NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Carrespondent, NEW YORK, Oct. 18, 1870.

Titled Swindling. The fancy which Americans have for being swindled out of house and home by titled foreigners is one of the most interesting intellectual phenomena of the age. If a ragamuffin steals my purse or my coat, I may properly apprehen thim (if he gives me a chance), have him lock d up in a station house over night, and appear against him next morning at the Tombs Police Court. After having seen that be is sent to the Island for six months I retire to my hom aglow with the feeling of having one my duty to myself and with having supported the cause of intice and helped to protect society. I have no compassion for the ragamutlin and I have a considerable access of admiration for myself. I am a pillar in the community, and have shown a good deal of heroism and selfdenial in taking such strong measures to recover my property. If, however, my reputation or my private fortune is put in peril by some titled swindler who commits his forgeries and petty largenies trusting to the glamour of a dazzling personal address, I submit to the imposition with a tolerably good grace and take no pa us to punish the scoundrel. Such is my charning inconsistency as an American. If I were not an American, I should not so easily fall a dupe. Over and over again we discover instance of this in the gullibility of fashionable 1 up is and mammas, who are on the lookout for counts, dukes, and princes for their dan ters. A few of the instances float into view in the columns of the newspaper: the mafority are lost sight of in consequence of the natu d repugnance of the principal parties to having their names figure in a police court. A spec'men of the frailty that I refer to has recently inken place in this city, and has been illustrated in the person of a foreign "count," who admired an article of jewelry which a fashionable young lady was wearing. The fashionable young lady, the better to gratify the "count's" curiosity, detached the jewel from her person and presented it to him, but not exactly in the manner of "Claude Melnotte" when making away with "Beauseant's" diamond spuff-box and "Glavis" diamond ring. She was not quite so far gone as that. Her intention was simply to allow the foreign nobleman a nearer inspection. The foreign novieman accordingly inspected and, having done so, caused the jewel to vanish by some artful prestidigitatorial touch, and continued the conversation in apparent oblivious-

The Universalist *ssociation. Yesterday the Unitarians, to-day the Universalists. I have not much to say about them, but the little that I have to say is rather interesting to those who watch the development of religious ideas, and are fond of finding in that development a reason for believing that all religions are of use in this world, and that all work together in the education of humanity. There is, then, in this city an association known as the Young Men's Universalist Association of New York. As yet its years are young, and its influence is not very profound. Its rooms are in Broadway somewhere among the Thirtieth streets. Its formation was, I believe, the result of the refusal of the Young Men's Christian Association to receive Universalists into membership. Tae Christian Association was so certain that it had got hold of the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, religiously speaking. that it could afford to shut down upon young men who ventured to believe that erring humanity was vouchsafed another chance in the other world. And so the present association was formed -which, by-the-by, does not presume to vie with the older and more firmly-established organizad v. Still it has taken a good start. and thing - bear a healthy look and promise to develop favorably. In process of time it is pretty certain that the Universalist Association will vie with the older society in everything calculated to provide that wretched young man from the country with the comforts of a home. When that young man gets those comforts I hope he will let me know.

ness of having the jewel about him. The young lady at length ventured to remind the count that he had not returned the jewel. He blandly insisted that he had. Unconvinced, but too well bred to remonstrate, the young lady kept silent, but "told her father" the instant that the "count," like "Alfred Jingle," escaped.

The count was never seen again. The jewel turned up in a jewelry store where it had been sold for some five or six hundred dollars.

Madame Seebach. Since my first references to her, some weeks ago (when her first appearance was nightly expected), I have not said much about Madame Seebach, simply because I did not wish to burden my correspondence with anything approaching to monotony. And yet justice compels me to say-and it ought to compel the readers of THE TELEGRAPH to hear with hearts willing to be convinced-that Madame Seebach is, in some respects, one of the greatest actresses that ever visited America. She is a trifle passee. Her published lives unblushingly announce her as thirty-three. Add ten years and you come nearer the truth. Still she makes up with such art as to seem remarkably young. She is full of light and sweetness, and has made a great success among the German population, and, to some extent, among the fashionable circles in this city. Her best roles are "Jane Eyre," "Marguerite," and "Mary Stuart." She excels in the expression of supreme joy and supreme agony. * I presume in time she will play in ALI BABA. Philadelphia.

THE RESULT IN PENNSYLVANIA.

