around the hall to hear the war news.

The National Guard was at its post to preserve order, but no soldiers were seen at the commencement of the session. Count de Paliako, the new Minister of War.

spoke as follows:-"The Chamber will understand that I cannot give precise details as to the number of troops engaged, casualties, etc. I cannot even state the result of engagements, but I may say that the enemy has made an ineffectual attempt to capture Pfalzburg and lost fifteen hundred men killed. This repulse has had a great effect both on the enemy and the people of that part of France.

"The moment the Government has information of great movements now taking place I will communicate it to the Chambers."

The Minister then withdrew. Deputy Jules Favre then took the floor and requested that the utmost severity be shown to the rioters and assassins of Villette.

M. Thiers suggested that in case of a siege of Paris peasants be allowed to enter the city with their grain and cattle, and that the State reimburse them for their property. He also recommended that the Chambers now meet daily.

Minister Duvernois, in reply to M. Thiers, said that the Government had intended to fully provision Paris. The Deputies, after consultation, decided to meet again to-day.
