PUBLISHED EVERY AFTERNOON (SUNDAYS EXCEPTED) AT THE EVENING TELEGRAPH BUILDING, No. 108 S. THIRD STREET, PHILADELPHIA.

The Price is Three cents per copy (double sheet), or eighteen cents per week, payable to the carrier by whom served. The subscription price by mail is Nine Dollars per annum, or One Dollar and Fifty Cents for two months, invariably in advance for the time ordered.

THURSDAY, SEPTEMBER 22, 1870.

The earliest regular edition of THE EVENING TELEGRAPH goes to press at 1 1/2 o'clock, and the subsequent regular editions at 2 1/2, 3 1/2, and 4 1/2. Whenever there is important news of the progress of the European war, extra editions will be issued after this hour, and before the regular time for the early edition.

THE PROSPECTS OF PEACE.

ALTHOUGH the accounts from Europe in regard to the prospects of the speedy formation of a treaty of peace are conflicting, the constant efforts which are being made to terminate hostilities between Germany and France can scarcely fail to be successful. The greatest difficulty in the way seems to be that arising from the want of a stable or properly authorized government in France. It is said that Bazaine refuses to recognize the Republic, and that he will not surrender Metz at the command of Favre and his associates, so that in one sense the rule of the Empire is continued over a portion of the country. If, however, Bismarck and Favre can agree upon terms of adjustment subject to the ratification of the Constituent Assembly which is about to be elected, with the understanding that the Germans are to hold their present conquests until such a treaty is ratified in this manner, such a settlement would be as binding as any that could be made under more favorable circumstances. Erratic France has changed her government so frequently that it would be fruitless to search for authorities which are legitimate in the old monarchical sense. If ancient traditions are to be followed, the Bourbons are her true kings, and yet, in the present state of French feeling, they would represent the nation with infinitely less fidelity than either the Orleansists, the Bonapartes, or the republicans. The Bonapartes, in turn, have so thoroughly lost their de facto power that no one is ready to obey them, unless it be true that Bazaine still considers himself their servant; and it is just as well as expedient to go back to first principles, and to appeal directly to the people, as the real source of all power. This has substantially been done, by ordering the elections which are to be held in October, and the Constituent Assembly which is then to be chosen can speak for the nation more directly and authoritatively than any king, emperor, or provisional ruler.

On of the chief dangers against which the Germans must guard, if negotiations are conducted between Bismarck and Favre, is the employment of the interval which must elapse before the final ratification of the proposed treaty in the organization of French armies and the contemporaneous diminution of the Prussian strength by exposure and disease. But it is probable that the invaders may insist upon guarantees relating to this as well as to other points involved in the controversy.

The increasing jealousy of foreign nations, the growing anxiety of Austria, Russia, and England, the uncertain results of a prolonged siege of Paris, and the enormous drain upon the resources of Germany which would be caused by a continuation of active hostilities, will probably induce King William to offer the most favorable terms that are consistent with the future welfare and safety of the Fatherland, and we have a strong hope that Grant's favorite motto, "Let us have peace," will soon become as popular in the Old World as it is in this country.

A WISE WORD FROM VICTOR HUGO. YESTERDAY we published another version, received by mail, of Victor Hugo's speech to the mob which greeted his return to Paris, after a voluntary and involuntary exile of some nineteen years. His words are strange, but consistent. Some of his sentiments are praiseworthy and practical, others are rambling and ridiculous as the love-pratings of Marins. One point that he makes is especially worthy of heed in heedless Paris. "On this condition," he says—"one republic and one people—Paris will triumph. I ask of you but one thing—union. By union you will conquer. Banish dissensions, check resentments, be united; you will be invincible."

The general principle herein set forth should command the assent of Paris and France. It may be too late—doubtless it is too late—for union to save Paris from the Prussians, too late for union to save France from humiliating terms of peace. But these disasters are the legacies of the empire; Paris must open her gates to King William, France must submit to the dictation of Bismarck, as the penalty for having rallied with enthusiasm around the eagles of Napoleon, when he sought to secure the succession to his son by rushing into an unprovoked and infamous war with a neighboring nation.

