THE TOUR OF THE LAKES.

The Eastern Excursionists at and Around Daluth.

From Our Own Correspondent. DULUTH, Minn., Aug. 22 .- The Philadelphia excursionists made an excursion to-day over the Lake Superior and Mississippi Railroad to Thomson, 23 miles, for the purpose of inspecting the celebrated slate mining veins at that point, and viewing the gorgeous scenery along the St. Louis river, particulasly the Dalles or Rapids. These extend for miles along the river below Thomson and a short distance above. The bed of the river is of rocky formation, and forms an interminable series of shelves or steps, over which the dark-colored water passes and is churne ! into foam.

The day commenced very cloudy and threatening rain, but the excursionists, or about thirty of them, including seven ladies, were not dismayed, and though the rain fell copiously, they enjoyed the trip very much. Arriving at Thomson, they dined at a tasty little cottage, in which is located the office of Mr. Arnold, the Superintendent of the Lake Superior Slate Mining Company. The gentlemen inspected the veins of slate, which, though as yet confined to the surface, turn out a very superior description of roofing slate. Embarking again, the train passed over the bridge over the Daffes, and shortly after passed the junction of the road with the Northern Pacific. The train was taken some distance up the Northern Pacific track, until further progress was arrested by a long train of platform cars laden with rails for the present termination of the road. The iron for fifteen miles of track has now reached Duluth, and the progress of the road will be rapid. The train being the first containing passengers that had appeared on the Northern Pacific track, was greeted with cheers by the track-layers, who turned out of their houses despite the rain. The ladies in the party are rather proud of having been on the first passenger train on the Northern Pacific road, and it is fit that their names should be recorded. There were two Misses Felton, Miss Moorhead, Miss Clarke, Miss Badger, Miss Hopkinson, Miss Arnold, and Mrs. Fulton. The excursionists reached Duluth on their return about 6 o'clock. The rain has caused a change in the arrangements for the reception this evening of the excursionists from St. Paul, 360 in number, that started for this point. The procession and illumination that had been projected were abandoned. The passengers on their arrival disembarked nearly opposite the Clarke House, the front of which was decorated with flags, and the visitors were greeted with the following motto:-"The King of Lakes to the Father of Waters, greeting." A fine band of music accompanied them. They were received with a salute, and the welcoming speech by the Mayor (Culver) of Duluth took place at the Clarke House. His remarks were very happy, and gave due credit to Jay Cooke and the other capitalists of Philadelphia who had aided in the construction of the road and building up Duluth.

Mayor Lee, of St. Paul, responded, and was followed by Hon. Ignatius Donnelly, who prophesied that Duluth would yet become an arm of the Atlantic by the construction of ship canals around the Falls of St. Mary and Niagara. His speech was received with great enthusiasm, and the excursionists were properly provided for at the Clarke House and on board the steamer Winslow. INDEX.

AN EDITOR PLAYS BASE BALL.

The delightful and tender game of base ball having broken out with fresh virulence this season, the following sketch is in or-

The doctor said we needed exercise. Doctor knows. He told us to join base ball: we joined. Bought a book of instructions, and for five days studied it wisely if not too well. Then we bought a sugar-scoop cap, a red belt, a green shirt, yellow trowsers, pumpkin-colored shoes, a paper collar, and a purple necktie, and, with a lot of other delegates, moved gently to the ground. There were two nines. These nines were antagonists. The ball is a pretty little drop of softness, size of a goose-egg, and five degrees harder than a rock. The two nines play against each other. It is a quiet game, much like chess, only a little more chase than chess. There was an umpire. His pesition was a hard one. He sits on a box, and yells "foul." His duty is severe.

I took the bat. It is a murderous plaything, descended from Pocahontas to the head of John Smith. The man in front of me was a pitcher. He was a nice pitcher, but he sent the balls hot. The man behind me was a catcher. He caught it, too!

Umpire said "play." It is the most radical play I know of, this base-ball. Sawing cordwood is moonlight rambles beside base-ball. So the pitcher sent a ball towards me. It looked pretty coming, so I let it come. Then be sent another. I bit it with the club, and hove it gently upward. Then I started to walk to the first base. The ball hit in the pitcher's hands, and somebody said he caught a fly. Alas, poor fly! I walked leisurely towards the base. Another man took the bat. I turned to see how he was making it, and a mule kicked me on the cheek. The man said it was the ball. It felt like a mule, and I reposed on the grass. The ball went on ! Pretty soon there were two nore flies, and three of us flew out. Then the other nine came in, and us nine went out. This was better. Just as I was standing on my dignity in the left field, a hot ball, as they call it, came skyrocketing towards me. My eaptain yelled, "take it!

