NUTTING.

The Expedition of the School Children-Thou-sands at Fairmount Park. The weather to day was all that could be wished by the most fastidious for the nutting expedition by the most institutions for the mutting expendition by the pupils of the public schools of the city. How-ever, the number in attendance was by no means so large as could have been expected had the atmo-sphere of yesterday been more agreeable. Still, there was a vast number present at various locgities in the New Park, all of whom, at noon, we recompting the mode in the various locgities in the New Park, all of whom, at noon, localities in the New Park, all of whom, at noon, were enjoying themselves in a way only understood by children. During the morning, several thousand spectators repaired to the Park, and many of them took part in the sports of the pupils. The rush this afternoon, it is expected, will be immense, and every precaution has been taken to prevent accidents. The following named localities were assigned to the school sectors.

The following named localities were assigned to the school sections :--Division 1.- Grounds west of the Connecting Rail-way, at the entrance of the Park, assigned to the First, Second, and Twenty-sixth Sections. Division 2.--At and about the Sweet Briar Man-ston-assigned to the Third, Fourth, Fifth, and Seventh Sections. Division 3.--Landsdowne-assigned to the Tenth, Browsenth and Servents Sections Division 8.—North of Belmont—assigned to the Sixth, Twenty-first, Twenty-second, Twenty-third, Twenty-fifth, and Twenty-eighth Sections and Nor-mai School. Members of the Park Guard were on hand at the various points of arrival, and conducted the chil-dren to the spots assigned them. At 11 o'clock there was a concert by the grammar and secondary schools of the Twenty-fourth and Twenty-seventh sections, at George's Hill: one at noon, at Sweet Briar, by the schools of the Third, Fourth, Fifth, Seventh, and Twenty-sixth sections, and at 1 o'clock, at Landsdowne, by the schools of the Bieventh, Thirteenth, Fourteenth, Fifteenth, and Sixteenth sections.

and Sixteenth sections. At 2 P. M. there was a dress-parade of the Girard College Cadets and pupils of the Northeast Gram-mar School at Belmont, and at '3 P. M. there will be a concert at Belmont, by the schools of the Sixth, Fighth, Ninth, Eighteenth, Nincteenth, and Twen-

A fine feature of the picnic is the encampment and military drill of the soldiers' orphans of the "Lincoln Institution." Through the kindness of Mr. Simon Gratz, of the committee of arrangements, an invitation had been extended to these boys. They left the institution, No. 308 Fouth Eleventh street, at 10 A. M., and marched up Eleventh to Walnut, up Walnut to Nineteenth, up Nineteenth to Ches-nut, and thence to the depot of the Pennsylvania Railroad, arrangements having been made with this road to transfer the lads to the Park and back.

The Mayor has given orders for a police force to be stationed at the Girard avenue bridge throughout the day, to require drivers and others having charge of cattle to take the lower or upper bridge in crossing to the city with animals. It is expected that the to the city with animals. It is expected that the shildren, with their parents and friends, will con-stantly throng Girard avenue bridge in going and re-turning to the scene of festivities, and should a drove of caitle get on the bridge a calamity might occur.

A BOARDING-HOUSE THIEF. —On Wednesday last a man giving the name of Foulrod engaged board at the residence of Mirs. Campoell, on Sellers street, Frankford, representing that he was a clerk in the employ of Hay & Ellis, lumber deslers. The stran-ger was shown to his room, where he remained about an hour. He subsequently left the honse, and soon after his departure it was discovered that he had carried off about $25 worth of clothing belong-ing to another boarder. The swindler is described as a man aged about $1 years 5 feet 7 inches in height, with black moustache and goatee. He was attired in a brown coat and dark pantaloons.

FRIGHTFUL DEATH.

A Man is Caught Between the Cogs of an Iron Cutting Machine and Horribly Man-

The Pittsburg Chronicle of last evening says: An accident occurred this morning in the iron mill of Messrs. McKnight & Co., on the Monongahela river, between Fifteenth and Sixteenth streets, Birmingham, by which a young German named Joseph Fritz met with a horrible death. It appears that Fritz was the assistant workman running a huge pair of steam shears for cutting iron, and undertook to grease the cams and cogs of the machine while in motion. In so doing a swab is used, the handle of which caught in his leather glove, worn as a protection to the hand, and the swab became fastened in the cogs, dragging the unfortunate man head-long among the machinery. In the attempt to save himself he seized the arm of the small flywheel which was revolving in an opposite direc tion to that of the cog-wheels, and he was thrown violently into the pit, with his face rest-ing on the shaft. The body was thrown into such a position as to force the belt from the drum, and the machinery was immediately stopped. This was the first intimation of the accident his fellow-workmen received. The alarm was immediately given, and the mangled body was taken out of the machinery with the greatest difficulty, it being necessary to take the cutting machine apart and remove the portions by means of a crane.

