REVIEW OF NEW BOOKS.

The following new publications from the press of J. B. Lippincott & Co. have been received:

"Horace," by Theodore Martin, is the sixth volume of "Ancient Classics for English Readers," which aim to give those who have not the time or inclination to study the works of the classic authors a satisfactory account of them. Mr. Theodore Martin, who is favorably known as a translator of "Horace," has in the little volume before us presented a succinct and critical analysis of his writings, with translations of some of his most celebrated verses, and to the majority of readers it will convey a better idea of the style of the Roman poet than could probably be obtained from a perusal of his complete writings. This and the others of the same series are useful little books that deserve permanent places in every library, and that may be read with pleasure and profit even by those who plume themselves upon an acquaintance with the classics. "Sergeant Atkins" is a stirring tale of adventure during the Seminole war in Florida, from the pen of an officer of the United States army. The author is evidently thoroughly familiar with the characteristics of the swamps and hummocks of Florida, where the scene of the story is laid, and the book, independently of its merits as a narrative of adventure, contains much interesting information about a portion of the State of Florida that is rarely visited and is but little known.

"Steps Upward," by Mrs. Frances Dana Gage, is a temperance story that obtained much popularity when it was published in the Temperance Patriot, and as the object it has in view is an excellent one, we hope that it will receive the appreciation it deserves from the public in its present shape.

From J. B. Lippincott & Co. we have received the following new issues of other publishers:

"A French French Reader," compiled by L. Fylolet, and "The Progressive French Reader," by Frederick Bocher, published by Leopold & Holt, are selections of prose and verse, with suitable notes and references, arranged to introduce the scholar gradually to the more difficult forms of the French language by easy progression. Both of these books are well adapted for the purpose intended, the first-named being especially intended for beginners.

"The Young Pioneers of the Northwest," by Dr. C. H. Pearson, is a story for boys of adventure in the Indian country, which forms the fifth volume of "The Pioneer" series. Published by Lee & Shepard.

—Claxton, Remsen & Haefliger send us the following new publications of Harper & Brothers:

The Merchant of Venice, edited with notes by William J. Rolfe, A. M., is an attempt to introduce the study of the English classics into our schools by furnishing pupils with correct texts, illustrated by such philological, historical, and antiquarian notes as are necessary to make clear the meaning of the author.

In the play before us the objectionable passages have been expunged, but nothing has been added, and the text has been carefully edited from the best modern editions. The notes are sufficiently full and are judicious, giving the pupil all necessary information without obviating for him every difficulty. The illustrations are for the most part worthless for a work of this character, and instead of filling the pages of the book with indelible cuts from some illustrated "Shakespeare," it would have been much better if a few accurate illustrations of Venetian antiquities, that would have a positive relation to the text, had been introduced.

"The History of Louis XIV.," by John S. C. Abbott, is an interesting addition to the popular historical series by the Brothers Abbott. It gives a brief but comprehensive sketch of one of the most remarkable reigns in history—a reign that was practically the prologue to the terrible drama of the French Revolution.

"A German Reader," by George F. Comfort, A. M., is designed to succeed the "German Course" of the same author. It is a series of selections in prose and verse by the best German writers, arranged progressively, and it is designed not only to furnish exercises for the student, but also to furnish him with an introduction to German literature.

"A Syren," by T. Adolphus Trollope, is an interesting novel by a popular writer that will repay perusal.

T. B. Peterson & Brothers send us the following of their recent publications:

"Frank Forrester's Sporting Scenes and Characters," two volumes, is a collection of stories and sketches that have had great popularity in times past. The author (the late Henry W. Herbert) was a thorough sportsman and a graphic writer, and the contents of the volumes before us will doubtless find a multitude of appreciative readers even at this day.

"Doesticks' Letters" is the title of a volume of rough-and-ready humor that found many admirers when it originally appeared some fifteen years ago. The quality of Doesticks' wit is somewhat strained, but he has his admirers, and to such the republication of his book will be welcome.

"Hide and Seek" is a new edition of one of the earlier works of Wilkie Collins, which is not so well known as some of his later writings, but which is marked by other characteristics of his style.

"Philadelphia Illustrated," published by L. H. Hammersley & Co., is an excellent description of Philadelphia, its numerous points of interest, its great manufacturing establishments, its public buildings, its schools and colleges, its churches, its hospitals, its great park, and the thousand and one items that contribute to the greatness of the city. The work is well written, and it gives a great amount of information in a comparatively small space. The illustrations are numerous and good, all of the most prominent buildings in the city being represented. We particularly admire the admirable view of THE EVENING TELEGRAPH office that appears upon page 7, and bear willing testimony to the accuracy with which the artist has represented the architectural adornments of this great news center.

—The American Exchange and Review for January contains a number of interesting articles on a variety of subjects.

THE STRONGEST AND BEST-SECURED, AS WELL AS MOST PROFITABLE INVESTMENT NOW OFFERED IN THE MARKET.

7 PER CENT. GOLD First Mortgage Bonds,
 Coupon or Registered, and free of U. S. Tax, PRINCIPAL AND INTEREST PAYABLE IN GOLD, ISSUED BY THE Burlington, Cedar Rapids, and Missouri R. R. Co.
 The small remaining balance of the Loan for sale at 90 and Accrued Interest in Currency.
 Interest payable May and November.
 J. EDGAR THOMSON, CHARLES L. FROST, Trustees.

The bonds are issued at $20,000 per mille against the portion only of the line fully completed and equipped. The greater part of the road is already in operation, and the present earnings are largely in excess of the operating expenses and interest on the bonds. The balance of the work necessary to establish through connections, thereby shortening the distance between St. Paul and Chicago 45 miles, and 90 miles to St. Louis, is rapidly progressing, in time for the movement of the coming grain crops, which, it is estimated, will double the present income of the road.

The established character of this road, running as it does through the heart of the most thickly-settled and richest portion of the great State of Iowa, together with its present advanced condition and large earnings, warrants us in unhesitatingly recommending these bonds to investors as, in every respect an undoubted security. A small quantity of the issue only remains unsold, and when the enterprise is completed, which will be this fall, an immediate advance over subscription price may be looked for.

The bonds have five years to run, are convertible at the option of the holder into the stock of the Company at par, and the payment of the principal is provided for by a sinking fund. The convertibility privilege attached to these bonds cannot fail to cause them, at an early day, to command a market price considerably above par. U. S. Five-twenties at present prices return only 4½ per cent. currency interest, while these bonds pay 7½ per cent, and we regard them to be as safe and fully equal as a security to any Railroad bond issued; and until they are placed upon the New York Stock Exchange, the rules of which require the road to be completed, we obligate ourselves to repay at any time any of these bonds sold by us after this date at the same price as realized by us on their sale.

All marketable securities taken in payment free of commission and express charges.