All wars must have an end, however, and the end of this one cannot be far distant. Every nation that goes to war, with or without cause, and is worsted on the field, must take such terms from the victor as may be offered. Even after the crushing blow was struck at Sedan, France was very blustering about not treating with the enemy until the soil of France was freed from the presence of Prussian soldiers. But all this bluster has ended in words, and France will now gladly sue for peace, if accorded the poor privilege of so doing. Peace will come in due time, be its conditions what they may, and France will submit to these conditions from sheer necessity. Then, the war over and the enemy returned home, Victor Hugo's words will become the guiding star of the nation, unless, with its accustomed fickleness, it stubbornly refuses to follow any one guiding star, and, rushing after a score of ignes fatui, brings up at anarchy and chaos. If France clings to unity, to one republic and to one people, the republic will save what is left of the people. By union France will conquer, not united Germany, but disunited France; and the triumph will be so fraught with blessings that the madness of July 15, through the opportunity which it has brought, will more than compensate for the humiliation of September 2. The United States did not succeed in throwing off the yoke of the slave-trade without passing through a terrible ordeal; France has not been released from the yoke of the Corsican adventurer without passing through an ordeal equally as terrible. It remains to be seen whether she will have the wisdom to select from the profuse platitudes of the veteran exile the one word which alone can bind up her wounds and dry her tears—union. If she does this she conquers herself, and is saved from absolute ruin; if she does not, she becomes a prey to anarchy, and is resolved into national chaos.

WHEN MR. WASHBURN signed his own commission as Minister to France—some evilminded Democratic sheets have asserted that he did so—and turned over the keys of the State Department to Mr. Fish, it was generally thought that his European trip would be productive of more benefit to his own individual health than to the general interests of the country. Some people hooted at the idea of such a man as Washburne being sent to Paris in a diplomatic capacity, and thought that the President was carrying his gratitude too far in providing such a berth even for the man to whom, above all others, he was supposed to be indebted. But Mr. Washburne has done well—unexpectedly and remarkably well—during his official residence abroad, especially since the war between France and Prussia has given him the opportunity for the display of qualities of which his most ardent admirers did not imagine him to be possessed. His letter to Jules Favre, in recognition of the French republic, a full and correct copy of which we published yesterday, was worthy of more experienced diplomatic authorship. And it wound up with simple "Washburne" at the end. There was no preliminary "E. B.," or other simple-minded, affectedly modest Republican simplicity about the signature, but the one magical word "Washburne" at the end, as though there was, as there should be, but one Washburne in France, whom nobody would or could confound with another. But for the lack of "assurances of high consideration" pro forma, this stately diplomatic signature "Washburne" would have looked as well as "Lyons," "Olzaga," or "Von Werther."

"OLD BEN WADE," intimates a Washington despatch, has at last been fixed upon by President Grant as the man for the English mission. We trust that this report is a mere pleasantry of the Washington correspondents who, discouraged and disgusted at the reticence of the President on the subject, have devised a plan whereby they hope to induce him to announce who is not to be the successor to Mr. Motley. "Old Ben Wade" has his merits, but they are not of the diplomatic sort. He proved himself more than a match for a Southern fire-eater or a Northern Democratic demagogue on the floor of the Senate; but we can scarcely imagine him as cutting other than a sorry figure in the courtly circles of the Old World. He has done the State some service, and deserves a little rest from the cares of office. It is needless to say that he would not find this rest in London, even if he hadn't a thing to do there.

THE SURRENDER OF ROME to Victor Emanuel's troops removes the last barrier to Italian unity, and the Imperial city is again to become, after centuries of turmoil, misfortune, and misery, the capital of a great nation. Years ago, when a distinguished writer discussed the Roman question, he predicted that diplomacy would never work out the result over which the Italians are now rejoicing, but that sooner or later it would be accomplished by the sword. This prediction has been substantially verified, and if the advantages of union are properly improved Italy will become as prosperous as Rome in her proudest days, without being an object of terror to neighboring countries.

THE NEW YORK Democratic State Convention yesterday renominated John T. Hoffman as their candidate for Governor. In the resolutions adopted the old war issues are ignored and free trade is advocated as the "true policy of the country," protection being denounced as "simply robbery of the people." The people of this State may therefore expect that a vigorous warfare will be made upon their interests by every Congressman elected by the Democracy of New York, and that the whole influence of Tammany Hall will be exerted in behalf of British manufacturers.

THE FINE ARTS.

Windsor Castle in Cork. Last evening there was a private view at the Artists' Fund Galleries, on Chesnut street, opposite the Mint, of a very beautiful and elaborate model of Windsor Castle in cork, made by Mr. Lloyd Hoppin. This model is an artistic curiosity, as nothing of the kind on anything like the same scale has ever been seen in this city, and it is as creditable to the skill and taste of Mr. Hoppin as it is to his patience and perseverance. The model is nearly seven feet in length, and it gives an accurate reproduction on a reduced scale of the magnificent pile of buildings which form the favorite residence of the British monarchs. All the details of the great structure are represented with wonderful fidelity, and this model gives an idea of what Windsor Castle really is, such as can be obtained from no plans or pictures. Cork modelling is Mr. Hoppin's hobby, and he has produced a number of very beautiful works, among which may be mentioned a model of Westminster Abbey, which was exhibited at the Academy of Fine Arts, and which may now be seen at the Artists' Fund Galleries. The model of Windsor Castle is, however, by far the most interesting and artistic of anything that he has yet done, and it should by all means be placed on public exhibition.