From the N. Y. World. For so careful and shrewd a politician, Senator Cameron made a great mistake on the subject of the election when he telegraphed the President that "Pennsylvania is right side up." In the light of the official returns we see that his side and that of Grant were never down so low in that great

The successes which have been obtained there by the Democratic party this fall are the more remarkable from the fact that in the present campaign they were almost without organization and discipline. There seems to have been no efficient central committee, and each candidate made the contest on his own account. Some of the election returns are full of interest. In the Sixteenth district B. F. Meyers, free-trade Democrat, succeeds John Cessna, the most unscruptlous member of that notorions Committee of Elections by whose action so many Democrats have of late years lost the seats to which the people had elected them. In a spirited contest on a direct issue of free trade and protection, the official majority sgainst Cessna in that formerly Republican district is thirteen votes; and this notwithstanding the fact that Cessna's forces were increased by about a thousand negro R. Milton Speer, Democrat, is elected over

Daniel J. Morrell in the Seventeenth district, composed of the iron counties of the Juniata Valley, by a majority of eleven votes. Mr. Morrell is well known as one of the members of the Cambria Iron Cempany at Johnstown, Pa., and as a part owner of the Bessemer steel patent. His votes in Congress in favor of his own selfish interests were directly challenged in the contest, and he was defeated on that issue. His majority two years ago was 1004. The overthow of this member of the tariff ring will do much to break down its power.

Henry Sherwood, Democrat, defeats Wm. H. Armstrong in the Eighteenth district by twenty-two votes on the official count. This is a great victory. In 1868 Armstrong was sent to Congress by a majority of 2028 votes. His bad record in Congress in favor of the tariff monopolists, the land-jobbers, and other combinations to defraud and oppress the people, has caused this great revulsion in public sentiment. Two counties of this Pennsylvania district lie along the Southern New York line, and the same state of opinion on political questions exists on both sides of the border. In Chemung, Steuben, and Alleghany counties results similar to that in Potter and McKean counties may be anticipated in November.

In the three Pennsylvania Congressional districts above mentioned the aggregate majorities of all three Democratic candidates elected sum up only forty-six votes; and already notice has been given that the seats of two them will-be contested. This has been the radical game of late years. When defeated by the people they have carried their cases before a partisan committee of elections in Congress, and have corruptly secured a fraudulent reversal of the popular decree. But the people will not patiently witness the renewal of such outrages in the next Congress Gilfillan, who went to Congress in 1868 with a majority of 1812 votes, is defeated by Samuel Griffith, Democrat, in the Twentieth district; and Donley, in the Twenty-fourth district, finds his majority of 1123 completely reversed, and Captain William McClelland, a Democrat, elected over him by a majority of nearly seven hundred. The same causes which operated against Cessna, Morrell, and Armstrong worked with double force against these radical members in the extreme western portion of the State.

Henry D. Foster succeeds John Covode in the Forty-second Congress from the Twentyfirst district. He was defrauded of his seat in the present Congress by the Committee of Elections, but he is now returned by a majority of 700-a vote so decisive that no committee of Congress will dare to interfere with this verdict of the people. Covode himself did not risk a contest, and Andrew Stewart, an octogenarian, familiarly known in Pennsylvania politics as "Tariff Andy," was thrust forward to meet defeat at the hands of a freetrade Democrat. Mr. Foster has already served in Congress, and is an able and experienced leader.

In the strong Democratic district of Luzerne and Susquebanna a radical is elected to Congress by apathy and divisions in the Democratic party. In the districts in which we have recorded the success of the Democrats, they won by squarely facing the radicals on their tariff record in the present and former Congresses. But in Luzerne the canvass was timidly and coldly conducted against the monopolists, and defeat is the consequence. The same may be said of the Lebanon and Schuylkill districts, in which an energetic campaign on the true issues would ve secured a Democratic triumph.

Pennsylvania has done nobly. There is a net gain of five Democrats for the Fortysecond Congress, making a change of ten votes in that body. Now for New York. Let us make sure that our success is as great in proportion and as creditable to us as that which has been achieved by our Pennsylvania

At an early day we shall analyze the successes which have been obtained in Indiana and Ohio. We have taken up Pennsylvania first, because the result in that State is so complete an answer to the timid counsels of those who would have the Democratic party dissemble its convictions on the doctrine of free trade for the sake of winning Pennsylvania votes. This election shows that even in Pennsylvania a manly stand on free-trade ground is what insures the support of the Democratic masses.

- A Mr. J. K. Fisher, who recently returned to San Francisco from Lower California, says that the gold mines of San Rafael Vailey are very rich, and that, to his certain knowledge, one of the proprietors had been in the habit of pounding out from one to three pounds of the precious metal daily.

-St. Louis was recently excited in consequence of a report that a native of New Orleans, resident in that city, had died of yellow fever. On investigation it was found that death had occurred from congestive intermittent fever. which gives a yellowish hue to the skin.
