THE WAR NEWS.

The prospects of a successful resistance by the French to their invaders grow "small by degrees and beautifully less." Every day brings into bolder relief the military and political weakness of the empire. Of all the blunders recorded in history there is nothing equal to the folly displayed by Napoleon in provoking the present war; and when the bitter consciousness of this fact is brought home to every citizen of France, as it soon will be, the prolongation of his rule will become impossible.

The most significant items of intelligence printed during the last few days are those which indicate the growing strength of the opinion that Paris will not only be besieged. but that it must soon cease to be the capitalpropositions to remove the seat of government to a safer locality having already been freely discussed.

In this country such an experiment might be made without destroying public confidence. The British compelled the Continental Gongress to adjourn from Philadelphia to Lancaster during the Revolutionary war, and they destroyed the public buildings at Washington during the war of 1812 without compelling the American people to sue for peace. But Paris holds a widely different relation to France. Authority has been centralized in that city for so many centuries that its fall will imply the virtual destruction of any Government that proves unable to defend it. If the Emperor abandons it to its fate, and attempts to issue Imperial edicts from some obscure fortified town, he cannot hope to secure unquestioned obedience, and the disposition will be stronger than ever to establish a rival authority in the old citadel, even if it has to be defended in part by Prassian bayonets. The plan to perpetuate the contest, under the present regime, after the capital is invested, is as cowardly as it is oruel, and if it is attempted it will only make Napoleon sink lower than ever in the estimation of his subjects and the civilized world. without serving his desperate purpose. If he, or parties representing trict some very exact information about the him, cannot respond to a Prussian summons to surrender Paris, either by driving off the invaders or by making peace, he has no right to drag on a hopeless fight until the whole land is devastated. . The Emperor committed a fearful blunder when he staked the safety of France on the superiority of his regular army, and he will make this error more grievous than ever, instead of repairing it, if he undertakes to provoke continued carnage and devastation until he can convert raw levies into soldiers endowed with the courage and steadiness of veteran troops.

but I chose rather to use mild means, and therefore resorted to the professional expedient of demanding a retainer of $2000, which I judged rightly to be far beyond his ability to pay. I followed this demand by the declaration that the acceptance of this re-tainer would in no way bind me to procure for him an appointment; nor had it any reference whatever to the fact that I had a brother in Congress. I said to him, further, that I would under no consideration recommend for nomination to the Military or the Naval Academy any person who was not in every recommend for nomination to the Multary of the Naval Academy any person who was not in every way eligible for that position. "I was never before, nor have I been since this occurrence, approached by any man on this or a similar subject. This whole affair is the culmination of a conspiracy of the parties who were leagued to defraud the Associated Press, and this personal ettack is in retailation for the part I was compaciled attack is in retaliation for the part I was compelled to take in their exposure. "Respectfully, T. R. Symann

J. R. S. was wise, certainly, if not virtuous, when he concluded to charge Brooks a larger fee than he would be able to pay rather than kick him, as he was at first impelled to, but then the scripture telleth us that "the children of this world are wiser in their generation than the children of light,' and as when any effective kicking is to be done there must always be two parties to it, Sypher probably concluded that he might possibly find himself in the position of kickee, whereas $2000 would be a nice, comfortable sum of money to have in hand-if he could get it.

Perhaps Brooks was lying when he told the story he did, but in view of the corroborative evidence of J. R. Sypher, we do not believe that he was. The man with the cadetship for sale-J. H. Sypher, of Louisiana-evidently wanted to escape from compromising himself legally by bargaining directly with Brooks; but does he really suppose that the intelligent people of this country are to be deceived by any such transparent subterfuge? And although he did not sell his cadetship for $2500, or any other sum that we are aware of, he is just as guilty as if he did, and he is not a proper man to sit in Congress to make laws for the nation.

He undertakes to assert that this accusation was originally brought forward to defeat his admission to the House at the last session. His application for a seat in the House to which he had never been elected was a consummate piece of impudence, and as he is evidently on the make, the large sum of money which Congress was foolish enough to allow him for his "expenses" probably soothed his disappointment; but with that we have nothing to do at present, and with regard to the accusation against him we need only say that if he is guilty the motives of his accusers are of no consequence whatever. Mr. Brooks, whose testimony got the Syphers into difficulty, might be heard from with advantage on the point at issue, and he can probably give the people of the First Louisiana dismoral character of this would-be representative. The Morning Post, which ventilated this matter pretty thoroughly when it was first broached, could also doubtless say comething to the purpose.

When the news of Sypher's recent nomination was received in this city, his agent went around to the different Republican newspapers asking them to give him good notices. We complied with the request to the best of our ability, and there is nothing whatever in our "puff" that we are disposed to retract. On the contrary, we repeat what we said then, "That it is a disgrace such a man as this should be one of the most prominent representatives of the Republican party in Louisiana, and every honest man in the country would rather see a decent Rebel elected to the House of Representatives for the First Congressional district of Louisiana, than a loyalist like Sypher, who considers his loyalty just so much stock in trade, to be disposed of for the benefit of his bank account."

transaction, and we believe he could have been. But admitting that it was impossible to hold him legally responsible, he certainly proved himself to be a consummate scoundrel. and the officers of the United States Court, if they are virtuous themselves, ought to have been glad of an opportunity to give him his deserts. The proofs against him in the case for which he was placed on trial last week are said to have been most conclusive, and the question now is who is responsible for the flaw in the indictment, or was there really any flaw? Judge Cadwalader has given some very queer decisions since he has been on the bench of the United States District Court, and it is impossible not to entertain the supposition that the "flaw' might possibly have been in his imagination. Admitting that the document was defective, however, which of the two District Attorneys, Smith or Valentine, was it that drew it up? We do not wish to charge either of these two gentlemen or the Judge with intentional wrong-doing, but there is certainly something here that needs an investigation, for it is no slight outrage for a court to turn such a scamp as Weightman loose upon the community when it has ample evidence before it to send him to the

CIPHER.

