GENERAL SHERMAN.

Testimental Presented by His Mexican War Comrades.

From the San Francisco Alta, October 31.

General Sherman, during his recent visit to San Francisco, was elected by a unanimous vote of the Associated Veterans of the Mexican War a member of that society, and as a testimonial of the esteem in which he was held by the members, he was presented with a very handsome gold badge. As his stay here was so short, there was not time to have the badge finished before his departure; it was therefore forwarded to him at Washington, with a letter from the society. Last Saturday the following reply the society. Last Saturday the following reply the society. Last Saturday the following reply was received from General Sherman:—

Gentlemen:—On reaching home yesterday, I found your letter of September 20, with that most beautiful medal, a society badge of the Mexican War Veterans. I can hardly convey to you in words my gratification at this splendid token of your personal regard, for I realize that in the Mexican war I gained no laurels that a soldier would value, for it was my fate to be sent around Cape Horn to California, then, as now, a peaceful land, where at best we could only prepare the way for the graud pioneers who, like Moses, struck the rock in the desert that a stream of gold and wealth should pour forth to enrich the whole land.

I accept the membership you thus tender me

I accept the membership you thus tender me with pride, and in the full hope that at some future time I may mingle with you in social array to contemplate the many events that have made the Mexican war the cause of such grand results.

I wish that I could have been with you on the 14th of September, but I hope you saw that the prior engagement at Sacramento City was imperative, and kept me there that whole night; but I assure you that if another chance is offered me, I should strain every nerve to be with you to renew the memories of the old Mexican war, that seem almost to have been swallowed up and lost in the great events that have occurred since. With great respect, your friend, W. T. Sherman, General.

General Sherman came around Cape Horn in the United States ship Lexington. He was then attached to Captain Tompkins' battery of the 3d Artillery. General E. O. C. Ord, now commanding this department, was the senior first lieutenant, W. T. Sherman the junior first lieu-Accompanying these troops were Lieutenant. Accompanying these troops were Lieutenant H. W. Halleck, of the Engineer Corps (now majorgeneral), and Captain Folsom, quartermaster. Captain Tompkins resigned soon after reaching this coast, and Lieutenant Minor died. The others have all been prominently identified with the early history of California, and are well, known to all our old citizens. tenant, and Colville Minor second lieutenant.

POWDER-MILL EXPLOSION.

Sensation in Scranton-Loss of Life and Pro-

The Scranton Republican of yesterday says:-The whole country hereabouts was startled this morning about half-past 8 o'clock by a terrible explosion, the concussion of which was felt on every hand, and left the mark in broken windows in not a few buildings of the borough, while at the location of the disaster a terrible picture was presented. The fierce flash of the burning powder sprang high in the air, and the huge volume of grey smoke rose to a much greater height in awful majesty, painfully wit-nessed from many points in and around the town.

The powder, or more properly the material composing it, had caught fire in the rolls, where it was undergoing the patent manufacturing process of General Oliver, from sparks thrown by a cog wheel of the set of rolls by the breaking of the housing of the journals in which one end of the shaft played. This is an accident that has happened a number of times and has always been easily controlled, as it could have been and was in this instance, as the powder instead of blazing up instantaneously only burns rather freely when unconfined, but the clothes of Daniel Dunlap, a young man, having caught fire, he started from the mill apparently to go to the reservoir, a short distance off, to put it but and save himself from being burned.

He was followed by Oscar Shoemaker, who tried to beat and smother the fire out. His own clothes caught fire in the attempt, and it is thought that he became bewildered, in which state he ran towards the dry houses, standing a short distance off, and entered. Here a large pile of powder lay, which quickly caught and communicated to the adjoining house, in which were some seventy-five kegs, which were being loaded in a wagon, and the explosion took place. demolishing the dry houses and mill, knocking in the end of the magazine and the stable, and tearing out the sides of some cars standing on the track near by, and making a complete wreck of everything round about. Thomas Burns, the engineer and foreman, was thrown violently against an iron vice in the mill, fracturing his skull, from which he died about two o'clock. Oscar Shoemaker was horribly burned; when touched the flesh peeled from his body, and although still alive this evening it is thought that he cannot survive. Daniel Dunlap is burned, but not seriously, and will recover.

The business of the company will be stought

The business of the company will be stopped for the time, and altogether, unless they should conclude to again put up the buildings and try once more. General Oliver has had no little trouble with the manufacture of his powder here, this being the second time the buildings have been destroyed.

THE HOOSAC TUNNEL.

How the Ends Will Be Made to Meet. Before the work from the Hoosac Tunnel shaft towards the ends can be undertaken certain mathematical ealculations must be made, which involve the successful discharge of the most delicate and responsible professional duties which any engineer was ever called upon to perform-if being necessary to lay down a line less than twenty-seven feet in length at the bottom of a dripping, dark shaft 1030 feet deep, so that both ends of the line, being projected, so that both ends of the line, being projected, shall coincide with the terminal points of the tunnel, each being distant over 12,000 feet from the centre of the shaft. To increase the initial difficulty, the top of the shaft is on the summit of a rugged mountain from 1500 to 1800 feet above the grade of the tunnel at its terminal. It is therefore no the tunnel at its termini. It is, therefore, no slight responsibility that is incurred by the engineer who assumes the charge of this delicate operation. To facilitate the correct performance of this duty a colossal transit instru-ment has been constructed at the cost of the State of Massachusetts, which is the most perfect ever made. The most accurately verified lines have been laid down over the mountain, ines have been laid down over the mountain, extending long distances beyond, in both directions, to the tops of neighboring mountains. By the accuracy of this instrument and its manipulation the line of twenty-seven—the transverse diameter of the shaft—will be permanently defined, requiring wonderful exactness, and from its extremities the "plummet" alone can reach the bottom of the shaft. These plummets must, of necessity, be heavy and beautifully poised and will require to be suspended in oil to produce perfect rest and protection from oil to produce perfect rest and protection from the faintest vibration of the air. The most delicate cords, consistent with strength, must be used to suspend them; and after all is done that science can suggest-being absolutely correct as to the theory—it is easy to see how delicate and difficult will be the practical part of the opera-tion, and what grave consequences would fol-low the slightest error of alignment on so small a base. It is quite possible that such an error will be inevitable, as the motion of the earth may affect the plummet to an extent sufficient to disturb the calculations; but this fact has not been demonstrated, and scientific authorities differ on the subject.