I hastened gently forward to where the ball was aiming to descend. I have a good eye to measure distances, and I saw at a glauce where the little erolite was to light. I put up my hands. How sweetly the ball deseended! Everybody looked; I felt something warm in my eye. "Muffin!" yelled ninety fellows: "Muffin be d-d! It's a cannon ball!" For three days I've had two pounds of raw beef on that eye, and yet it

Then I wanted to go home, but my gentle captain said "nay." So I nayed and stayed. Pretty soon it was my strike. "To bat!" yelled the umpire. I went, but not all serene, as was my wont. The pitcher sent in one hip high. It struck me in the gullet. "Foul," yelled the umpire. He sent in the ball again. This time I took it square and sent it down the right field, through a parlor window, a kerosene lamp, and rip up against the head of an infant who was quietly taking its—nap in his or its mother's arms. Then I slung the bat and meandered forth to the first base. I heard high words and looked. When I slung the bat, I had with it broken the jaw of the umpire and was fined ten cents. The game went on, I liked it. It is so much fun to run from base to base just in time to be put out, or to chase a ball threefourths of a mile down hill, while all the spectators yell "Muffin!" "go it!" "home run!" "go round again!" or "go round a dozen times!" Base ball is a sweet little game. When it came my turn to bat again I noticed everybody move back about ten rods! The new umpire retreated twelve rods. He was timid. The pitcher sent 'em in hot. Hot balls in time of war are good. But I don't like 'em too hot for fun. After a while I got a fair clip at it, and you bet it went cutting the daisies down the right field. A fat man and dog sat in the shade of an oak, enjoying the game. The ball broke one leg of the dog, and landed, like a runaway engine, in the corporosity of the fat man. He was taken home to die.

Then I went on a double-quick to the field, and tried to stop a hot ball. It came toward me from the bat at the rate of nine miles a minute. I put up my hands-the ball went sweetly singing on its way, with all the skin from my palms with it.

More raw beef. That was an eventful chap who first invented base ball. It's such fun. I've played five games, and this is the result: -

Twenty-seven dollars paid out for things. One bunged eye-badly bunged. One broken little finger.

One bump on the head. Nineteen lame backs. A sore jaw.

One thumb dislocated. Three sprained ankles. Five swelled legs.

One dislocated shoulder, from trying to throw the ball a thousand yards.

Two hands raw from trying to stop hot balls. A lump the size of a hornet's nest on left

A nose sweetly jammed, and five uniforms spoiled from rolling in the dirt at the bases. I have played two weeks, and don't think I like the game. I've looked over the scorer's book, and find that I've broken several bats, made one tally, broken one umpire's jaw, broken ten windows in adjoining houses, killed a baby, broke the leg of a dog, mor-tally injured the bread-basket of a spectator, knocked five other players out of time by slinging my bat, and knocked the waterfall from a school-marm who was standing twenty rods from the field, a quiet looker-on.

I've used up fifteen bottles of arnica liniment, five bottles of lotions, half a raw beef, and am so full of pain that it seems as if my limbs were but broken bats, and my legs the limbs of a dead horse-chesnut.

A Man Chloroformed and Robbed on the Street

—How it was Done.

The Cincinnati Times of Thursday says:—

A respectable looking gentleman called at our office this morning and told the following story:—

My name, he said, is Major King. I used to live in this city and did business here during the years 1854, 55, and 56. A few days since I returned to the city from a lengthy absence in the West, having in my possession a large amount of money. Night bemy possession a large amount of money. Night be-fore last, early in the evening, I was playing bil-liards at Phil. Tieman's saloon, when a boy handed me a note, signed by a friend's name, requesting me to step out on the sidewalk, as he wanted to see me. I immediately went out, but instead of seeing the friend from whom the note purported to have come, met three men, strangers to me, one of whom, however, stepped up, called me by name, grasped my hand, shaking it cordially. This person then intro-duced me to the other two men, and a conversation ensued, but upon what subject I do not now remember.

During this conversation I became unconscious. When I resumed consciousness I found myself standing on Sixth street, about a square and a half distant from Tieman's saleon. The first thing I re-member noticing was a powerful odor of chloroform, which seemed to emanate from my breast. Placing my hand on my shirt front, I found it saturated with chloroform.

My next thought was of my pocket-book, and I placed my hands in my pants pockets only to find that they had both been thoroughly sifted. The pocket-book contained $180. I was so much affected by the influence of the chloroform that I could not remember the name of my hotel. Mr. King further says that he does not remember smelling the chloroform before he became uncon-

He thinks he has been followed from the West by a party of villains who knew that he brought with him a large amount of money, which they hoped to obtain in this way. Fortunately he had deposited the most of it in bank immediately after his arrival in the city. The case is one of the most peculiar and mysterious that ever came under our notice. Ether Turning the Heads of Both Surgeon and

Pattent-A Terrific Struggle in the Operating

Between 1 and 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon, says the Portland (Me.) Argus of the 25th inst., Mr. Andrews, of India street, a gentleman of about 55 years, stepped into Dr. Benjamin H. Ordway's office, at No. 18 Federal street, to have treated a sore on his hand. He saw the doctor then, and the next time either of the two men are spoken of is when the doctor went into the room where the servant girl was (she being the only person in the house be-sides the two men). His appearance frightened the girl, for he was literally covered with blood from his head to his feet, and she was sti'l further frightened by the doctor's using a terrible threat in speaking of "that man."