WE have received a communication from the Louisiana carpet-bagger, J. H. Sypher, in which he indulges in a variety of opprobrious epithets evidently intended to wound our sensibilities, and inclosing some extracts from the New Orleans Times which refer to that little matter of a cadetship which he wished to sell but could not because he asked more than the market value for it. The remarks we had occasion to make a short time ago with reference to Sypher, when we learned that he had succeeded in getting the Republican nomination for Congress in the First district of Louisiana. appear to have irritated him slightly, and he appears in a card which denies that he ever sold or offered to sell a cadetship, and challenges any one to produce any proof to the contrary. The point at issue is, Did Sypher offer to sell a cadetship, and did he only fail to do so because he could not get the money? We assert that he did, and we believe we can prove it to the satisfaction of a disinterested public.

During the investigation into the sale of cadetships conducted by the Military Committee of the House of Representatives last Febraary and March, on the 19th of February E. P. Brooks testified that he applied to J. H. Sypher for the purchase of a cadetship, but that that individual refused to negotiate with him directly, but referred him to his brother, J. R. Sypher, of Philadelphia. In a conversation with the Washington correspondent of the Philadelphia Morning Post, which we find reported in the issue of that paper of February 22, Brooks says:-

"The honorable gentleman, i. e. J. H. Sypher, in-formed me most distinctly that any engagement I might make with his brother would be entirely satisfac-"I knew that J. R. Sypher was a fraud, and consequently dealt with him as such, and in doing so re-fused to advance him any rotatuer, but declared my willingness to deposit $2000 with any houest man that he might select from among his limited acquaintances with that class of persons. I deny that I ever had attempted or claimed to have any other acquaintance with Congressman Sypher than that which he sought himself. He was a 'weak sister,' whose fuffuence or friendship was not worth courting, and he proved it when I talked 'Turkey' to him by voluntarily It when I talked Turkey to him by columerity seeding for his brother to come to Washington. When, in response to this fraternal call, J. R. Sypher came to Washington, he begged me to aid him in framing an excuse for his absence from his post of duty, and finally, when he returned to Phi-indelphia, it was with the distinct understanding that I could have both calciships for $2500 whe leven I wanted them. He says I annoyed him, and seems to regret that he did not kick me out of his pre-sence, to which I answer that his inquiries regard-ing sufficiently prove that his only cause for annoy-ance was a fear that I would not pay him enough money "

In reply to the testimony of Brooks J. R. Sypher published a deliciously ingenuous card to the following effect in THE EVENING TELEGRAPH of February 19, 1870:-

⁴¹To the Baitor of The Ferning Telegraph: -⁴¹To the Baitor of The Ferning Telegraph: -⁴²Pint. apst.rHa, Feb. 19, 1870, -I see published in vour paper of yesterday a 'special despatch' from Washington, which gives the testimony of one Brooks relative to his application to me to procure the appointment to a caletably at West Point. ⁴¹It is true that this man Brooks did, on several occasions, importance me to procure for him such an appointment. It is not true that I ever agreed to procure one for any price or consideration, or for any sem named or unnamed. Perhaps I should have apecremoniously sicked this man from my presence ;

THE "BOODLE" GAME.

On Monday last there was a very curious performance in the United States District Court, before Judge Cadwalader, that involves something more than a suspicion that somebody connected with the court has been playing the "boodle" game with justice. Andrew J. Weightman, who is known as the "Boodle King" on account of his brilliant success in selling, to unsuspecting innocents, packages of worthless blank paper, under the pretence that they contained first-class imitations of United States greenbacks, was arrested last spring, and an indictment was found against him for counterfeiting. It appears that he found it just as easy and a great deal cheaper to play the "boodle" game with money of his own manufacture as to use that issued by the Government, and at the time of his arrest he had upon his person counterfeits representing $20,000. After a delay of several months his case was called up, and the United States Dis trict Attorney opened the prosecution by stating what he expected to prove against Weightman. In the meantime Judge Cadwalader occupied himself with studying the wording of the inductment, and when the District Attorney took his seat he astonished every one by deelaring that the indictment was defective, and that a trial was consequently useless, because if a conviction was obtained it could not be sustained. The District Attorney accordingly abandoned the case, and in accordance with the instructions of the Judge the jury rendered a verdict of not guilty. This man Weightman is one of the most contemptible as well as one of the most dangerous of the gang of counterfeiters and sharpers who are engaged in the "boodle" business, and it is a great scandal upon the United States District Court that he should have been permitted to escape in the way he did. When acting as a Government detective, Weightman threw temptation after temptation into the way of an engraver who had hitherto borne an irreproachable character, and never rested until he had persuaded him to engrave some counterfeit beer stamps. Having once secured his victim, he then proceeded to demonstrate his zeal for the cause of justice by denouncing him, and the result was that the engraver was sent to the Penitentiary, while his tempter was permitted to run at large unwhipped of justice. Weightman ought to have been punished for the part he acted in the above monitourd

The undersigned General Superintendent (by appointment of the Bishop), would respectfully and earnestly urge upon members of the Church particularly, and Christian people generally, the necessity of united and com bined effort in the extension of the knowledge o the Gospel of Jesus Christ among the neglected portions of our community, and in providing for the relief of those in our midst who are "in trouble, sor row, need, sickness, or any other adversity." The present time demands unusual exertions on the part of Christians to stem the tide of sin and wickedness which is coming up over our city.
