LAST NIGHT'S DESPATCHES.

THE PRUSSIANS EVACUATE ORLEANS—THE ARMIS TICE A FAILURE-THE ARMIES OF PRUSSIA-

BAZAINE EXPLAINS HIS COURSE AT MFTZ, VERSAULES, Nov. 9 .- | Special to the New York World. |-Letters were captured on seven persons attempting to leave Paris by balloon, and this correspondence shows that Burnside secretly abused the opportunity allowed him to enter and leave Paris, by bringing out an authorization from the Paris government for the loan recently nego-tiated at London.

tisted at London.

Cassel, Nov. 7.—[Special to the New York Herald.]—In an interview Bazaine made the following statement: "In defending myself against personal slander, I have a way of my own which has seldom failed me, and which I consider to be an excellent one, to be silent and leave my justification to the course of time. Let Gambetta call me tion to the course of time. Let Gambetta call me a traitor to my country. I shall not answer this babbler who never smelt gunpowder. I won't do it, by God! Why, a reply to him would admit his right to sit over me; to judge. Time will clear up the case and work out truth and justice. My relations with the Prassian officers are excellent. Prince Frederick Charles sympathized with us in our misfortunes, and I shall owe him my gratitude torever. He said to me, in parting, 'if your miltary honor should ever be assailed, call upon me to defend it.'

"I never proclaimed the republic at Metz, I could have counted no longer on my best troops. When the intelligence was brought to me of the abomi-nable doings of September 4. I told my soldiers that the Emperor was a prisoner; that the Empress and Prince Imperial had le t France, and that Trochu stood at the head of the national defence committee. It was some time after this that the names of the members of that committee began to leak out. In a council of war we had agreed not to communicate those names to the troops. I have sworn loyalty to the Emperor and the constitution. The Emperor is a prisoner, but the constitution is in force, and neither I nor my comrades will ever acknowledge any other until we previously obtain a discharge from our oaths by the Emperor. I re-ported to the Paris government everything that occurred at Metz; always the strict naked truth, but never received a reply or notice of any kind from them.'

Correspondent—Do you ascribe to yourself any victorious engagement during the slege?

Bazaine—No; victory includes, of necessity, the ultimate result of the engagement. I have whipped the Prussians often and severely, but the final result was always unfavorable to me.

Correspondent-Hunger forced you at last to open Bazaine-Even if it had not been hunger I should Bazaine—Even if it had not been hunger I should have done it. One day I learned that not the Republicans but a mob ruled in Paris, Lyons and Marseilles. One day I learned that the army was insulted, and the memory of men reviled whom I venerate; but it was hunger and nothing but hunger. You would have been mistaken were you to think that I took the responsibility on myself. I acted only as the executive of the council of war, whose members ascertained the opinions of generais, colonels and majors of the army previous to making up their vote.

After the bread rations had been reduced from 500 to 300, and then to 250 grammes per day, « was informed by General Coffinieres, on October 9, that the stores could not hold out longer than a week. I had daily slaughtered 350 horses, of which I gave to the people of the town. I called the council to-gether on the 10th and again on the 12th of October, when it was unanimously resolved that by October, the it was unanimously resolved that by October 14 I must commence steps of capitulation. I sent General Boyer to the headquarters of King Wil-liam, and his mission resulted in failure. Through him I proposed to march out with my army, pledge my bonor not to fight again in the war, an permitted to convence and protect the French Chambers against a second attempt by the mob, or, as Bismarck named them, "the street loafers." We only wanted to do what Chambers are only wanted to do what Gambetta did_reestablish our loyalty by calling together the repre-

establish our loyalty by calling together the representative body.