"OUR CANDIDATE FOR JUDGE OF THE DISTRICT COURT."

Before the interrogatories of "A Republican," in this paper of yesterday, concerning James Lynd, Esq., candidate for Judge of the District Court, can be properly answered, it is important to know whether the candidate in question is the same James Lynd who was President of the Consumers' Mutual Coal Company, or the James Lynd who was Treasurer of the Philadelphia Mercantile Loan and Building Association, or it is the James Lynd against whom a stack of judgments appear upon the records of the same District Court for which a Judge is to be elected; or is he the James Lynd whose voluminous Record in Bankruptcy has lately been the object of so much curiosity? What James Lynd is it?

A QUERK CASE.—A MAN WAS LATELY sent to the lunatic asylum for persisting in planting horse chestnuts in expectation of raising acorn colts. There are persons at large who entertain expectations equally absurd. Those who are afflicted by the low price of coal are frequently victimized. If you want good coal, patronize some reliable dealer like Mr. A. G. HANCOCK, at the northwest corner of NINTH and MASTER Streets. You there get the Honeybrook Lehigh in all its purity. Deal with him once and you become a permanent patron. 9 23 42

HARPER'S HAIR DYE.—THE ONLY harmless and reliable dye known. This splendid Hair Dye is perfect. Changes red, rusty, or grey hair, whiskers, or moustache instantly to a glossy black or natural brown, without injuring the hair or staining the skin, leaving the hair soft and beautiful. Only 50 cents for a large box. CALLENDER, THIRD and WALNUT. SPECIAL NOTICES.

THE GREAT WHISKY ESTABLISHMENT OF THIS CITY.—H. M. DALY'S great whisky warehouses are located at No. 229 South FRONT Street and No. 129 DOCK Street. The building, which is probably the largest of its kind in the United States, is five stories high, and runs through from Front to Dock street, a distance of at least 315 feet. Whiskies of the rarest and purest brands are stored on every floor of this huge structure, and the cooler after the genuine article can there find Bourbon of old date, wheat ditto, and that champion of all whiskies, the Golden Wedding. It is of some importance to the liquor merchants of this and other cities to know that Mr. DALY'S stock embraces the productions of the celebrated distilleries belonging to Thomas Moore & Son, Joseph S. Fish & Co., and Thomas Moore. Their whiskies are always made from the best grains, double copper distilled and put up in seasoned, heavily-charred, iron-bound barrels. As agent, therefore, of these well-known firms, Mr. DALY justly claims that he can supply the trade with the finest whisky in the market, and in the original packages as received direct from the manufacturers. This he will vouch for, and this is a point which deserves the notice of all purchasers. 9 19 21 21

MOURNING DRY GOODS.

ESTABLISHED 1826. PERKINS & CO., 9 South NINTH Street, Headquarters for Every Variety OF (9 13 tuthsmap) MOURNING GOODS. DRY GOODS. 1870. WAR'S DOINGS. Important to Dry Goods Buyers.

Owing to the unfortunate state of affairs on the Continent of Europe, there is a moral certainty of ALL EUROPEAN GOODS being advanced in price; in fact, already importers of SILKS are asking a large percentage over last season's prices, and goods are scarce as that. We have quite a good stock on hand of Silks, Shawls, and Dress Goods, which we propose FOR THE PRESENT to sell at old prices, not putting on one cent advance. Also, FRENCH AND LLAMA LACES, which it will pay well to buy now at old prices, even to keep for next summer. Also, BLACK CRAPES AND CRAPE VEILS, and BLACK ALPACA, MOHAIRS, and DELAINES, and KID GLOVES, CORSETS, and LINEN GOODS. We would advise our friends to lay in their stock of the above goods for family use.

REFRIGERATORS.

BISMARCK DRINKS PURE WATER. Our Fritz Drinks Filtered Water. Louis Napoleon Will Not Poison Himself with Muddy Water. All American citizens should preserve their health by drinking nothing but the pure limpid water that has passed through SCHARFF & WOOD'S Patent Filter and Cooler.

Why suffer with the Gravel caused by mad? Why suffer with Griping Pains caused by drinking Ice water, when by having your water filtered and cooled as nature filters and cools the pure Spring water, you may avoid these ills? The Schuykill water is rendered impure by the numerous factories, coal oil refineries, stinks, slaughter-houses, dye works, etc., etc., which cluster on its banks. By forcing this impure water through SCHARFF & WOOD'S PATENT FILTER AND COOLER It is rendered as pure as the waters that run from the mountain hills. The expense is nothing in comparison to the benefit derived from its use. In one season it will pay for itself in the saving of ice; it never gets out of order, and will last a life time. For further particulars send for a circular. JOHN WOOD, JR., Proprietor.
