A watchman was in charge of the property, and about 1 o'clock yesterday morning the place was entered by seven men, two of whom held the watchman, grasping him around the throat, and holding a hand over his mouth to prevent him making a noise, and while he was thus held, five barrels of whisky were removed. THE WAR.

LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

THE BATTLE OF SEDAN-THE PRUSSIANS VICTO-EIGUS-THE COMBINED ACTION OF BAZAINE AND MACMARON DEFEATED-KING WILLIAM REPORTED INSANE-GERMAN OFFICIAL REPORT OF THE CAMPAIGN.

Paris, Sept. 2 .- The Monde says that five well-frained gunners have been assigned to each of the 3,000 guns mounted in the Paris fortifications. An ample supply of ammunition is also provided.

London, Sept. 2 .- Prince Frederick Charles yesterday thanked his troops on the battlefield for their gallantry. The fourth army, composed of landwehr, has also distinguished Paris journals all publish letters from correspondents to-day, corroborating the news previously published of successes to our arms. The Prussians, however, are so numerous that battles must be resumed on a vast scale.

Both sides have received heavy reinforce-

It is rumored here that the King of Prussia is insane, and has been taken to Berlin.

It is reported here that a large French army, under command of General Douay, has entered the territory of Baden. In Brittany recently 72,000 volunteers partook of communion in one day, on the eve of enrolling themselves in the army. It is said here to-day that old people, and women and children of Strasburg have been enabled to leave the city by means of a subterraneau passage in an old cloister recently discovered. The Council of State at Paris think of fixing the price of bread and provisions, owing to the rapacity of dealers.

Calais and St. Pierre are to be put in a complete state of defence. Paris journals demand the dismissal of General Du Failly, whose management of his corps d'armee betrayed great incapacity in the recent battle. Dispatches from Arion, dated yesterday, say the fortress of Mezieres and Sedan will occupy the attention of a large force of the Prussians, if any attempt is made to besiege French journals call attention to the fact that although the Prussians have much to say of the battle of the 80th, when General Du Failly was repulsed, they make little mention of that of the 31st, when McMahon repulsed their left and centre.

The Prince Imperial is expected at Meaubeuge from Avesnes.

A fleet of gunboats is going up the Seine. The banks of the river are covered with excited crowds, who cheer the fleet as it passes.

PARIS, Sept. 2, evening .- Uncertain and contradictory reports circulate regarding the movements of the armies and the recent battles. Count Palikao, in the Corps Legislatif to-day, declared he had received no official news from McMahon or Bazaine, and had no communication to make to the Chamber. At the Bourse, and in all circles here, fears are expressed that the French soldiers have been outnumbered, but dispatches received via Belgium represent that McMahon has been successful, and that Bazaine, having received full supplies and provisions and ammunition, occupies a good position. It is believed that righting has been going on all day to-day.

PARIS, Sept. 2 .- Journals state [that the reported insanity of the King of Prussia is confirmed.

It is proved that it was not the army of General Donay which entered Baden territory, but a large volunteer force.

A number of Germans were arrested to-day for non-compliance with the order to leave of the Interior submitted a proposition that officers and sub officers of the National Guard be elected from amongst former soldiers. The measure was declared urgent, and was adopted.

payment of commercial effects for two months instead of one month, as already provided for, which was also declared urgent and adopted. The Bishop of Strasburg is reported to have died yesterday.

The Pays makes a demand that the Chambers separate until after the war, owing to the fact that too much time has been taken up in useless inquiries which disturb and impede the action of the government.

William H. Russell writes that last week nothing could possibly have checked the Prussian advance on Paris, but now that the fortifications have been enlarged and strengthened an entrance there is hardly possible.

The cholera has extended into southeastern

The urgency of the Prussian advance is ascribed to her anxiety to reach Paris before the new rifled naval artillery, which is now concentrating from the fleets, could be moved into position there. Experts regard these guns as murderous weapons.

London, Sept. 3 .- The French Emperor, attended by Nelaton and other eminent surgeons, is now with Marshal Bazaine.

The French troops which engaged the Prussians at Attigny were reinforcements which left Paris on the 27th and 28th of August for Marshal McMahon. They were conveyed by rail from Paris to Rethel, and marched then to Montmedy. Notwithstanding these troops were fresh, they were routed by the Prussians.

Paris papers notice angrily that Prussian victories strengthen the London stock market; also, that Prince Humbert, Crown Prince of Italy, and his wife have congratulated Prussia on her successes.

The Paris correspondent of the Globe vouches for the truth of the following report: A gigantic battle has been in progress since Wednesday morning, near the forest of Argonne. The following dispatch from the Emperor reached the Empress Thursday afternoon: "All goes wonderfully well. Our plans all succeed.

