The Finishing Touches to this Structure. The Flaishing Teuches to this Structure. If The repairs on this building are being rapidly pushed forward to completion, and it is expected that in a few weeks the structure will be again ready for occupancy. The recent fire entirely wrecked the interior of the building, leaving nothing remaining but the outside and division walls. In drawing up the plans for the rebuilding of the edifice, the archi-tect made many material changes, both in the ex-terior and in the interior. Before the configration the front of the building had an unprepossessing ap-pearance, by reason of the low flat roof, long nar-row windows, with heavy, square-top dressings, and the presence of a large square tower, built of brick. row windows, with heavy, square-top dressings, and the presence of a large square tower, built of brick, and supported by four columns. This has been remedied by covering the entire structure with a handsome high French root, diminishing the length of the windows and arching them, and the strengthening of the supporting columns of the tower (a portion of which has been removed.) By using the lofty Mansard roof the architect also obtained a greater elevation for the ceiling of the main room. The room formerly, by reason of the low root, only had an elevation of twenty-six fact. By the present plan it will have a height of the low present plan it will have a height of forty-two feet. The first story is constructed after the old plan. The stairway and general arrange-ments are likewise modelled after the same plan. The main room will be eighty-seven by one hundred and thirty-two feet. In the old structure a colonand thirty-two rect. In the out staticture a coon-nade surrounded the statiway, but at present the room is entirely clear. The celling, which is of the style known as the coved, will be enriched with heavy panelings, handsomely freecoed, comprising emblamatic designs, such as commerce, agriculture. emphaintics and the arms of the leading commercial cities of the Union. The room will be furnished with a rostram, tables for members to display samples, test or mixing tables, etc. The entire building is under cover, and a large force of workmen are busy putting the finishing touches upon the interior.

TOURS, Oct. 24 .- Nothing official has yet been received from the armies around Orleans. It is rumored, however, that a battle is imminent there. The French will make an attempt to retake the place.

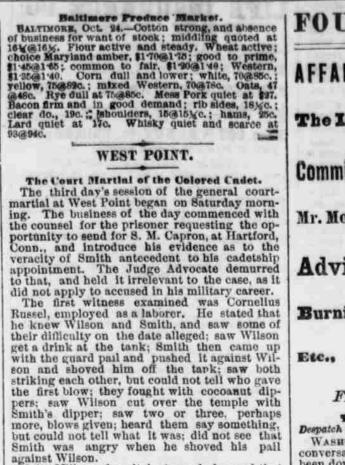

England and the Peace Movement.

Fears are entertained here concerning the sudden decision of England to mediate between France and Prussia. Some partles imagine that it is a plot to mid in the dethronement of the Bonapartists, and others seem to acquire confidence in the eagerness of Great Britain to bring about a peace. It has been generally considered that England is willing to work more for the interests of Prussia than those of France, and the significance of her movement is apparent now that the difficulties in taking Paris have been demonstrated.

Besides this, England is also aware that the large French armies just organized are quite prepared to [act on the offensive; that the bad season is at hand, and the difficulty of obtaining food for the Germans is rapidly increasing, in consequence, and that General Trochu is preparing a series of formidable sorties. The journals and people who take notice of this phase of affairs accord England no credit for her tardy action.

It is assured here that the Paris Government will not cede an inch of territory nor pay a franc of indemnity, and it is feared the struggle will have to go on to the bitter end unless the conditions prescribed by Prussia are very moderate.

A Foolish Story. The Progres du Nord (newspaper) relates a story of the massacre of four thousand Mobiles. R

John Miller, a hospital steward, deposed that at about 6 o'clock P. M., August 20, he dressed the wound of Cadet Wilson at the hospital, and described the wound; it was over the left temple, and might have been dangerous; there had been a great deal of hemorrhage; patient, who seemed excited, was put to bed; the wound healed rapidly. The Judge Advocate then closed the testimony on the first charge and specification and opened the second, which is as follows:-

Charge II .- Conduct unbecoming an officer and a Charge II.—Conduct unbecoming an officer and a gentleman, in violation of paragraph 127 of the United States Army regulations, Military Academy. Specification.—In fthis, that Cadet J. W. Smith, having been reported, on the 18th of August, 1870, for replying to "file closer" in a nighty disrespectful manner at drill, P. M., after having been spoken to in the line of duty, did submit to the commandant a written explanation therefor, stating, "I spoke to no "file closer' during the drill, nor did Cadet Corporal Beacom speak to me during drill at any time," which statement was faise. statement was false, Cadet Edgar S. Beacom, the "file closer" of the date mentioned, corroborated the truth of the allegations in the specification, with a mention of incidents; that was the only instance where he had ever reported accused.

Cadet William S. Davies testified to the main facts in the proceeding, and that Smith replied to "file closer" in an audible but not loud tone of voice. Cadet B. Dyer, Jr., told nearly the same story. Cadet Augustus C. Tyler did the same; Smith turned his head to reply to "file closer," but witness could not hear what that reply was.

The rendition of testimony was exceedingly slow, careful, and deliberate, which made the proceedings correspondingly tedlous. But upon the whole a military court presents many pleasing features, in some respects superior to our civil courts. For instance, all the witnesses as well as members, by professional discipline, are subdued into habits of exactness, order, and

The rumor sent hence last night that Postmaster-General Creswell would be sent to England in case Senator Morton refused does not seem to be well founded. Last season Miss Logan was one of the most popular of the lecturers presented by Mr. Pugh, and a lively and entertaining performance may be expected from her this evening.

On Wednesday Mis. F. W. Lander will read Shakespeare's Midsummer Night's Dream, with an orchestral accompaniment and a chorus, who will give Mendelssohn's music.

FIREMEN'S FIGHT .- Yesterday afternoon the adherents of two rival fire companies became engaged in an altercation at Passyunk Road and German an altercation at rassyunk Road and German streets. From words they came to blows, and finally blackjacks and pistols were ireely used. The fight lasted for nearly an hour and some of the cars on the Fifth and Sixth street line were detained in con-secuence, so great was the crowd congregated. As customary, the police appeared on the ground after the disturbance was over. No arrests were made.

SUSPICION OF LARCENY.-A lad named James O'Brian was arrested yesterday on suspicion of the larceny of sundry articles from a store at Sixth and Commerce streets. It appears that the place was broken into by a number of boys, and suspicion pointed to O'Brian from the fact that he was seen in the neighborhood of the store with a duster and a ball of twine in his possession. The accused was held for a hearing at the Central Station this after-neon.

THE ACCIDENTAL SHOOTING CASE.—At noon to-day the Coroner held an inquest upon the body of the boy Edward Powell, who was shot on Front street, below Girard avenue, on last Monday. The testimony showed that some twenty shots were fired at an infuriated steer, one of which struck the lad in the right eye. The jury rendered a verdict that the deceased came to his death from a gunshot wound received at the hands of some person unknown.

DISORDERLY CHARACTER.-Owen Dugan is the name of an individual who has a particular liking for assaulting policemen. Yesterday Owen was drunk and disorderly on Main street, near Mechanic, Manayunk. Officer Bellasty ordered him away, whereupon he turned on the officer and knocked him down. Owen was finally taken to the lock-up, where after a hearing before Alderman Deahn, he was hold to hall to answer. was held to bail to answer.
