

Evening Telegraph

SATURDAY, SEPTEMBER 24, 1870.

The Age day after day contained frantic appeals to the Republican papers to either explain or denounce what it termed "the diabolical scheme of the radical aldermen to defraud the public and violate the laws which they were sworn to support."

THE POLITICAL SITUATION IN FRANCE.

The late news from France indicates that the elections of a Constituent Assembly have not been called one moment too soon. The power of the Provisional Government is questioned or defied in various quarters, and it is imperatively necessary that a central authority which will command universal respect, and which is chosen by the whole nation, should be speedily established.

A cure for these discords, however, has already been provided, and if France has learned wisdom from her former republican experiments she will obey the present rulers until others can be empowered by the Constituent Assembly. The greatest obstacle to a permanent popular government is to be found in the ultra radicalism of the Red Republicans, and their longings for a new social organization which will not only reform political abuses, but equalize wealth and create a Utopia.

The overthrow and disgrace of all the old dynasties give to the nation a splendid opportunity for establishing free institutions. Now since the Bonapartes are shelled with the Bourbons and Orleansists, the people have only to prove their capacity for self-government by suppressing the excesses of the impracticable radicals on the one hand, and preventing the establishment of a new dictatorship on the other.

REVENUE REFORM. The American Free Trade League is unusually busy this season in circulating tracts opposed to protection, and its members are making strenuous efforts to elect a majority of free trade members of the next Congress.

title of revenue reformers, but their publications are all devoted to the interests of foreign manufacturers and to a restoration of the industrial supremacy of Great Britain in American markets.

The success of their schemes would be the greatest possible calamity that could be inflicted on the State of Pennsylvania and the city of Philadelphia. The agricultural products of this Commonwealth are not sufficient to sustain its own inhabitants, and the trade and commerce of its citizens extend little beyond the supply of their immediate wants.

OBITUARY.

Colonel Bradford R. Alden. The death of Colonel Bradford R. Alden is announced. He was the son of a Revolutionary soldier, and a taste for military life induced him to procure an appointment to West Point, from which he graduated in 1839.

Charles T. Parsloe, Sr. Charles T. Parsloe, Sr., one of the veterans of the American stage, died in New York on Thursday. He was born in England in June, 1804, and became a member of the dramatic profession at an early age.
