MEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent. NEW YORK, Aug. 18, 1870.

On Wednesday evening an exhibition was given of a new mode of advertising. The machinery of this mode has been put up, at a cost of ten thousand dollars, on that peninsular corner of Broadway which equally projects into Broadway, Fifth avenue, and Twentythird street. The situation is just the one for the purpose that is to be advanced. If not one of the most public points, it is one whose publicity is of most avail, for the hurry and bustle which render impossible a moment's loitering on Broadway, between Fourteenth street and the Battery, are most characteristic of this neighborhood, which lies equidistant between Madison Park and the Fifth Avenue Hotel, and enjoys a very advantageous background. The ground-plan of the building upon this peninsular corner forms an acute-angled triangle, the base of which is a line that runs through from Fifth avenue to Broadway. The building is in reality only two stories high. To all appearances, however, there is a third story, which consists of large panels of vari-colored glass. Upon these panels advertisements are so painted as to be very plainly seen by day. They have a bizarre and not unpleasing effect. At night, however, they show to much better advantage. The improved gas-burner which inhabits this third story is then lit, and casts a circle of bright light over the nearer portions of Broadway, Fifth avenue, and Twentythird street, and shoots many a stray beam down distant blocks. The radiance is almost as strong as bleached sunlight, with the gold taken quite out. Under its influence the advertisements on the panels stand forth as dazzlingly as the handwriting on Belshazzar's wall. This advertising medium is as yet a novelty, and nightly attracts a crowd of observers, who admire it as a mild species of pyrotechny. It is owned by a company which occupies the building. Sometimes something is the matter with the burner, and in that case it "plays hob" with the advertisements, emblazoning them, one moment, in characters of living fire, and, the next, engulfing them in a horror of darkness. But I fancy these little drawbacks will not long continue to exist, but that the longer the machinery is in operation the smoother it will work.

Artificial Ice. The U. S. Ice and Refrigerating Company has set up an ice-making machine at the Morgan Iron Works, at the foot of Ninth street, East river. The Knickerbocker and Washington Ice Companies have, between them, laid the last straw upon the back of the public camel, and the U. S. I. and R. C. proposes to lift the straw off by furnishing ice at $1.50 per ton-the price which is now asked for it by the pound. It is calculated that, by the best of these machines, ice can be made, in this or any other country, at the cost of fuel and labor. A twenty-fivehorse-power engine is guaranteed to produce thirteen tous of ice every twenty-four hours, or eleven hundred pounds per hour. The apparatus has been set up on the wharf under a shed which belongs to the iron-works mentioned, and is driven by horse-power. The entire process consists in bringing water in contact with vaporized ether, and in then condensing the ether again for another application. One of the two pipes connected with the apparatus is cold enough to freeze the hand, and the other one is hot enough to fry it. The cold one is called the expand-pipe and the hot one the force-pipe. The coldness of the expand pipe is caused by the vaporization of the ether, and the warmth of the force-pipe by the heat which is carried off from the water.

The freezers are cast-iron boxes, with four hollow partitions running through them, and, while the machine is at work, these are kept full of ether. It is said that an Irishman, one of the laborers employed to work the machine, quickly edged off upon seeing the laws of nature apparently suspended and thick coats of ice forming on the sides of each partition. He evidently regarded the whole thing as an invention of the Evil One, and not to be worked upon for any consideration that money could present. Paddy's piety came out particularly strong upon that occasion, and he set a very wholesome and savory example to many a Protestant hypocrite who is not so conscientious as to the means of earning money. You might as well have asked him to eat his dinner with lightning because the lightning was "forked," as have expected him to take a gulp of water cooled by the melting of that ice. No indeed! "Divil a bit" would he have to do with it. The Managers and the Ticket-Sellers. Last season Mr. Augustin Daly created, with respect to ticket-selling, a rule which this season been followed by two of the principal theatres in New York-Booth's and Niblo's. The rule is that tickets purchased of sidewalk course this rule, in its first workings, caused a speculators will be refused at the door. Of great deal of bad blood in the sidewalk speculators, and did not prevent many purchases being unwittingly made from them by theatregoers. The managers stationed at the door men whose business it was to spot parties purchasing tickets on the sidewalk, and to identify the parties when they came to present such tickets to the doorkeeper. Of course the tickets were then refused, and the parties had no choice but that of losing the evening's entertainment or of applying to the box office and purchasing other seats. In some cases the disappointed purchasers would be exceedingly angry upon finding that tickets for which they had paid twice the legitimate, boxoffice price were absolutely worthless. Sometimes they sought the treasurer or manager, and had a long and loud personal explanation which did not succeed in smoothing the ruffled emotions of either party. Sometimes they hunted up the speculator, indulged in "tall talk," and threatened to call the police. Occasionally the speculators and the spy sent to spot parties purchasing from them came into collision with each other, and broken heads and bloody noses were imminent. But, whichever side had the best of the argument, it is certain that this sidewalk speculation was and is a great nuisance. The *peculators form a posse quite large enough to overwhelm and sweep away the extremely small police force which is detailed to preserve order before the entrances to and throughout the lobbies of theatres. They thrust their tickets in the faces of ladies and gentlemen entering the theatre, and almost literally drag you into bargains with them. This season they very evidently regard the action of the managers as an invasion of their "rights," and talk seriously of having the dispute settled by law. In front of the theatre known as Niblo's Garden a transparency is every night displayed, bearing the announcement that tickets purchased of the sidewalk speculators will be refused at the door. Nevertheless, you find the speculators there in as large force as ever. Every ticket issued by the management bears the same aunouncement; and yet tickets are purchased from the sidewalk speculators, and the same scenes of rejecting | GLUE."