The body was removed to the warehouse on Sixteenth street, and acting Coroner Donaldson summoned to hold an inquest. Mr. Fleming, the engineer, and Mr Brashear, in charge of the machinery of the mill, testified to the facts given above, and stated that if there was any carelessness it was on the part of the deceased himself, as it was not customary, but very dangerous, to grease or swab the machinery while in motion. The jury retired, and in a few mo-ments rendered a verdict of accidental death.

Max Acquitted.

Court of Over and Terminer-Judges Ludlow and Paxson. The trial of Policeman Charles Max for the murder of James P. Walsh was concluded last evening. Judge Ludiow delivered the charge of the Court, and at 7 o'clock gave the case to the jury, who after deliberation of lifteen or twenty minutes returned a verdict of not guilty. The Simes Homicide. The case put on trial to-day was that of Michael Weish, a young man of nincteen or twenty, charged with taking the life of a youth named Samuel J. Simes, at a coal yard at Fifteenth and Willow streets, on the 24th of last month. A boy named James Donnelly was indicted with Welsh, but the Grand Jury ignored the indictment, and conse-quently Welsh is alone upon trial. He is represented by John O'Byrne, Ess. A jury was selected in ten minutes, no challenges being exercised by counsel en either side. The facts, as alleged by the Com-monwealth, are the following:— Simes was sitting in the coal yard when the de-fendant and Donnelly entered and engaged him in a fendant and Donnelly entered and engaged him in a conversation upon religion. They became excited, and Welsh offered to fight Simes, who retreated into and weish offered to agat sinks, who recreated into the office, pursued by Weish, and then into the street, where they seized each other. In the scuffle that ensued both fell to the ground, Simes' head striking the railroad track, death resulting room the shock. Of what grade of offense he is guilty if at all, the District Attorney said he would leave Jury to determine. The case is yet on trial. The Grand Jury Labor Under a Mistake. Several days ago the Grand Jury made a special presentment to the Court, setting forth that they found several persons lying in the County Prison without legal process for their incarceration, that is, without any charges having been preferred against them, and without the means of appealing to the Court through the ordinary channels, and therefore they asked the Court to take such speed action for their relief as they deemed proper. The referred specially to the colored men who were said to have been brought on from Baltimore at election time for fraudulent purposes. At the time Judge Ludlow emphatically said the Grand Jury had been misinformed or labored under a mistaken impression, and that the state of facts repre-sented did not and could not exist. He ordered an immediate investigation into the matter to be insti tuted and prosecuted, and this morning when the Grand Jury came in he showed them the certificate of the prison keeper that no person was conlined there who had not been regularly committed by a magistrate, and he produced the commitments under which the colored men from Baltimore were sent to prison in default of bail to await trial at the sent to prison in default of ball to await trial at the next term of the Court, and since the mention of the case by the Grand Jury, the District Attorney had caused indictments to be prepared against these men in advance of other cases having an equal claim upon his attention. He repeated that it was utterly impossible for a man to be unlawfully de-prived of his liberty for more than an hour, for the Court was always open to afford relief writs of habeas corpus, which were to be upon had for the mere asking. He was happy to say that in the only cases the Grand Jury had seen fit to make any mention, neither the prison keepers, the District Attorney, nor the Court had been in the least un-mindfal of their duties. A Grand Juror asked if an alderman had the right to commit to prison for the aonpayment of his costs, to which the Judge replied that in some cases he had and in others he had not. The Grand Jurors then retired.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 28 .- The statement re-

