

OBITUARY.

The Duke of Nassau. A morning's despatch brings the news of the death of the Duke of Nassau, who was wounded September 24, while riding with the King of Prussia and staff from Rheims to Chalons, for the purpose of conferring with Prince Frederick Charles.

The Duke's full title is Adolph William Charles Augustus Frederick; he was born July 24, 1817, and assumed the sovereignty August 30, 1839. He was married in 1844 to the Princess Elizabeth, daughter of the Grand Duke Michael of Russia. This wife died January 28, 1845, and on April 23, 1851, he was married again to Adelaide Marie, daughter of Prince Frederick of Anhalt-Dessau. By this lady he has two children.

Before his accession to the throne, a constitutional government had existed for many years. The nation had been represented by the States of the duchy, but not by members elected by the people. In 1847 the Duke declared his purpose of reigning in a more constitutional manner, and a new and more liberal constitution was proclaimed. For a time the experiment promised success. After the failure of the Frankfurt Convention, the Duke was among those sovereigns who joined the union of German States under the Presidency of the King of Prussia. This union was soon dissolved, and in 1850 the Duke joined the Austrian party, and voted with it in the Diet. The liberal constitution was annulled in November, 1851, and on September 20, 1850, after the war which broke up the old German Union, a new birth to the North German Confederation, the State was joined to Prussia by royal decree. The Prussians took possession October 8 of the same year.

The Duke received his death wound in the thickest part of the woods which skirt the road from Rheims to Chalons. A sudden double volley of musketry from an ambuscade of sharpshooters surprised the party, and the third carriage containing the Duke and his staff was riddled with bullets. One aide-de-camp was instantly killed and another was mortally wounded. The Duke's wound was at first considered dangerous, but not mortal. He died, however, on the morning of the 25th of September. Another carriage containing the King was struck several times, but no one therein was hurt.

Richard Southwell Bourke, Earl of Mayo. A despatch from Bombay, India, announces the sudden death of the Governor-General and Viceroy, the Right Honorable Richard Southwell Bourke, Earl of Mayo in the peerage of Ireland; one of the best known and most brilliant peers in the public service of Great Britain. This illustrious personage was born in 1823, on the 21st of February, in the city of Dublin, and was the eldest son of Robert, the fifth earl, and Ann Charlotte, the daughter of the late John Jervis. He was educated in his native city at Trinity College, and graduated as Master of Arts in 1844. In August, 1845, he was elected a member of the House of Commons from the county of Kildare by the conservative party. In 1852 he was elected from Coleraine, and in 1857 from Cockerworth. He represented this last until his succession to the earldom on the death of his father in 1867. During this time he was known as Lord Naas, and he distinguished himself greatly as a member of the House. In 1859, during the first administration of Lord Derby, Lord Naas was appointed Chief Secretary for Ireland, and at about the same time was also made a Privy Councillor. He held the Irish secretaryship during the second administration of Lord Derby, and during the last administration held it for a third time, with the additional honor of a seat in the British Cabinet added. After becoming Earl of Mayo, he was appointed, in August, 1869, Mr. Disraeli, then Prime Minister, Governor-General of India. His stand in politics, which made him to be held in favor by both parties, retained him in this princely position up to the time of his death, even after the accession to power of Gladstone and the Liberal Ministry. It is said that it would have been better for his private purse if he had been appointed, for in the entertainment which he saw fit to extend to the Duke of Edinburgh on his recent visit to Hindoostan, he far exceeded the limits of the magnificent income which England gives her imperial representative in India. The Earl was also during his lifetime a justice of the peace, a deputy lieutenant for the county of Kildare, and a Knight of St. Patrick. His eldest son, Dermott Robert Wynham, Lord Naas, succeeds him in the peerage and becomes Earl of Mayo. This peerage, however, being in Ireland, does not bring with it the right to a seat in the British House of Lords. The death of the late Earl leaves open to Mr. Gladstone's gift the Governor-Generalship of India, one of the most splendid prizes which can be conferred by the Prime Minister.

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

The City Amusements. At the Walnut Miss Lucille Western will commence the second week of her engagement this evening by appearing as "Lady Isabel" and "Madame Vine" in the drama of "East Lynne."

At the Chesnut the Lizard combination will appear this evening under the management of Mr. E. L. Davenport. The performance will consist of the comedy of "Time Tries All," the Lizard sketches, and the comedietta of "Who Speaks First?"

The Lizards will be succeeded by Janaschek, who will appear in English tragedy, and about November 1 Mr. Davenport will commence his regular season with as good a stock company as it is possible to collect. Mr. Davenport stands at the head of his profession as an actor, and in a very wide range of characters he has no superior on the American stage. That he will make an earnest effort to build up a first-class reputation for the Chesnut we sincerely believe, and in doing so he will be entitled to the hearty support of all lovers of dramatic art.