tickets so purchased and of refusal to admit the bearers of them are nightly enacted at the iron railing through the gate in which, only, admittance may be had into the auditorium. On Wednesday night there was a prospect that a free fight would result. At Booth's Theatre the management has not taken such pains to make public its intentions as to the rejection of tickets bought on the sidewalk. The speculators who beset both theatres, however, have apparently made up their minds to have the question decided as soon as possible by law. ALI BABA.

OBITUARY.

General Hitchcock. Ethan Allen Hitchcock, Major-General of Volunteers, aged seventy-two years, died on the fifth of the present month at Hancock, Georgia. This gentleman is a descendent of the illustrious Colonel whose name he bears. Ethan Allen was his grandfather by his mother's side. During the term of office of President Washington, the father of General Hitchcock held a circuit judgeship. His son the General graduated at West Point in the class of 1817, and became an officer of the Academy in 1824, which connection he continued for about nine years. He had charge of the Northwest Indian Department for a term of years, beginning in 1837. He also did active service in the Florida and Mexican wars, and in the latter was a member General Scott's staff. At one time was in command of the Pacific division, and resigned his commission in 1854. On the opening of the rebellion he became a Major-General of volunteers, but did not take any very active part in the conflict. He was, however, much on duty at Washington, and was a military adviser as well as a strong personal friend of President Lincoln. During part of the war he acted as commissioner for exchanging prisoners. It is said that the immediate cause of his resigning his commission in 1854 was on account of a difficulty between General Scott and Jefferson Davis, the then Secretary of War. After his resignation he devoted himself to literary pursuits and philosophical researches. Among the works which he published were "Remarks upon Alchemy and the Alchemists," 1857, "Swedenborg an Hermetic Philosopher," 1858, and "Christ the Spirit," two volumes, 1859. Besides these there are other works from his pen which attracted considerable notice at the time.

Joseph Hoxle. Mr. Joseph Hoxie, a well-known citizen and conspicuous politician of New York city and vicinity, died at Westerly, R. I., yesterday morning, to which place he had gone in a vain hope of bettering his failing health. Mr. Hoxie was one of the fast-disappearing stock of real old line politicians. He was the personal friend of Henry Clay and Daniel Webster when such as they managed the affairs of the nation.

He was born in Charlestown, R. I., in 1795, in very poor circumstances. He came to New York in 1801 to do for himself, and to obtain, if possible, an education. After several years of struggle he opened a school in Walker street. where many of the now old merchants of New York were his pupils. This employment he would have continued if his health would have permitted. He afterwards successively engaged in the importing and clothing businesses. from which he was driven by the financial reverses of 1837. He next held position as county clerk, being before an alderman. He engaged in the Harrison canvass with great ardor, and became much noted for his speeches and his "Tippecanoe songs." He also took an active part in the Clay canvass, but his political services in either case never resulted in any solid advantage to himself. Mr. Hoxie ran for Congress in 1852, but was deteated by Mr. Tweed. Since then he has organized and become president of a fire insurance company, also president of a life insurance company, and collector of internal revenue. He married when twenty-two years of age, and his family now consists of two sons and seven daughters. At the time of his death he was a resident of Brooklyn, where he has resided for about two years past. He was connected with the church of which the Rev. T. D. Cuyler is pastor.

LABOR.-Labor is capital. Bestow good health upon a man, so that he can labor every six out of seven days, and no matter how poor he may have been at the commencement of life's great race, he will be certain to accumulate a fortune, provided he takes care of his earnings. PLANTATION BITTERS is certain to make the weak ones strong, and to preserve the health of the healthy. From four to six hours is considered the ordinary limit for brain work. At the expiration of this time the phosphorus is carried off, and the man becomes irritable and nervous. If he is poor, and continues on at his task, as most of poor doctors, lawyers, and editors do, he will be certain to shorten his days and fill an untimely grave, as did Sir Walter Scott, unless he uses Plantation Bitters, which speedily restores his vital energy, repairs his indigestion, and corrects the sluggish circulation of his blood.