revolvers. revolvers. I started to make the trip alone, as the whole country was familiar to me, and I had travelled over the route a great many times. I overtook a party of seven pros-pectors on arriving at the line between Arizona and Sonors. It was on the 7th of July, and I found them camped near Poter Kitchen's ranch. They started out at 4 P. M., but I stayed and refreshed myself and horse by a couple of hours' more rest, promising to overtake them. As soon as the moon rose, I took the saddle and pro-ceeded on my journey. "On my arriving within six miles of Monu-ment Station my horse shied at an object just ahead in the road. I dismonnted, and found it to be the dead bodys of a man-one of the party that had preceded me. Within a hundred yards I found the dead bodies of the whole party and three of their horses. They had been stripped of their clothing. Things looked a little squally, and I hesitated some time before I decided to go forward. I pro-ceeded cautionely on foot, and within a as the moon rose, I took the saddle and proceeded cautiously on foot, and within a mile 1 found another body, which, upon exami-nation, proved to be that of Juan Innego, a Spanish merchant who resided at Altar, forty miles distant. He was probably on his way to Tucson. I knew him well when I was down there in 1852 and 1853. About twenty rods from there I found the body of a Spaniard, known as Cipriano, who lived in Magdalena. A little further on I came upon the bodies of three unknown men. There is no mistake about it, I was now thoroughly frightened. Death seemed to stare me in the face every way I turned.

"While considering what was best to be done I was startled by a voice, near at hand, com-manding me in loud English to halt. My Henry rifle was brought up for use, and I now made up my mind to fight to the death. I looked cautionsly in every direction, but was unable to discover the person who hailed me. Again I was hailed with, 'Who are you?' Still I could not discover where the voice came from, and knowing I stood at the mercy of the person speaking, I replied, 'A friend to all nations.' I was then commanded to drop my arms, and I did so. At this, a stalwart Mexican, whose name l afterward learned was Juan Montoia, strode out of the bush, and, taking my horse and arms, ordered me to follow him. He led me to a camp of Apache Indians only a few rods distant. where I was placed under guard. Montoia was where I was placed under guard. Montoia was the leader of the band, which was composed of fifty-six warriors, and his orders were all obeyed promptly. That night and the next day I talked to him in both Spanish and English, and tried to learn from him what was to be my fate: I told him I had served through the war as an officer in the United States army, and showed him my papers, and told him the object of my mission to

HOW THE APACHES WAGE WAR.

Twelve Men Killed by the Savages-One Taken Prisoner, and Released After a Long

Last July there was published in the Alla an account of the murder of a party of white men near Kitchen's ranch, in Arizona, by the Apache Indians. The names of the murdered men were published at the time, but now we are called upon to state that one of those supposed to have been killed is still alive and well. We give below the story of Mr. B. B. Smith, as related by that gentleman yesterday to one of the re-porters of the Altaporters of the Alla'-"I am a resident of St. Paul, Minnesota, where my family now reside. In 1862 I came to this coast, and for several years travelled a great deal through Arizona, California, and the northern part of Mexico. After leading the life of an adventurer for a few years I returned to St. Paul Leat Fabrance L came to this coast St. Paul. Last February I came to this coast again and went to San Diego, where I remained until April, and then started for Uriz, the capi-tal of Sonora. G. F. T. at Marseilles-His Speech-Bewilder-ment and Enthusiasm of the Freuch. Mr. Train had forwarded a telegram to the Prefect from Port Said, Egypt, then another from Malta, a third from Messina, and finally a fourth from the Strait of Bonifacio anaouncing his approach and his intention to address the people. The last of these, containing simply the words "L'Aigle de lAmerique ! Ca ira!" was posted on the bulletin-board of the Prefecture, and created an immense excite-ment. Therefore, when the steamer arrived and the news spread throughout the city that Mr. Train had reached the Hotel de la Mediterrance, the entire population thronged into the open square in front of that hotel. The American and Fenian flags already floated from the roof. The people nevertheless were obliged to wait nearly an hour, while Mr. Train arranged his costume, dictating meanwhile his speech (the same delivered 798 successive nights at home) to the secretary of the Prefect, who translated it into French sentences, which the orator, with his astonishing memory, needed to hear but a single time.

hear but a single time. When, finally, Mr. Train appeared on the balcony in a black dress-coat, spotted with golden fleurs-de-lis, a pink satin waistcoat buttoned with large diamonds, the harp of Erin in green enamel on his bosom, and kid gloves, the fingers of which were colored alternately red, white, and blue, representing both France and America, the sensation pro-duced was indescribable. His figure, relieved against the large blackboard which he always carries with him, glittered in the rays of the setting sun, and the piece of chalk upheld in his right hand was visible to the eyes of every spectator.