Correspondent—What did Bismarck say to that?
Bazaine—There (taking up a document from the table) you may read what was said at the conference. It is from General Boyer's report. But you must refrain from publishing it. (Bismarck seems to have agreed to Bazaine's propositions, but Von Moltke rejected them. He believed the Marshai could not hinder the desertion of his troops, who would then materially strengthen the forces of the france-tirgurs.)

francs-tireurs.)
Bazaine resumed—I have yet to tell you that the council of war had expressly enjoined on me that I had no authority to make a peace, which should be solely in the province of the government acknowledged by the Chambers. We held another council of war on October 15, and General Coffinieres reported that the provisions were all used up; and though that was really the case, I still held out eight days longer, amidst indescribable suffering. The last council was held on October 26, when it was resolved to capitulate, in order to save more or less loss of life. One of the conditions was that the henor of the army must remain unsullied. We obtained its acceptance, and our terms are better than any allowed to troops who have capitulated during this unlucky war. Correspondent-Was there no chance whatever to make your way out?

Bazaine—None. None whatever. Our artillery horses had been slaughtered, and also our cavalry horses, and the troops were despairing. Our casualties, not counting the sick and missing, amounted in the Rhine army to twenty-four generals, 2680 officers and 42,339 men. I would not have outlived my reputation as a soldier, nor would I as a Frenchman have known that day of everlasting ignominy, the 4th of September.

Correspondent—How many of the 173,000 men who surrendered as prisoners at Metz might yet have been called in fighting order?

Bazaine—Perhaps 60,000; but without artillery and cavairy what could they do against 200,000 opponents in the very strongest positions and fortifications. have known that day of everlasting ignominy,

Just here Bazaine was interrupted by a message from the Emperor, who wished to see him, and he bade me good-bye, with the remark that I should pay him another visit. He said, "You may question me till doomsday."

I shall not tire of answering them, and truthfully In conclusion I may yet mention a funny com-munication made by Bismarck to General Boyer at the aforesaid conference: "Burnside has just re-turned," he said, "from Paris, and has given me a description of affairs inside. He characterizes the city as a mad-house, inhabited by monkeys." LONDON, NOV. 10.—[Special to the New York World.]—A private dispatch received in this city says that the French fleet is bombarding Ham-burg (?).

A dispatch from Berne via Berlin reports that Garibaldi has surrendered. Great preparations are being made in Berlin for the return of the King. A Tours despatch of November 10 says: "At length the French arms have achieved a giorious length the French arms have achieved a giorious triumph. Van Der Tarn, who was at Orleans with a corps of 25,000 men, became afraid that his position might be hemmed in. The 16th corps of the army of the Loire, on the north bank of that stream, and the 19th corps on the south bank, were confronted toward the west by bodies advancing from Chartres and Chateaudan, and Van der Tann from Chartres and Chateaudun, and Van der Tann was preparing to make a defensive retreat northward toward Paris, when he was assalled by the 16th corps under General Lussac, and after a severe fight was compelled to evacuate Orleans, which is now held by the French. The Prussian loss was 500 killed and wounded. The pursuit of the retreating Prussians is now going on and the defeat and capture of the whole force is probable.

Tours, Nov. 10.

The Prussians evacuated Orleans yesterday in great haste, leaving about 500 sick and wounded. The day before the French gained a marked success at Coulmiers. The Prussians had a strongly entrenched position, but they were dislodged, suffering a heavy loss. General Von der Tann retreated to Artenay, and the French moved forward to Germing, where they will occupy a strong position until the army of the Loire moves entirely forward.

General Palladine reports to the government that the battles which occurred two days ago at Manchenoir were more important than was at first rumored. The Prussians lost 250 killed and over 100 prisoners. The French troops behaved well, and one regiment of chasseurs kept a large Prussian force checked until the other French troops came up, when the Prussians retreated.

The journals of Lille announce that Bourbaki, who has not resigned, has organized a large force. Keratry, having organized the army of the west, is forming a camp in Brittany for another army of 100,000 strong. Lyons is preparing for defence, and Toulouse is sending forward large numbers of troops fully armed and equipped. Order prevails in both cities and also at Marseilles, where the internal desensions have disappeared. Baron Haussman, arrested at Nice, has been released and has returned to Italy.