The Examiner says: "If the mad policy of 1814 toward France, a policy of partition and repression, is intended, the safety of Europe demands that France be guaranteed against dishonor and dismemberment. It is to hoped the Czar will interpose to preserve the balance

Berlin, Sept. 2 .- The following is an official report of the campaign from the commencement up to the battles around Metz. On the 6th of August the first Prussian army found itself between Saarbrucken and Saarlouis, facing the second French corps occupying Spicherm heights near Saarbrucken.

The 14th division attacked as the Franch were preparing to leave on trains, and was supported by the 15th division and some portions of the second army under General Steinmetz. A bloody victory was achieved, and 3000 prisoners captured.
Frossard retired from Forbach to Metz, leaving his baggage, private stores of champagne, pontoon train, camp kitchen, &c. Meanwhile the 1st corps moved on Metz, waiting for the second army, which had to lay a railway track as it went along. On the 14th of August the first army was placed thus: the 1st corps, with the 2d division, near Etange, between Metz and Boulay, with another division near Courcelles, between Metz and Avold; division near Courcelles, between Metz and Avold; the 7th corps, with the 13th division, near Pange; the 14th division near Donnaville; the 8th corps reserve near the village of Vionville; the 3d divi-sion on the left wing near St. Barbe, its 1st cavalry near Frontigny, the advanced post close to the French line, scarcely a German mile from Metz, while the main body was encamped on the banks

The enemy had occupied with considerable force the small watercourses between Colomby and Denomilly. The movements of the o'clock led to a reconnoissance. The movements of the enemy about four Energetic resistance was encountered. The ene-Energetic resistance was encountered. The enemy developed great strength, and General Mantenfiel, of the 1st corps, and General Zastrow, of the 7th, engaged promptly, General Galtz's brigade, of the 7th corps, in advance. The first division advanced towards Colomby, and was soon involved in a very violent combat, but maintained itself until Osten's brigade came up, fronting a force far outnumbering it. General Zastrow arrived at five o'clock to the east of Colomby, taking command in chief and advancing the whole corps. command in chief and advancing the whole corps.

At six o'clock all of Glumer's division was engaged, maintaining itself with difficulty against a superior force. At seven o'clock Kamek's division was concentrated at Marseilly. At that moment six batteries were engaged, with others in reserve, to extricate and sustain Glumer and Zastrow. At six o'clock Woynae's brigade was sent to attack the enemy's right, near Colomby. The brigade, with splendid bravery, drove the enemy, enabling Osten's brigade to occupy the wood on the north of Colomby. The 27th brigade remained intact as a The 27th brigade remained intact as

At about 8.30 the enemy withdrew at all points. In the meantime the 7th corps, with the advance of the 1st, advanced under cover of cavalry near to the roads connecting Avoid with Metz. The corps opened the attack with the 1stdivision near Mont-bols and the 2d way Nalssay 114. bols, and the 2d near Noisseville. The enemy in force attempting to advance on the latter point were repulsed in force by prompt service with the corps artillery and by the reserves of infantry.

Darkness closed the fight on the extreme left. The 1st division of horse approached Mercy-le-

The 1st division of horse approached Mercy-le-Haut, their battery advancing, with pauses to fire. The 36th regiment of the 9th corps, belonging to the left wing of the second army, had advanced on the east in the same line. At the extreme right the 3d division of cavalry advanced to Ogg, where its battery opened on the enemy north of Perigny. At eight o'clock the enemy recoiled at all points from the left bank of the Moselle under the guns of Matz. Pursuit was stoneed by the fire from the Metz. Pursuit was stopped by the fire from the guns from the fortress. The field was covered with dead, A few prisoners were taken, and few trophies.

Owing to the activity of the fortress, the heavy fire of which tore through the Prussian masses, General Steinmetz, who came in, was in time to give orders for the night and the following day to prepare for a renewal of the conflict. The result was that the enemy in one quarter was driven from the wall back into the fortress. In another quarter a large body was left to retreat on Paris and fall into the hands of the second army, which was moving rapidly on the west bank of the Moselle. Leaving the 1st corps and two divisions of cavalry on the east of Metz, the army next day moved to the left without resistance, passing the Moselle at Arey and Carny. On the 17th the corps was beyond Ars-sur-Moselle, the 8th and 9th corps at Gorza, while the second army was marceing rapidly toward Metz on

After victorious fights at Vionville and Flavigny the task of the first army this day was to act as the right of all lines of attack, holding the left bank of the Moselle, while the second army moved so that the first would extend from northward east, thus bringing the first and second armies between Metz

On the 17th, no offensive movement was made, the Prussians resting near Gravelotte, the 7th corps contenting itself with repelling a slight reconnoissance near the forest of Vaux. At this moment General Steinmetz, reconnoitring at the south of Gravelotte, in the forest of Ognotti, discovered the enemy, three corps strong, encamped on the heights, north of Gravelotte. Farms or St. Habert and Point-du-Joure, were occupied about noon. General Steinmetz hearing a cannonade at Vionville, and having been advised that the head of the 9th corps was engaged, gave orders to resume the attack.