Why she did not look into the matter then does not appear; but about the time given above a man rushed up to Officer Seth Sterling and told him his presence was needed at Dr. Ordway's at once. He astened there, and found a crowd about the door of the house. Entering he was shown into the doctor's office. There a sickening sight met his eyes. The doctor lay back in an easy chair all besmeared with blood and stupefied. The man Audrews was stretched out on the floor. The officer spoke to the doctor and received no response. The man was

Officer Sterling requested a bystander to call the nearest doctor, and Dr. Woods was soon present. The man, in the meantime, had been able to tell in a stupid way his story. He had called, as above referred to, but knew not what took place from 2 till after 7 o'clock. By the side of the man was a large bottle of ether, and he thought he had taken some, and no doubt he had been under the influence all the time. Scattered on the floor were surgical in-struments of all kinds, towers and cloths wringing wet with blood. One of the doctor's hands was cut, and from the hand of the man before him the blood was forming a pool on the floor. This hand, which looked more like a piece of fresh beef than anything else, had eight long cuts in it, and all deep to the bones. The back of the hand, perfectly sound before, was slit open, and cuts or the thumb extended to the wrist. Ordway was put to bed, and a policeman left to guard him. Andrews was taken home, and his wounds dressed. He will lose his thumb, if not the use of the hand. Ordway could say but little in defexse, but wanted to refer it to a jury of doctors.

AN UNNATURAL MOTHER.

The Child Murder and Sulcide in Iowa—Sin-aular Statement of the Hasband.

A few days since the reader was shocked by a brief report by telegraph that a woman in Daven-port, Iowa, had drowned her two little children in a pail of water, and then jumped into a well, where she was found, also dead. It seems that the woman's husband, Mr. Kong, a German, and in-formed one of his neignbors that he saw his wife drown herself. They had some pecuniary embar-rassments, and were obliged to seil some of their goods. It was during his absence in town, after having disposed of some of their silverware, that Mrs. Kong murdered the children. Upon being examined, Kong told the following singular story:—

"When I went down town Saturday evening I did not know how much water was in the house; my wife and our two children were in the front room when I left; I do not know whether my wife was in bed or not; our oldest child was up; it was about

5 P. M. when I took the silverware and went up to Mr. Roif's; I returned home about 5 o'clock; the children were up; we all slept in the front room; in the day time I put one of the beds in the back room, and sometimes the children lay on it there; most of the silverware we had was given us by my father; some was ours together; it was my wife's suggestion to sell the silverware; when I returned from down town in the evening I found the house dark; I lit a candle and saw our oldest child lying dead upon the floor of the bed-room; our little boy was lying with his head in the drinking-water bucket; I at once went into the yard and saw my wife at the well; went to her; she told me what she had done; asked her to come into the house; I laid the chil-dren on the bed and asked my wife how she could do so; we then rubbed them and tried to bring them do so; we then rubbed them and tried to bring them to life; when they could not be 'brought alive' my wife said we had better follow the children, and drown ourselves in the well; I thought we should do so, for I could not think of going to the police court and telling my wife had drowned our children; we agreed to kill ourselves, and shook hands and walked to the well allerted over the our hand together immed in well, climbed over the curb and together jumped in.
(The well is 31 inches in diameter, 16 feet in depth, with 20 inches of water in it, walled up with rock.
Surrounding the well is a curb 4 feet square, 2 feet high; across the centre is the windlass, upon which was the rope, bucket, and chain.) When we got down into the well my wife held her head under the water and died; I tried to put my head under, but could not get it down deep enough; the water choked me; I raised up and found my wife was dead; I changed my mind, and concluded to shoot my-self; I climbed up out of the well, and went into the house to shoot myself; when I saw my two little children lying there dead, I thought I could not do it; I had a single-barrelled gun, but I was too weak It; I had a single-barrelled gun, but I was too weak to get it down from over the door and load it; I had powder, shot, and caps in the house; I then thought I would go to my friend, Mr. Rolfs, and tell him what had happened; I did so, and asked him not to tell of this bad business until Sunday morning; I intended to kill myself before morning, and I did not think Mr. Rolfs could stop me; we went back to the house and got my wife out of the well, and soon after I was taken in custody and brought here (to the jail)."

The coroner's jury returned a verdict in accordance with this statement, and Kong was held to answer the charge of being accessory to his wife's
