NEW-YORKISMS.

From Our Own Correspondent.

NEW YORK, Oct. 19, 1870. "Tom Brown."

"Tom Brown"-in other words, Mr. Thomas Hughes, anthor of "Tom Brown's School Days" -is on Friday evening to deliver a lecture in this city. It is the only lecture he will have delivered in New York during his entire visit to this country. The appearance will take place at Cooper Institute, and the subject treated of is "Work and Wealth." It has been stated that on Saturday he sails for England, but his friends in this country will scarcely believe this rumor to be the truth. His visit to the United States has been characterized by remarkable quietness. He has kept at bay the aggressive nterviewer: he has defied the Jenkins who would have deified him: and he has put into practical operation the principle that an Euglishman's house (including cooms at hotels) is his castle. Even the New York Bohemians have been able to make nothing of him whatever. Such newspaper men as have seen him are the celebrated men, only, of the press of New York and other cities. And yet the corner which he fills in thousands of hearts all over the Union is so large as adequately to account for the nuusual anxiety there is to hear him. Cooper Institute will be througed by such numbers as are seldom convened in any one building. Whatever he was to lecture on he would be sure to draw an immeuse audience, for the people are going not so much to hear the lecture as to see the man. They want to grow familiar with the countenance of the man who made them familiar with Tom Brown's. I think f Mr. Hughes had announced that he intended to give a series of readings from the two books through which he first became known to America, his success would have been at any rate a great pecuniary one.

"Mrs. General Anderson."

If Mrs. General Anderson ever travels your way, look out for her-that is, if you can identify, under the new alias she will have chosen, the audacious female who, under that name, has lately been creating such havor here among hotel-keepers and real-estate agents. This fascinating fraud in the grenadine dress and the plaid shawl appears to have been almost ubiquitous, to have practised etiquette upon principles of duplicity, and to have endeavored to rain ruin upon innocent heads wherever and whenever she thought she discovered opportunity. She is a sort of "Miss Gwilt," with a past career crammed with guilty secrets and a future that she probably intends to pack equally full of erime. The latest story told about her is that several months ago, while residing at an uptown hotel, and paying her board and lodging no one knows how, she became intimate with the wife of the hotel proprietor, and through that lady obtained an introduction to a fashionable milliner. Soon after this she obtained, by some mysterious means, the use of a handsome team, and, invested with the gorgeous prestige which the charlot conferred upon her, drove up to the milliner's door, entered the silk-and-satin teeming apartments, and proceeded to order an extensive and expensive wardrobe. She ordered dresses which, when completed, would have cost nearly fifteen hundred dollars, and by her eloquent and artistic gab managed to convince the milliner, for the time being, that it was all right. After the loquacious impostor had gone, the fashionable milliner took a good square "think," the result of which was a determination to fill a part of the order and then to insist upon payment before the rest of the order was complied with. Thanks to this business way of conducting the matter, the fashionable milliner saved her bagon. I mean to say that she intercepted the approaching hand of ruln. Mrs. General Anderson had no money, and so the dresses were taken back by the boy who had been sent with them.

"O woman! in our hours of ease, You are the very deuce to please; But when dressmakers want what's due, An interesting dead-beat you!" I quote from memory, but I believe that this retains the spirit of the original.

L'quering Up.

There is no objection to a man's drowning his sorrows in the intoxicating bowl so long as he don't get drunk under the operation, and so long as the bowl is paid for. I feel sorry for McFarland-the harmless and gentle maniac who killed Kichardson-but I still cling to the opinion that when a man carries about him a bundle of papers relating to the divorce he is trying to get from his wife, he ought to take the bowl behind the door or some other convenient place, and get drunk as quietly and undemonstratively as possible. Mr. McFarland has not done this. Yesterday he was descried on Thirtieth street, near Wood's Museum, in such a condition as was but little calculated to strengthen sympathy with him against the present Mrs. Richardson. Why should people who are hopelessly unhappy so often to "liquor-up" under their affliction? Unanswerable question! What passion ever grew more shallow because the potations became deep? It is prosaically true that absinthe makes the heart grow fonder. and the man who is in love grows tearful over his cups. If report is to be believed, McFarland still seems to think he is deeply injured. If he chooses to get tight he is probably no worse than other men are who love drink; only the circumstances of his position render it peculiarly unfortunate that he should do so in a public mapper, and under such conditions and with such accompaniments as render it impossible for decent and unprejudiced people to retain a great deal of sympathy for him. ALI BABA. MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

—A stage struck damsel at Rochester recently sent a note to Miss Maggie Mitchell, asking her for a position in her troupe. An idea of her ability may be formed from the following:— "the People around Where i live Say i have a good voice if von think What I say is follish send some one Whith a Note if Possible or send some one and tell me Wer you Board at all Events let me here someting from You."

A CROSS HUSBAND, -Mrs. Smith-The fact is, my husband is becoming so outrageously cross and nervous that there is no living with him. He pretends one day that he has got the dyspepsia; the next day liver complaint; the next is sick, with no appetice-declares that there is nothing on the table fit to eat, and so on. It is all nonsense, and nothing but his confounded ugliness. From the very bottom of my heart, I believe he wants to worry me to Lady Friend-Mrs, Smith, I think you are wrong. No woman has a kinder or more indulgent husband than you. I must confess that I have noticed a change in Mr. Smith; but am inclined to bhink that all he wants is a tonic; and if I were you, I would not be a day without PLANTATION BITTERS in the house. Make him take them moderately three times a day, and in a short time I think you will see a change. My experience is that Plantation Bitters is one of the best and most delicious tonics in the world; and that for nervousness, loss of appetite, dyspensia, and all kindred complaints, there is nothing so good.

[CORRESPONDENCE.]

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 19, 1870. A. M. GREENE, SUPERINTENDENT UNION FIRE EXTINGUISHER COMPANY, -Dear Sir: -We had a fire in our building, occupied as a cotton factory, at Twenty-third and Filbert streets, last evening, about half-past 5 o'clock, and had occasion to use one of the Union Fire Extinguishers, which did its work to our satisfaction. The fire occurred in the weaving-room, where cotton goods were being manufactured, and had burned the contents of four looms before the Extinguisher was brought into use. f feel confident that our place would have been burned cut but for the Extinguisher. Yours truly.