A LUUBYX OF THE PERIOD .- Regarded from the economic standpoint. SEA MOSS FARINE appears to overshadow every other vegetable nutrient. It contains-as we are informed on good scientific authority-nearly ninety per cent. of nourishing, fattening gelatine; and of all gelatine substances used in cooking it is said to be the cheapest by over fifty per cent., as well as the most digestible. We give these statements, which are authenticated by the signatures of men of eminent reputation, as vouchers for the opinions we have ventured to express on the economic importance of the new article of diet. As to its deliciousness, the "proof of the pudding is in eating it;" and we feel confident that no man or woman who has once eaten of a blanc mange, pudding, custard, cream, Charlotte Russe, or any other delicacy prepared with this marine Godsend, will deny its claim to rank among the table luxuries of ANOTHER MYSTERY SOLVED .- Chemists being unable to discover the ingredients in fragrant Sozopont, which removes all stains from the teeth and imparts such a peculiar rosiness to the gums, the public are hereby informed that it is a preparation from the Bark of the QUILLAYA SAPONARIA OF SOAP Tree of Chili, imported for the first time into this country for this special purpose. Such is the purifying and innocuous effect of this rare botanical agent, that it removes discolorations from the most fragile textile fabrics, without injuring a single thread.

one of the rumors of the war, but is generally discredited here. More Fighting Near Mars-la-Tour. LONDON, Aug. 19-2:30 P. M .- The following s the latest from the seat of war:-There was fighting all day on Thursday near Mars-la-Tour.

The latest French despatches are full of expressions of confidence of victory. The following additional facts of Tuesday's Conflict have been received. A battalion of the 73d French regiment of the line destroyed a regiment of German lancers, capturing their colors. There were several brilliant charges by the French, in one of which General Legrand was killed. It is reported that Prince Albert, commanding the division of cavalry, was killed outright, but this is not confirmed. After a close conflict the French occupied the Prussian position. It is said that the French force engaged numbered 150,000.

The Battle of Gravelotte. There was severe fighting on the 17th near Grvelotte.

The Emperor is still at Rheims. The ground between Metz and Verdun has been a scene of constant carnage since Sunday. Parts Rejoicing.

Paris, Aug. 19 .- There is intense excitement and enthusiasm because of the news of repeated

French victories. The streets are full of processions and crowds, and crowds of people are roaring the "Marseillaise." Notwithstanding the great excitement there is no disorder. The German Residents in France. LONDON, Aug. 19 .- The collective note of Austria and England dissuading France from expelling German residents has been ineffectual. Eugenie and the Wounded. Paris, Aug. 19 .- The Empress takes part in the movement in favor of the wounded. She has ordered her apartments at Compeigne to be prepared for that purpose, and has decided upon trying the system inaugurated in America during the recent civil war of caring for the wounded in tents, where plenty of fresh air can be obtained. A French National Loan. It is said on good authority that the Minister of Finance will open a national loan on Monday. A Council of Ministers was held to day.

Paris a Stronghold. The Constitutionnel to-day publishes an article stating that Paris is now a stronghold. The armed force is very great, and the Admiralty has equipped the forts, which have been armed completely. Enormous quantities of provisions have been stored in the city, and much more is reaching here daily. Mills have been lately erected here capable of furnishing more flour than the resident population could use. Some of the heaviest dealers in grain have engaged to furnish all that is needed, without any reference. to the price, leaving that matter altogether to the discretion of the Government. Different journals compliment such evidences of sincere patriotism.

Arrival of Steamships. Arrived out, steamships Russia and European.

The Report of Vanderblit's Death. 7 TROY, Aug. 19 .- Last night a fraudulent telegram was delivered at the Western Union office in this city addressed to the Associated Press, stating that Commodore Vanderbilt had been stricken with apoplexy at Saratoga, and was lying at the point of death. The despatch purported to have been sent by W. E. Kisselburgh, city editor of the Troy Times. Kisselburgh did did not send the telegram, and knows nothing whatever of its origin. The proprietor of the Troy Times will endeavor to learn who perpetrated the forgery .- W. E. Kisselburgh, Troy

Saratoga, Aug. 19 .- The Young Men's Christian Association having appointed a committee of five to suppress the gambling-houses here, and Ford & Allen learning of the movement taken, closed up their establishment on Wednesday. On Thursday the officers visited John Morrissey's place, and took an inventory of the implements, which he agreed to deliver to them on Monday.

The National Labor Congress. CINCINNATI, Aug. 19.—The Labor Congress convened this A. M. at 9 o'clock. Resolutions declaring it to be the duty of the Government to protect every branch of honest industry pursued by its citizens, and that all duty on shipbuilding material be removed, were referred to committee. A resolution recommending all organizations of protective associations to adopt the eighthour rule was also referred to a committee. The fourth and fifth resolutions of the platform were adopted. An amendment to the sixth resolution, that the accumulated wealth of the nation, which is the result of labor already performed, should be a tax on a graduated basis, so as to make the burden of taxation bear heaviest upon those who have secured the lton's share of the fruits of American toil, was presented by Mr. Coffin, and was warmly discussed.

Mrs. Hathaway favored the amendment, declaring it expressed the views of the working women, who are always at the very bottom of the pyramid of oppression that rests upon the Pending the discussion the convention adjourned, the Chair announcing that the Labor Assembly of Cincinnati would pay all debts contracted by the congress during its session.
