The Population at Previous Dates.

The census of Maryland has just been completed, and the result shows the present population of the State to be 781,054, an increase since 1860 of 94,005, or 13.68 per cent.

The progress of Maryland in population, it will be seen, has been very slow, and has barely doubled in sixty years The decade from 1840 to 1850 was the most prosperous, the rate of Increase being 24 04 per cent., while that of the country at large was 35'87. Between 1850 and 1860, the rate of increase fell to 17:34, while that of the whole country was 35.59. Since 1860, a new county, Wicomico, has been formed out of portions of Somerset and Worcester. Of the remaining counties, 13 show an increase during the decade, and 7 a decrease. The largest increase outside of Baltimore City, which is credited with more than one-half of that of the entire State, has been 10,206 in Allegheny: the largest decrease 2370, in Prince George's. The other countles showing a decrease are Calvert, Charles, Dorchester, Harford, Queen Anne's and St. Mary's.

In the following table are given several interesting items of the census of Maryland, compared with the returns for 1860; - and in 1870 it was 1°25, the increased rate being probably the result of a more careful investigation, as the census mortality returns have been notoriously imperfect in past years. The number of persons to a dwelling in 1860 was 5.66, and in 1870 it was 5.91, showing that the increase in the number of dwellings has not kept pace with the increase in the population. families: 2270 industrial establishments; and during the year 1869-70 there were 3765 deaths in the city. The people and authorities of the city have been greatly dissatisfied with the result of the official enumeration of inhabitants. and about the 1st of December a new census was taken under municipal authority, one hundred and thirty-six policemen being employed as enumerators. They completed the work in three days, and found the population to consist of 188,404 males and 149,971 females-a total of 283,375, exhibiting an excess of 15,777 over the Federal returns, and an increase since 1860 of 70,957, or 33:40 per cent.

FROM HARRISBURG.

The Revolution in the Senate-Causes of Demecratic Success-Wallace to be Speaker and Zeigler (lerk-Cameron's Hopeless Struggle Against Constitutional Reform and a Fair Apportionment-A Constitutional Convention Assured-The Decline and Fall of the Winnebngo Chief.

From Our Own Correspondent. HARRISBURG, Dec. 26. The election of Colonel Dechert in the First district will make quite a disturbance in the old order of things in the Senate. For twelve years the Senate has been under Republican control without interruption. In the fall of 1862 the House was lost, and a Democratic majority of one on joint ballot secured, which sent Mr. Buckalew to the United States Senate: but Republican supremacy in the State Senate has never, since the first Republican triumph of 1858, been broken until now. The Senate had become a sort of Republican fixture, and Republican clerks and other subordinates had settled down into what seemed to be life estates. Now, however, by the general disgust of active Republicans, four Democratic Senators will be sworn in on the 3d of January to represent strong Republican constituencies. Messrs. Petriken and Crawford have over 1200 Republican majority in their district on a full poll; Dill has quite as much; and Colonel Dechert has about 1000. Thus have the Republicans themselves transferred the power of the Senate from their own party to the Democrats. It was not accident or mere indifference that produced this change. It was done by the positive efforts of many Republicans, who saw no other way of averting the carnival of crime that Cameron has inaugurated under the shadow of Republicanism. In the late contest in the First district, when every voter knew that the control of the Senate depended upon the result, fully 5000 Republicans failed to vote, and that, too, when they had a most unexceptionable candidate. Such results have a positive meaning; and the cry of fraud, or indifference. or perfidy, or any of the other stereotyped howls which usually come from the defeated, do not give the true explanation. The First district was lost solely because Republicans them-

chair, we shall now have Mr. Wallace, of Clearfield, as the presiding officer. He is the master politician of his party, and deserves all the coufidence he receives from his political friends. He is a clear-headed, prudent leader, and will preside with dignity and fairness. Although not so strong a disputant as Buckalew, he is much the most skilful and efficient partisan of the two, and is the recognized leader of his party in the Legislature. It is due to him to say that he enjoys the respect of the Republicans, and he is ever a courteous and manly foe. Hamersly will vacate the Clerk's desk, and his familiar face will be missed with regret by many of both parties. A generation has passed away since he entered the Senate as a clerk. As early as 1836, I believe, he became one of the subordinate clerks, and in 1838 he was Chief Clerk and recorded the memorable proceedings growing out of the "Buckshot War." Since then he has been Clerk nearly all the time when the Democrats were not in power. A few years given to contracting made him decline the position. He has never been a defeated candidate in his party. He will now give place to "Uncle Jake Zeigier," the prince of good fellows and a universal favorite. He, too, has clerked in the | Race street, Philadelphia.