Paris, Nov. 6.—[Special to the New York Tri-PARIS, Nov. 6.—[Special to the New York Tri-bune.]—The news of the rejection of the armistice fell like a thunderbolt upon the populace. I never remember to have witnessed a day of such general gloom since the commencement of the siege. The feeling of despair is, I fear, stronger in the army, and my impression is that within a very short time there will be an outery for peace which no government will be able to resist. If the real condition of the provinces is made public, the impossibility of further resistance will become even

The German report on the defences of Paris says about the range of their guns, that the Prussian batteries at Sevres and Meudon will carry as far as the Champ de Mars, and that from Montretont their the Champ de Mars, and that from Montretont their guns would throw shells into the Champs Elysees, but it is expected that Mont Valerien will silence their fire as soon as it is opened. Meat is getting more and more scarce daily. Yesterday all hidden stores, hearded with a view of making large profits on them, were thrown on the market, and to-day they have again disappeared. Thin lamb was freely offered for sale when at the same time live dogs were becoming scarce. were becoming scarce.

NOTICE TO MARINERS. NOTICE TO MARINERS.

UNITED STATES OF AMBRICA—VIRGINIA.—Lighthouse at York Spic Shoal, Chesapeake Bay, Virginia.—Notice is hereby given that on the evening of November 15, 1870, a fixed red light of the fifth order will be exhibited from the screw-pile lighthouse which has been recently erected in 12% feet water, at mean tide, on York Spit Shoal, at the mouth of York kiver, in Chesapeake Bay.

The light-vessel now stationed to mark that shoal will, at the time of the exhibition of the light from

The lighthouse, be removed.

The iron work of the foundation of the lighthouse is painted red, and the superstructure yellow.

The focal plane of the light is 38 feet above ordinary sea level, and the light should be visible all around the horizon in clear weather at a distance of

A fog-bell, to be rung by machinery, and arranged for being struck at uniform intervals of ten (10) seconds, is placed at the eastern side of the lighthouse, and will be kept in operation during fogs and thick weather.
New Point Comfort Light (fixed white) bears N.

by W., distant 5% nautical miles, and Black River Light (revolving white) bears S. by W., distant 7% Vessels drawing over 24 feet of water should not approach the lighthouse on the eastern side nearer than one-half (%) mile. Vessels drawing not over 18 feet water may approach the lighthouse on the east side within \(\) mile and on the s uth and southwest within \(\) mile; and vessels drawing not over 14 feet may pass over the sheal to the northwestward of the light within 14 mile, but not larther distant tean 2% miles. Notice is also hereby given, that the fog-bell at Wolf-trap Lighthouse strikes at uniform intervals of fifteen (15) seconds, instead of ten (10) seconds, as published in Notice to Mariners No. 89.

By order of the Lighthouse Board. W. B SHUBRICK, Chairman, Treasury Department, Office Lighthouse Board, Washington, D. C., Nov. 3, 1870.

THE ONLY OPERA COMPANY IN THE FIELD for the season of 1870-1871, and essentially a CONSOLIDATION OF THE TWO GRAND COMPANY IN THE FIELD FOR TWO GRAND COMPANY IN THE DIRECTOR OF THE TWO GRAND COMPANY STREET OF LAST SHASON.

The Directors refer with pride to the record of the Company thus far this season; the artistic and pecuniary successes they have achieved, the immense work they have done in the production of so many NEW OPERAS, and the fact that the EXTRAORDINARY ARTISTIC and NUMERICAL STRENGTH of the COMPANY, while it enables them to produce the HEAVIEST OPERAS with unexceptional completeness, has precluded the necessity too common of changing the Opera on account of sickness in a single instance.

With a REPERTOIRE which enables them to give FORTY OPERAS WITHOUT A REPETITION, and a CHORUS and ORCHESTRA carefully selected from the great amount of the best talent left unemployed by the absence of all other operatic organizations, they confidently promise the public as
