MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC. 'M. P." at the Arch. The first performance of M. P., the new comedy by the author of Ours, Caste, School, and other pieces that have obtained popularity, attracted a good audience to the Arch last evening. M. P. signifies Member of Parliament, and the main incidents are connected with the intrigues for the election of rival candidates, one of whom is the highly honorable but excessively inane fashionable British gentleman, or rather "swell," of the period, and the Other the conventional "self-made man," with a dash of real character in him, for which, however, we be teve that Mr. Craig, who sustained the part last evening, is entitled to more credit than the author. The subject is one that requires for its most effective delineation a more vigorous pen than that commonly wielded by Mr. Robertson, and while there is better writing in M. P. than in anything that Bouckault has lately done, it is not as strong a piece as Boucienult would have turned out if he had undertaken to manipulate the same theme. The chief characteristic of Robertson's plays are a neatly managed plot, neatly arranged situations, and a neat dialogue that is often animated and really witty, and not seldom vapld and wearisome in the extreme. All of these characteristics we find in M. P., the opening of which introduces to us some of the more refined male personages, whose drawling conversation has anything but an enlivening effect. The appearance of some of the ladies and some of the more vulgar male personages upon the scene brightens up the | performance, and by the time the curtain drops upon the first act the audience is impressed with the idea that there may be really some good entertainment in the piece. Mr. Mackay and Mr. Hill act the parts of "Dunscombe Dunscombe, Esq." and "Piers Talbot" with nice discrimination, but it would really be an improvement if they would drop the peculiar drawl which, although characteristic of the style of personages they represent, is insufferably wearisome. The staple of the plot relates to the intrigues and bribery incident to a British election, and here the dramatic talent of the author is shown to the best advantage, as it is in the love stories that are introduced as accessories to the main theme. Much of the dialogue is exceedingly well written, and in some of the scenes there is a genuine humor such as is not often seen in the play-writing of the present day. All the parts last evening were well sustained, but Mr. Craig rather carried off the honors with his very amusing personation of the "self-made man" "Isaac Skoome," unless, indeed, Mrs. Drew is entitled to share them with him for her vivacious and humorous acting of the part of "Cecelia Dunscombe." "Ernant" at the Chesnut.

We are happy in the belief that the blonde burlesque business is literally on its last legs, for while the travesty of Ernani, which was produced at the Chesnut last evening by the Lisa Weber troupe, is no worse than some burlesques we have been called upon to witness since the invasion of the blondes, the audience found it very hard to extract much amusement from it, and the well-worn jokes and doubles entengres that a few seasons ago would set a theatre in a roar fell very flat indeed. It is possible that an intelligent public, auxious to enjoy a novel sensation, may, for a time, find entertainment in such performances as the blonde burlesquers afford, but it is not in human nature to endure more than a certain amount of utterly idiotic attempts at fun. indecent allusions, and exhibitions of the female figure. Miss Lisa Weber in her performance last night gave her audience most of the old Lydia Thompson business that disgusted decent people in this city last season, and it is a gratifying indication of an improved taste in our theatre-goers that it failed to excite much enthusiasm; and it will be a matter for sincere gratification if such performances can in future be banished to concert halls and variety theatres, where they belong, and leave the legitimate boards to the class of entertainments that the more judicious portion of the public desire to see upon them.

Mr. J. S. Clarke as "Heary Dove." Mr. J. S. Clarke commenced the second week of his engagement at the Walnut last evening to a house crowded in every corner with an audience bent upon enjoying a couple of hours of hearty laughter. Buckstone's farcical play of Married Lafe is an abundantly amusing piece of itself, but Mr. Clarke gave it an additional attraction by his very funny personation of "Henry Dove," Mr. Clarke is a genuine farce actor, and in such a character as "Henry Dove" he has excellent opportunities to give his peculiar talents full play. His performance last evening was in an eminent degree mirth-inspiring, and was highly enjoyed by all who witnessed it. by all who witnessed it.

The City Amusements.

At the Walnut Mr. J. S. Clarke will appear this evening as "Henry Dove" in Married Life, and as "Timothy Toodles." AT THE ARCH the new comedy entitled M. P. will be repeated this evening.

AT THE CHESNUT the burlesque of Ernani will be Performed this evening.

At the American a variety entertainment will be given this evening.

AT THE ELEVENTH STREET OPERA HOUSE an attractive programme of minstrelsy will be pre-sented this evening. AT THE ARCH STREET OPERA HOUSE an interesting variety of Ethlopian comicalities is announced for

HAVE YOU HEARD ABOUT THIS? Owing to the high price of meats of all kinds, a company has been organized to manufacture pork out of pig iron. Whatever doubts may arise in regard to the success of this novel enterprise, there can be none concerning the superiority of the Honeybrook Lehigh Coal sold by J. C. HANCOCK, at the northwest corner of Ninth and Master streets. This superb vein of anthracite maintains the high reputation it gained when first introduced to our market. It is just the fuel that every house-keeper should use, and when prepared under HAN-COCK'S supervision is entirely free from dust or slate. Test it for yourselves.

FRENCH DRESS FABRICS.

Although both Great Britain and Germany furnish this country with a very large amount of Dress Textures, nearly all the finest and most fashionable are of French manufacture, and hence a great scarcity of French goods, owing to the war, was anticipated early in the season. All the French goods that can possibly reach us this season are now here, and after a careful examination of the market we find that although the BULK is not quite so small as we expected, yet, to a considerable extent, it is made up of large INDISCRIMI-NATE purchases of UNRELIABLE MAKES, which would not have found a market here had it not been for the anticipated deficiency. This is more particularly the case in the article of BLACK SILKS. We, therefore, advise particular care to purchasers in the selection of these goods. In Fine Worsted and Woollen Dress Goods there will be a DECIDED SCARCITY, and we would invite an early examination of our stock while it is replete in the most recherche textures we have ever imported, and CAN-NOT BE DUPLICATED.

Our BLACK SILH STOCK contains nothing but the most CELEBRATED and RELIA-BLE of Lyons makes.