At the Arch the comedy by Lester Wallace, entitled "Central Park; or, the House with Two Doors," will be repeated this and every other evening until further notice.

At the Eleventh Street Opera House Mr. James G. Russell, the celebrated baritone, will make his first appearance this evening. Also Mons. Pim, the wonderful three-legged man. A new burlesque, entitled "Mrs. Jinks of Madison Square," will be produced, with other attractions.

At the Arch Street Opera House the following novelties will be produced this evening:—"Wanted, a Nurse; A Squire for a Day; and a new burlesque entitled "Yeast Lynne; or, the Loafman."

At the American a variety of attractive features will be presented this evening.

(COMMUNICATED.)

Hon. William M. Bunn. We have a young and energetic man, who, from his department and sociability, commands the respect of all his associates, and they are legion. When our country, in the dark hour of her trial, called for aid, Mr. Bunn was among the first to respond, and did his whole duty, while many of those who are now endeavoring to disparage his chances for election to the office for which he has been fairly nominated, were far in the rear, deeply moved at the inactivity it was at times necessary for the army to exhibit, and wondering why the noble army did not "move to the front!" How soon when the danger is over, do these citizens forget the risks the soldier incurred on the battle-field, and speak of the claims of the citizen to be rewarded? You have ever advocated the soldier for promotion in the civic line as well as the military, and have pursued such a consistent course in this respect that you have trod rather roughly on the toes of some who have proudly announced that the soldier was "played out." Advocating, then, as you always have, the claims of those who have risked their lives in their country's defense, I know you will not neglect our candidate for Register of Wills, who is as strong a nominee as the Republican party could have made.

A FRIEND OF THE SOLDIER.

To the Voters of the Fifth Congressional District.

As my political opponents are assiduously endeavoring to class me with the "Free Traders," I deem it proper to define my position on the tariff question, that all who may favor me with their support may be understandingly.

At this time and in our country the comparative merit of free trade and the protective policy is not a debatable question. With our great national debt taxing the energies of the nation to its utmost capacity, with the necessity of raising more than $300,000,000 annually, free trade is in the nature of things impossible. The raising of revenue by duties on imports is more economical and less exposed to fraud, and less harassing to the citizen than the direct tax. He may in some degree purchase, or he may not purchase, the taxed commodity; he is only compelled to pay the tax when it is imposed upon the actual necessities of life; he may refuse to pay the tax on luxuries if he chooses.

I would favor lower duties, or the free admission of tea, coffee, spices, dye-stuffs, etc., not produced by us and in universal use, and retain duties for protection and revenue on articles we can and do produce, and the home product of which is a benefit to the people.

I elected to the Forty-second Congress I pledge myself to advocate and vote for such tariff for revenue upon foreign imports as will afford proper protection to domestic manufacturers, and as well, without impairing the revenue, impose the least burden upon the masses of the people, and promote and encourage the great industrial interests of the country.

JOHN R. READING, SOMERTON, SEP. 23, 1870.

CITY ITEMS.

FALL OVERCOATS.—A fine assortment, very comfortable in place of the linen. Duster, for traveling at this season. Overcoats moderate.

Half-way between BENNETT & CO., TOWER HALL, No. 515 MARKET STREET.

DISSIPATION AND LATE HOURS.—After the festive night comes the miserable next morning, with its headache, its qualms, its gloomy reflections. Business must be attended to; but neither mind nor body is fit for business. What is to be done? How are the energies of the system to be worked up, and its reserves of vitality brought out? How is the clouded brain to be cleared?—the languid and relaxed frame braced up for action? Under such circumstances a single wine-glassful of PLANTATION BITTERS will bring about an immediate and beneficial change, and a healthful glow will be diffused through the whole organization by the tonic operation of this wholesome cordial.

CARL GAERTNER'S NATIONAL CONSERVATORY OF MUSIC, 11 E. corner TENTH and WALNUT Streets, is now open for the Fourth season for the reception of pupils. Instruction is given by a staff of the best Professors in the city in the following branches:

Vocal Music, Piano, Violin, Viola, Violoncello, Contrabass, Theory of Harmony, Grand Organ (or Church Organ), Chancel Organ, Metatone, Flute, Clarinet, Oboe, Bassoon, Horn, Cornet, Trombone, Harp, Guitar, etc., and in the Italian, German, French, and Spanish Languages.

For particulars see circulars to be had at the Office of the Conservatory and in the Music Stores. The Director of the Conservatory takes this opportunity to express his sincere gratification at the success which has attended his efforts to establish this institution in Philadelphia on a permanent basis and with the prospect of continued prosperity.

He would likewise declare his gratitude to the many kind friends among the students and elsewhere, whose interest in the cause of thorough instruction in the art and science of music has assisted so materially in bringing the Conservatory to its present state of usefulness.

He can only promise in return that his devotion to the object of raising the institution under his care to a high place among the great Music Schools of the world, should be the result of the controlling influence at the Conservatory.