The 7th corps deployed on the south and east of the heights of Gravelotte. A formidable artillery practice followed. Fifty cannon, presently augmented to eighty, opened on the enemy's batteries, while advancing steadily along the high road, was a mitrailleuse, when fire was opened on the reconnoitering party. A strong outpost, well sustained, was placed. The enemy made no serious attack that day.

On the 18th the first army remained quiet, the enemy equally so, while the second army advanced to Viceville and Marie-aux-Chenes to renew the

In the Corps Legislatif, to-day, the Minister of the Interior submitted a proposition that officers and sub officers of the National Guard be elected from amongst former soldiers. The measure was declared urgent, and was adopted. Deputy Cremieux proposed delay in the payment of commercial effects for two months instead of one month, as already provided for,

In the meantime the 7th and 8th corps coming from Rezonville opened an attack with heavy ar-tillery practice, while the first division of the cav-alry took the first sheltered position behind it, and the infantry attacked the enemy in the wood of Genevaux again. The enemy's guns were silenced while the infantry encountered an obstinate resistance in Genevaux woods, where the fight continued

Owing to the density of the wood the hostile forces intermixed, and the Germans and French frequently fired into their own ranks. Emerging at last from the wood, the Prussians carried the heights and farm of St. Hubert with severe loss. A farther advance was impossible on this side. The French artillery was withdrawn, and the Prussian became silent. About three o'clock, supposing the enemy gone, Steinmetz ordered Hartman's cavalry to cross the defile, with two horse batteries and the 4th uhlans, and pursue. This was effected at four P. M. The pursuers found that the enemy had not retreated, but were sheltered from the cannonade by the treeps which had advanced. Our men encountered a murderous fire from chassepots, cannon and mi-trailleuses. Dead and wounded instantly cumbered the reads. The Prussian batteries soon reopened, sheltering the cavalry. The duel continued till dark, when leaving a force in the field, the Prussian main body fell back.

At four o'clock in the morning the Prussian artillery reopened, the French replying until silenced.

At the left, between Vionville and Arman Villcers, infantry fire alone was heard at first, but soon artillery began, showing the approach of Prince Frederick Charles. The German infantry held firmly, awaiting the support of artillery, and kept the enemy busy. The French, all day, used the chassepot from trenches at 2200 yards, inflicting dismay and severe losses, but they were nevertheless, in a desperate condition. Being surrounded and attacked on all sides, their only chance was to and attacked on all sides, their only chance was to retreat to the fortress.

At seven o'clock in the evening they made one more effort to cut through our lines to Paris. Line after line of riflemen, firing over each other's shoulders and shouting wildly, rushed from the heights to a ravine, through the trees. The Prussian infantry, thinned and weakened, wavered. The moment was critical, but the artillery providentially opened and hurled back, with slaughter, the assailants. The Prussians then assumed the offensive. Reinforcements happily arrived, the offensive. Reinforcements happily arrived, the King having approached and dispatched the Pomeranians, that had never been under fire, to the front. Its aid was decisive. Rushing forward and firing, it carried the heights, winning the day. On the 19th the enemy took refuge in Metz.

Steamer Rattlesnake uron), Winnett, at Boston, of and from Philadelphia, with 525 tons coal on board, was discovered to be leaking at the wharf on the morning of the 31st. Two pumps were put into service, but the water rose with the tide, and at high water she was submerged to within about three feet of her taffrail and the water flowed through the scuppers across the deck. Captain Winnett's theory of the accident is that the ebbing tide let the hull of the steamer down on a rock, staving a hole through her bottom. The consigness (J. O. Little & Co.), however, say that alongside their wharf are two berths, separated by a bar of hard mud, the inner being designed for small vessels and the outer for large ones, by extending their steins outside the pier. Captain Winnett, without instructions they say, brought his ship into the smaller berth, with her stern extending over the bank of hard mud she 200 feet long), upon which she rested when the tide went down, and the strain sprung a leak. Captain Winnett is now awaiting orders from the owners relative to the discharge of his cargo, which must now be attended with considerable extra expense. The vessel is made in water-tight compartments, and the coal can only be got out at low tide.