House in days of "auld lang syne," and will re- | turn with his locks silvered and his eyes somewhat dimmed, but with his humor unabated, Others will be candidates, but "Uncle Jake" has a through ticket and his baggage checked. The smaller offices will be scrambled for in the usual style, and it matters little who wins.

Of course the committees will be turned topsy-turvy by the new order of things, and the Republicans will be subordinated, as the Democrats have been for the last twelve years: but it is too soon to venture on an assignment of the leading Democrats to these committees. Buckalew will, of course, have his choice of positions, and Davis, of Berks, and Randall, of Schwylkill, will have important chalrmanships. Buckalew will likely be chairman of two special committees, one to frame apportionments and another to report on a constitutional convention.

Some of the less discreet Republican managers, under the direction of the Cameron wing, have declared their purpose to defeat the Legislative in Philadelphia only at and Congressional apportionments, and take the chances of a Republican Legislature next year: but the coming Legislature will not be under any such unscrupulous control in that or any other issue. The present Legislative apportionment is a disgraceful gerrymander. Democratic counties are denied their just representation, and others are swamped by association with Republican counties. Montgomery is given but two members, while Chester, with less population, has three, and Chester and Delaware are piled on to Montgomery to elect two Senators. Bedford and Fulton are overcome by Somerset in the election of members: Westmoreland is throttled by Indiana, and Washington by Beaver: Huntingdon was piled on to Juniata and Mifflin, and Union and Snyder on to Lycoming; but the experiment has worked rather unsatisfactorily. The Democrats will present a perfectly fair bill. They will ask no advantage in arranging the districts, and there are enough fair Republicans to join them in an equitable bill rather than be guilty of the proposed revolutionary act of adjourning without passing the apportionment required by the Constitution. The counsels of desperate leaders, who have relied upon gerrymanders to enable them to defy the people, will be impotent this winter, and the Republican party will hereafter carry the Legislature when its popular vote entitles it to legislative supremacy, and when it fails to secure popular success it will be in a minority. Henceforth the Republican party can succeed only by deserving success, and the reckless men who have estranged the people from the party should appreciate the fact that they can no longer defy the popular will without inviting Democratic success. It is not improbable that the practical working majority of the coming Legislature will be made up of the Democratic strength and a body of independent Republicans. They will unite from necessity to defeat the extreme measures on which Cameron must stake everything. If he fails in defeating an apportionment, and in defeating a constitutional convention, his political race will be run. His power will be gone, and gone forever; and no one appreciates it better than Cameron himself. It is well known that Governor Geary will approve a fair apportionment, and he will strongly favor a constitutional convention. Cameron will use his utmost endeavors to defeat both, but will fail. The bill for a reform convention will pass at an early day, and will command the entire Democratic vote, with that of all the better class of Republicans. It will give each party an equal chance for the control of the convention in proportion to their respective popular vote, and will fix special elections, so that in 1872 the new Constitution will be in operation, and the next United States Senate will be the first offering of reform. Where will Cameron and his Senatorial auction be when reform is enthroned in the legislative halls? He has had a long lease of power. Republican forbearance under his corruptinp influence has been unexampled; but at last the fruits of the war have been gathered in their fulness, and Republicanism can vindicate itself against political vampires without sacrificing the national safety. The next United States Senate, whether Democratic or Republican, will be the one preferred by the people, and the shameless hucksters of the highest honors of the State will live only in the history made memorable by their crimes against a patrictic DAUPHIN. Commonwealth.