"Citoyangs!" he began, "Voyez moy! Je "lese ici! Entre vous! Moy, lee wigle de America! (Here the shouts and cries of the suisee ici ! l'America ! multitude interrupted the orator for several minutes, during which he was slightly prompted by the secretary.) Je suisse sni le ch-chimney -no, chemin !-- a le Blanc Maisoa, in 1873 ! -no, chemin!-a le Blanc Maisoa, in 1872! (Qu'est ce qu'il dit ?-What does be say? was whispered through the crowd. 'It is the Maison Blanche of Paul de Kock,' sald a professor of literature; 'he compliments the French authors.'' Renewed applause.) Je suisse Americarg! Feulang! Republicang! Il est Gambetta in France-Garibaldi in Italie -et moy in America! (Tremendous applause.) Maintenang, je voulay aidez vouze! La France roulay triamphe! Moy et Gaubetta La France roulay triamphe! Moy et Gaubetta et Garibaldi, avec les flint plerres pique, les ser-rures coque, et le poudre see! ("Pourquoi parle-t-il Anglais?" began to be murmured among the crowd.) En avant! Marchons among the crowd.) En avant: Marchons! Marchons, que-que-que. ("Qu'un sang impur abreuve nos sillons!" sang the crowd with great enthusiasm.) Je ay quatre mille-lots-no! what is it?-quatre mille terres pour maisons a Omaha, dans le centre de l'America-in lee grand Omaha! Il est assez beaucoup for quatre millions de dollars, vang millions de franc-et je voulay doubay toute a la France! Citoyangs! Hooray avec moy! Vive le vang millions de franc pour avec moy! Vive le vang millions de franc pour la Francaise Republique! (The joyous tunult here became indescribable. Mr. Train saw that it was unnecessary for him to speak further. He therefore drew upon the blackboard a pic-ture of the American and the Franch carder the therefore drew upon the blackboard a ple-ture of the American and the French eagles tearing the Prussian eagle to pleces. The black-board was then carried in procession through the streets, and more than 70,000 citizens enrolled their names that evening as volunteen under Mr. Train's command.) -N. Y. Tribune.

THE MAIDEN MISER.

Who and What She Was-A Romantic Story-Fun for the Lawyers.

POUGHKEEPSIE, Oct. 26.-The case of Lochy Ostrom, Poughkeepsie's miser, who died in this place some time ago, is again commanding attention. It will be remembered that hers was a romantic story. She was never married, and when she died she was seventy-seven years of age. When she was young she was considered handsome, and she moved in excellent society While in her teens she became infatuated with a then Poughkeepsie lawyer named Gazely. An estrangement soon followed, however, and from thenceforth the two walked through life in a different direction. Lochy grew old and her disposition rapidly changed. She became morose and conceived a desire to hoard money. Up to the time of her death she had not attended church in twenty years. She hardly ever purchased anything to eat or wear, but always lived upon people with whom she was acquainted. When she died it was claimed that she left not a single blood relation behind, and her fortune was inventoried at $15,000. Upon proper application letters of administration were granted to Walter D. Wheeler, one of her creditors, and up to yesterday that gentleman had supreme control of her effects. It appears, however, that there is to be a fight for the miser's money, and rich developments are expected. During yesterday a petition was filed in the Surrogate's Court in Dutchesscounty by P. Dorland and James Williams for the petitioners (Jemima McKibbin, of this city), in which she represents that she is a cousin of Rachel (Lochy) Ostrom.

After setting forth the facts of Lochy Ostrom's death the petitioner further represents that she is informed and believes that Walter D. Wheeler was not and is not entitled to letters of administration, for the reason that Rachel Ostrom left her surviving kindred heirs and legal representatives.

That the grandparents of all of the abovenamed parties are blood relatives and first cousins of deceased, the petitioner being a daughter of Leonard Lewis, who was a first cousin of deceased. The petitioner is desirous that ad-ministration should be duly granted upon the estate of deceased, and therefore asks that the Surrogate issue an order for a citation to issue to Walter D. Wheeler to appear before the Sur-rogate to show cause why he should not be suspended as administrator. The petitioner fur-ther asks that the letters granted to said Wheeler be revoked and annulled, and that letters of administration of the goods, chattels, and credits of said Rachel Ostrom, deceased. may be granted to the petitioner, Jemima Mc Kibbin.

An order has been issued by Surrogate Fowler requiring Walter D. Wheeler to show cause, on the 29th inst., why he should not be removed as administrator, and why his letters should not be revoked and cancelled. This opens the Lochy-Ostrom romance anew, and makes plenty of work for lawyers.
