SOLDIERS' ORPHANS.

An Appeal for the National Charity at Gettys-The following appeal in behalf of a worthy cause, signed by Bishop Simpson, of the M. E. Church, General Meade, Mayor Fox, and George H. Stuart, Esq., should meet with a hearty re-

The National Homestead for the Orphans of Soldiers of the United States, incorporated by the Legislature of Pennsylvania, was formally inaugurated at Gettysburg in the year 1866. The orphans now enjoying its shelter and the benefit of its fine now enjoying its shelter and the benefit of its fine school are natives of sixten States, to wit: of Massachusetts, Vermont, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Missouri, Tennessee, Georgis, and Florida.

The institution owes its establishment and continued support wholly to the charity of the humane public. Among its most generous patrons are more than eight hundred Sabbath schools, in eighteen States of the Union, and connected with almost every branch of the Christian Church.

The Homestead is not designed to be lost to its present friends and patrons. It is chartered to be a perpetual asylum for orphans of citizens when no a perpetual asylum for orphans of citizens when no longer needed for orphans of soldiers. Now, as the war for the Union is fading from the public memory, and sympathy for the soldier's orphan is not the tender and generous feeling of the past, gifts do not flow into the Homestead treasury as heretofore. The decline in its receipts threatens as heretofore. The decline in its receipts threatens serious embarrassment to the institution in the midst of its noble work. Indeed, unless liberal aid is soon provided, the institution cannot possibly continue to support its present large family of dependent children. To be compelled to dismiss a single child for want of means for its proper support—to turn it out of doors in sight of its father's grave and the trenches where he ought and fell—cannot be thought to a possibility. The patriotic and humane public is respectfully and earnestly called upon, therefore, to respectfully and earnestly called upon, therefore, to lend timely aid, that these orphans of the republic may remain in their school and pleasant home until better fitted to be sent forth into the world. All who would share in this blessed ministry to these fatherless little ones may please intimate their M. MATTHEW SIMPSON,

MUSICAL AND DRAMATIC.

Mr. J S. Clarke as "Bob Tyke." A comedian, if he is a thorough artist, ought to be able to express tragic emotions; and the reserve of tragic force that Mr. Clarke only occasionally gives his auditors a glimpse of in such personations as "Newman Noggs," "Bob Brierly," and "Bob Tyke," is one of the best evidences that could be afforded of the versatility of his talents and the soundness of his artistic method. It is not of course necessary, or perhaps desirable, that an actor whose forte is especially eccentric comedy should be able to play every description of tragedy, and it would afford us no particular gratification to see Mr. Clarke attempt the representation of such a character as "King Lear," for instance. We remember that some years ago at the Arch Street Theatre, on one of the exceptional occasions known as a benefit night, he did play "Richard III," and a very funny performance it certainly was. The moral of this experiment was that this particular line of tragedy was beyond Mr. Clarke's range, but not a great while after having convulsed an audience with laughter over his "Richard." he astonished those who imagined that he could play nothing but low comedy by achieving a brilliant artistic success in the character of "Bob Tyke," in Morton's comedy of The School of Reform. Since then this has been one of Mr. Clarke's most admired roles, not that the part itself is a great one, but because it calls for the expression of emotions than are incident to pure comedy, and because it furnishes a powerful contrast to the ordinary round of comic parts with which the actor is identified. To what extent the public has become accustomed to regard Mr. Clarke merely as a comic actor was shown last night by the laughter that his acting in the early scenes of the play inspired. There is a certain grim humor about "Bob Tyke" when he first appears upon the scene, and it requires something of an effort to lose sight of the comedian, and it is not until the close of the act, when "Tyke" narrates how his broken-hearted old father bade him farewell as he was taken on board of the convict ship, that the tragic earnestness of the performance profoundly impresses the spectator.

In the second act the comedian is lost sight of altogether, and the look of horror with which the face of the hardened criminal is transfixed when he discovers that he has robbed his own *father is a remarkable piece of acting that cannot be forgotten by those who have ever seen it.

The School of Reform is a well-written but rather heavy piece, and cut down as it has been by Mr. Clarke, to three acts, its performance, beyond the leading role, does not demand extended comment. A word of praise, however, is due to Mr. Morrison for his cariously artistic personation of "Lord Avondale" last evening, There is a strong dash of absurdity about this rather dreary character, which is a compound of "The Stranger," "Sir Edward Mortimer," and the conventional noble scoundrel who figures in a good many old English plays, but such as it is, Mr. Morrison appeared to hit the ideal of the part as the author sketched it exactly, and if the figure presented was unlike any English nobleman that ever lived or breathed, the fault was not in the actor, but in the part itself.

The City Amusements. AT THE WALNUT Mr. Clarke will this evening personate "Asa Trenchard" in Our American Cousin and "Paul Pry" in Poole's comedy

On Friday next Mr. Rufus Adams, in compliance with a general request, will appear as "Shylock," in The Merchant of Venice. LABOR.-Labor is capital. Bestow good health upon a man, so that he can labor every six out of seven days, and no matter how poor he may have been at the commencement of life's great race, he will be certain to accumulate a fortune, provided he takes care of his earnings. PLANTATION BITTERS is certain to make the weak ones strong, and to preserve the health of the healthy. From four to six hours is considered the ordinary limit for brain work. At the expiration of this time the phosphorus is carried off, and the man becomes irritable and nervous. If he is poor, and continues on at his task, as most of poor doctors, lawyers, and editors do, he will be certain to shorten his days and fill an untimely grave, as did Sir Walter Scott, unless he uses Plantation Bitters, which speedily restores his vital energy, repairs his indigestion, and corrects the sluggish circulation of his blood.

WITHOUT SPOT OR SEDIMENT .- Phalon's Vitalia, or Salvation for the Hair, has no bad smell, and does not stain the skin. It has no ingredient that subsides in the form of fifthy sediment. Consequently, it is not shrouded in darkened bottles. The natural color of the hair, however completely it may have faded out, is invariably reproduced by the Vitalia. Sold by all druggists.

THE BEST AND SUREST REMEDY in the world for all diseases with which children are afflicted during the process of teething, is Mrs. Winslow's Scotning SYRUP. It not only relieves the child from pain, but invigorates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, and by giving quiet sleep to the child, gives rest to the mother. Perfectly safe in all cases.

ZELL'S ENCYCLOPEDIA.

Is now fast approaching completion. The price for the entire work, unbound, will still remain for a limited time as originally announced, namely, $25. As it has been found advisable to increase the size of the original work about 200 pages beyond the number at first proposed, those who purchase or subscribe now will get the benefit of this addition without charge, otherwise they will be obliged to pay for the same. This book is a complete and unabridged dictionary of the English language, as good as the bost, a Gazetteer of the World, and a more complete, newer, and fresher Encyclopedia than any as the bost, a Gazetteer of the World, and a more complete, newer, and fresher Encyclopedia than any now in print; the price is lower than that of any other Encyclopedia—and but a little above that charged for an Unabridged Dictionary or a Gazetteer alone—and being the latest and begun and completed within the short space of two years—not drawing through an unlimited number of years, as here large precedence been the case with warks of drawing through an unlimited number of years, as has always heretofore been the case with works of this magnitude—it must necessarily be by far the newest in point of information, as, for example, the article Napoleon is brought down to his sarrender. Prussia to the present war, etc.—and the populations are given either in accordance with recent State Census or that of the General Census of this year, or from other reliable information and every year, or from other reliable information, and every pains taken to make the information given new and
